 Edward Winters, 1429 Clark, Racine, Wis. SPEECH HON. STUART F. REED, OF WEST VIRGINIA, IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Monday, May 22, 1922. The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (8. 2919) to extend for the period of two years the provisions of Title II of the food control and District of Columbia rent act, approved October 22, 1919, as amended. Mr. REED of West Virginia. Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the bill under consideration to-day is a bill that is familiar to practically all the Members of the House. It is known as the rent act. It passed the Senate, came to the House, and was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, which committee has had extensive hearings; in fact, the District of Columbia Committee made it rather a series of field days for those who were opposed to the bill. Many prominent real-estate brokers, as well as a number of property owners, appeared and voiced their objections to this bill. They presented some objections which seemed to the committee to deserve consideration, and, so far as I am able to judge from the expressions of those whom the committee heard, the Senate bill as finally amended by the House committee practically eliminates all the objectionable features that were pointed out at the hearings by men who own property or control property for rental purposes in the District of Columbia. This bill is not presented as a war emergency. It has been passed upon by the Supreme Court of the United States, which court held it to be constitutional, not as a war emergency bill but as legislation under the "police" and "welfare" guarantles of our Constitution. Under the police powers recognized by the courts of our country similar legislation has been enacted in the State of New York, and that legislation as well as this has been approved by the Supreme Court of the United States. Now, as I have already said, those who opposed this bill had what the committee thought were some valid objections. For example, it was held that a man who purchased property, to use it for himself or his dependents, found it practically impossible to get possession of his prop-I feel sure the committee amendment to the Senate bill will help that situation. They complained of the long delays in the settlement of questions. I think we have remedied that condition by increasing the membership of the Rent Commission. Mr. JOHNSON of Mississippi. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. REED of West Virginia. I will yield for a short ques-Mr. JOHNSON of Mississippi. I am very much in sympathy with the bill, and what I am very much interested to Allan Wallace Barnes, 312 highth Street, Racine, wis. Ray Edwin Beery (Berry, Ray Berry), 769 Seventeenth, Racine, Wis. know is, do the hearings disclose such a condition in the city of Washington that makes it necessary for us to invoke the welfare clause of the Constitution relating to the promotion

weirare clause of the Constitution relating to the promotion of the health, morals, and so forth, of the people?

Mr. REED of West Virginia. The committee have said so in their report, and from their investigation they found conditions existing here that in the opinion of the committee—

Mr. JOHNSON of Mississippi. That it is necessary, in order to promote the health and morals, and so forth, of the people to ensent this law?

people, to enact this law?

Mr. REED of West Virginia. That it is a measure coming under that clause

Mr. JOHNSON of Mississippi. The welfare clause of the Constitution?

Mr. REED of West Virginia. Yes. Several years ago the Legislature of Illinois passed a law regulating the charges and fees for the use of grain elevators. At once the owners protested and said that was unconstitutional; that they were built by private citizens for the use of farmers, and they had a right to fix the rates; but the Supreme Court of the United States said that the housing or the storage of the grain of the farmers in the country was a function "clothed with a public interest," and as such the court upheld it. They say that by this measure we are invading the property rights of the people. My colleagues, property rights have been invaded long ago in the interest of the public welfare. It was once thought that it was an unreasonable thing to pass laws regulating the amount that could be charged for putting cattle in a cattle car and trans-porting the car across country, but the Supreme Court approved legislation regulating such charges and rates. It was held that it was very obnoxious to regulate the contract of a private insurance company, but to-day laws sustained by the Supreme Court are absolutely dictating the contracts of the insurance companies of this country. We regulate interest charges, we regulate the height of public buildings. These have all been passed upon by the courts and recognized as legitimate subjects for supervision and control by law, because they are clothed with a public interest.

If it is lawful to regulate the charges for cattle housed and transported in a railroad car, why is it not lawful to regulate the prices charged for housing human beings who are here in the District doing work for the Government?

Mr. MILLSPAUGH. Will the gentleman yield?
Mr. REED of West Virginia. Just for a question.
Mr. MILLSPAUGH. Did I understand the gentleman to state that the morals of the community were involved by the passage of this Ball Rent Act; that if it were not passed it would affect the inorals of the community?

Mr. REED of West Virginia. That is not a violent presumption.

Mr. MILLSPAUGH. May I ask the gentleman from West Virginia of what he spoke? That is what I understood, but I probably was wrong.

Mr. REED of West Virginia. It is a subject clothed with such a public interest that Congress has the right to pass remedial legislation.

Mr. JOHNSON of Mississippi. If the gentleman will yield, what I intended to call the gentleman's attention to was that if a condition existed that affected the health, morals, and social conditions of the people, then they would have a right to enact this law under the welfare clause of the Constitution. Now, is there such a congested state in this city that people are affected in their health and morals and general social conditions? Does such a condition exist here?

Mr. MILLSPAUGH. In connection with that, may I ask this question: Referring to the News of Saturday, I find there an interview with one of the members of the commission, Mrs. Taylor, in which the paper makes her say that if this amend-ment to the rent law is not passed we will have women workers of a less scrupulous type here than we have at the present

You do not subscribe to that, do you? Mr. REED of West Virginia. The lady has a right to express her opinion and my colleague has the privilege of dissent-

I want to explain why the majority of the committee feel that this bill is a necessity at this time and refer to the objectionable features that have been referred to by men who own real estate. First, as to the possession of property. This bill makes it possible where a man desires to tear down property and improve it, and whether it is for business purposes or otherwise, if he can show a legitimate reason for taking possession of his property, the commission will grant him that privilege.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. Will the gentleman yield? Does the gentleman from West Virginia think the committee is making very much of a concession when it would yield the right to a property owner to reconstruct his own property? You speak as though that was a great concession.

Mr. REED of West Virginia. The machinery and provisions of the old law made that difficult. The committee has amended the Senate bill in such a manner as will render it unobjectionable and absolutely fair to the owner.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. Does this leave it so that there can be no question as to the right of the property owner to alter or change his own property?

Mr. REED of West Virginia. If it is not for the sole purpose of ousting one tenant to put another in. The owner must show good faith.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. The burden would be upon him to show that it was not derogatory to the interest of the person occupying the place; that he had no purpose except that of altering his property? Mr. REED of West Virginia. He might want to change his property from an apartment to a purely business property. He would have that right.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. Do you not think that is making a great concession here in the United States to a property

Mr. REED of West Virginia. Well, that is one of the objections to the present law which the bill as amended seeks to remedy. As to other changes in the bill, the realter or owner may apply to the commission for the raising of rents where they are too low. The remedy is given for both the owner and the tenant.

Many complaints have been made relative to profiteering by subtenants. The old law was probably deficient as to that matter. The bill as amended reaches the subtenant and will enable the owner and the commission to correct many injustices that have heretofore existed. In protecting the rights of the property owner in the collection of his rent, the amended bill takes care of that situation in a manner that is fair to all parties.

The drastic penalties that were objected to as being severe and unreasonable have been changed, the court is given au-thority to punish in cases of contempt proceedings, and so forth, within the discretion of the court. The committee after extensive hearings feels that we have here in the District of Columbla an exigency that demands the continuation of what is known as the Ball Rent Act as amended.

Mr. BLANTON. Will the gentleman yield for a question? Mr. REED of West Virginia. For a short question.

Mr. BLANTON. Answering the question of the gentleman from Kansas, when an owner comes in and claims that he wants the property for his own possession and the tenant denies that is the fact, then it becomes an issuable matter before the court as to whether the owner can produce the preponderance of testimony?

Mr. REED of West Virginia. Controversies of that kind are sometimes carried to the court. That may happen in connection with almost any transaction.

I want to say a few words in commendation of hundreds of property owners and real estate men in the District of Columbia who have never at any time engaged in profiteering in rents. They are honorable, high-minded, loyal Americans, and during the entire war period many of them made no increase whatever in the rents charged their tenants. If all landlords and property owners were of this class there would be no need of a rent commission. But I regret to say there is another class that can not be described by temperate language. They have engaged in the most outlandish and dastardly profiteering. They have harassed the poor and bled the thrifty. Their mer-cenary instincts have made them shameless and unblushing

The hearings on this bill have brought out some interesting observations. The real estate brokers say that if they wanted to be selfish they would ask for the continuation of this law. They claim that its operation enables them to sell houses at exorbitant prices and by limiting rental properties makes it incumbent upon the erstwhile tenants to purchase at the prevailing high prices. Therefore they want the law abolished in order to protect the tenants and curb the epidemic of selling at high prices.

Yet no victim of the high-selling iniquity appeared before the committee to complain, while hundreds pleaded for rent regu-

It has been claimed by other opponents of the measure that it retarded the growth of Washington, but on every hand appears unmistakable evidence that never before have there been such extensive building operations as at present. In every direction you will find houses by the hundreds going up. And my prediction to-day is that this bill will pass and the erection of diction to-day is that this bill will pass and the erection or houses will be even greater during the coming year than ever before. But we are told that these houses are all being sold, not rented. How fortunate for Washington if that is true. Think of it. A city of home owners. The home owner is the glory of a city. He paints and improves his home. He plants shrubs and flowers on the lawn. He is a taxpayer. He is a good, safe customer for the merchant and grocer. Having proposite housest parts his bills. erty, he must pay his bills.

One very prominent and well-informed citizen of the District appeared before the committee and urged that this bill be not passed, because it would "keep rents up." He said he wanted to see Washington become a city of home owners. Well, if the brokers are correct as to the great wave of home buying he is getting just what he wants. It is said that Members would not sanction this kind of legislation for their home communities. Well, suppose we put the question in its proper form—give it its true setting. Let us say to Clarksburg, W. Va., Omaha, or even Kansas City, that it is proposed to locate at any one of these cities the seat of government of the United States, bringing to that city the thousands of Government workers, whose pay is regular, with no interruption by strikes, hard times, or market conditions. There would also go as an accompaniment the world's greatest library; the Government's wonderful executive, legislative, diplomatic, judicial, and scientific functions. But tell them that before these things can come to them they must submit to legislation that will not permit profiteering in house rentals or returns upon investments in dwellings in excess of 8 per cent. Can you guess what action the people would take relative to a proposition of that kind? It is said that fully 75 per cent of the people residing in Washington obtain their living directly or indirectly through the various activities of the Government. If property owners here are permitted to continue the in-creasing of rents it will be absolutely necessary to raise the pay of the thousands of employees here to enable them to live and stay in the service. That will mean, my colleagues, that my constituents in West Virginia and yours will have to bear an additional burden of millions of dollars in added taxation, which will go into the pockets of profiteering landlords in Washington.

This small area called the District of Columbia was ceded to the United States for just one purpose—to be the seat of gov-ernment of this Republic. Read what the Constitution says about it. It was set apart, not for private enterprises, not for great factories, not for smoking iron industries, but for a place where this Government could erect its public buildings and carry on the activities necessary to its existence.

Any condition or propaganda or instrumentality—any use of private property that operates here to embarrass the Government by harassing its employees or to hamper it in the orderly, economic, and efficient administration of its many departments, becomes a subject, in the language of the Supreme Court, "clothed with a public interest" calling for proper remedial legislation.

The people of all the States are interested in this matter. No other plot of earth in all Christendom resembles the District of Columbia in its origin and government. Congress has absolute control over it. The laws will permit you to con-demn and take land for public and even quasi-public purposes almost anywhere under the flag except in the District of Columbia, where the executive, legislative, and judicial life of the Republic is nurtured and sustained.

Mr. Chairman, I desire to reserve the balance of my time of one hour, and then I shall yield to my colleague from Kentucky [Mr. Gilbert] 30 minutes, which he has the privilege of further yielding to his colleagues who are opposed to the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman reserves the balance of his time and yields 30 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. Gilbert].

The Civil War Volunteer Officers' Retired List.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. JOHN E. RAKER. OF CALIFORNIA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Saturday, May 27, 1922.

Mr. RAKER. Mr. Speaker, on April 18, 1921, in the first session of the Sixty-seventh Congress, I introduced the bill H. R. 4097, creating the Civil War volunteer officers' retired list. Similar bills have been introduced by me in prior Congresses. Every effort has been made to have this legislation enacted into law, and I have great hopes for it before this Congress finally adjourns. I submit a letter by Mr. H. P. Smith, which is as follows:

Smith, which is as follows:

YOLUNTEER OFFICERS OF THE CIVIL WAR—DISREGARD OF CONGRESS'S FIRM PROMISES TO THEM.

EDITOR OF NATIONAL TRIBUNE: In your issue of March 2 I read in the article by N. O. Messenger that "the drift of opinion appears to be toward passing the legislation (adjusted compensation measure) first, letting the payment take care of itself, and the claim is made that this will create a 'moral obligation' which no Congress and no political party can in the future dare to default upon."

No use in talking that stuff to an old volunteer officer of the Civil War. He knows better. I have before me a copy of the old Army Regulations which I carried through the war, in which I find extracts of laws passed by Congress regarding the enlistment of volunteers, which read as follows:

Regulations which a color of laws passed by Congress regarding the enlistment of volunteers, which read as follows:

"SEC. 5. Officers, noncommissioned officers, and privates shall in all respects be placed on the footing as to pay and allowances of similar corps of the Regular Army.

"SEC. 6. That any volunteer who may be wounded or otherwise disabled in the service shall be entitled to the benefits which have been or may be conferred on persons disabled in the Regular service."

This act of Congress was approved July 22, 1861.

Another act of Congress, approved July 25, 1861. Section 2 reads: "That the volunteers authorized by this act shall be armed as the President may direct.
"They shall be subject to the Rules and Articles of War, and shall be in all respects on the same footing with similar corps of the United States Army."

States Army."

Again, on April 28, 1904. Congress passed another act, allowing the President to retire any officer of the Regular service below the rank of brigadier general who had served with the volunteer forces during the Civil War with the rank and retired pay of one grade above that held brigadier general who had served with the volunteer forces during the Civil War with the rank and retired pay of one grade above that held in actual service.

This was a reward or bonus for his service with the volunteers. If the volunteers did the most of the fighting—which they did—why ignore them in this scheme of retired promotion?

Remember, Congress says they are to be in all respects treated as the Regulars.

Does this situation indicate that any Congress or any political party will now or a tany future time recognize any moral or legal obligation attached to the above acts of Congress in 1861?

Under the act of 1904 hundreds of officers have been retired, and retired at this advanced rank.

Has anything been done for the volunteer officer in recognition of his services, which seem to have been considered so meritorious in a Regular? Nothing. He is demoted, deprived of all rank, is getting a pension for old age (no special honor attached to that). Any fool will grow old.

With this treatment of the old volunteer officer of the Civil War as a sample of the binding quality of any moral, or even legal, obligation of Congress, the Legion boys will be a little shy.

Think they would prefer 50-cent greenbacks, such as were paid the boys of '61.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

JOHN S. BENHAM, HON. OF INDIANA.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Friday, June 30, 1922.

Mr. BENHAM. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks, I desire to insert in the Congressional Record the following comprehensive statement prepared by a woman of my (By Mrs. Florence Riddick Boys, of Plymouth, Ind.)

WHY THE REPUBLICAN PARTY APPEALS TO WOMEN.

Why the republican party appeals to women.

Whether we are of the women who have achieved suffrage, or of those who have had it thrust upon us, is small concern to-day. What does matter is the use we shall make of it now that it is to be ours.

Standing at the portal of politics, where government is in the making, a strange and little understood piece of paper has been placed in our hands. Its very unfamiliarity makes us a trifle afraid of it. But it is a thing not to be despised. It was purchased for us by the blood of our noblest ancestors. Since the beginning of government the peoples have wrestled and died in the age-long effort to wrenth the ballot—the say so—away from tyrants and aristocrats and to gain it for themselves.

With the progress of freedom, the governing power has been ever more widely distributed: it has nassed away from the few until it for themselves.

With the progress of freedom, the governing power has been ever more widely distributed; it has passed away from the few until we have reached that form of freedom in which each adult individual has a copartnership in government. The enfranchisement of women—the last class to share the control—marks the culmination of the ancient WHAT IS IT?

This ballot in our hands is the scepter wrestled from kings. It is a hereditary weapon to defend our country, our home, our rights against those who would encroach. It is an instrument to help shape this our ever plastic Government. It is a 'chisei to grave upon the tables of our commandments those high principles which we deem inviolable. It is a voice to make our viewpoint heard when great issues are at stake. It is a lever to lift the burdens from the backs of little children, to lighten the load for women in industry, to relieve the oppressed, to raise to higher standards the environment of us all. WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH IT?

The traditional functions of women have been wife, mother, sister, wage earner, purchaser, member of society. It is not probable that the ballot will greatly change our aims and ambitions. We will still endeavor, in a larger way, to accomplish these, our chief concerns, our voting will express our broader housekeeping, caring as well for the affairs of our community and our country as for those within our four square wails.

Woman's interest in the State is not new. A few women have always cared for public affairs. Roman women organized to secure desired legislation. Pericles, Caesar, Washington, and Napoleon not infrequently sought women's advice on affairs of state.

Mary and Martha were interested in the world awakening of their day. It is not the type of woman who is new; it is only that through our clubs, our charities, our large war activities we have awakened ourse iyes to broader sympathles and trained ourselves in tenmwork. We realize that obligation is only limited by the opportunity and the need. As we have not shirked our duties of housekeeping, so we will not neglect this, our real duty, of citizenship. Ninety-nine out of every hundred problems are sexiess, and their solution cries out to us as to our men.

We know that with that direct means, the ballot, our efforts will accomplish infinitely greater results; that where we helped 30 through charity, we may now help 3,000 or 3,000,000 through the Government. LIKE A SOLDIER.

Women care for the welfare of their country as true heartedly as does the soldier into whose unaccustomed hands Uncle Sam places a gun. When the time comes for action, he does not hesitate and debate: "Shall I use this weapon? It is new and unfamiliar to me. Let those who like this sort of thing take advantage of it. It is not of my seeking. My place is on the farm. I am a quiet, nonaggressive man. I do pretty well if I attend to my own business. I can find plenty to do if I stick to the plow." Our boys wasted no time in such dawdling as that. They accepted the new tool purposefully and sprang with it over the top.

So we patriotic women of America feel our handclasp tighten eagerly about the ballot. We are resolved to use it for our country with the best brain and best impulse God has given us.

THE WEIGHT OF IT.

We realise that the ballot of the humblest of us is worth as much as that of the mightlest. If a woman of conscience casts her ballot and some victous person does not, she has tallied one for good. If both vote, she has neutralised the ill. If the good woman neglects to vote and the evil vote is cast, then the good woman has stood indifferently by while an enemy of her country has given it a hurtful thrust.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE NONPARTISAN.

With that open sesame, the ballot in our hands, the doors of politics swing wide. At first glance within, we are confused by the manifold issue at stake. Great political parties sue for our favor. In doubt which to choose, we are tempted to choose neither—to be nonpartisan. We enjoy the new experience of being politically sought after—the feeling that we are not "lined up." But we must take a sober second thought: What is the ballot for?

As a free lance no woman can hope to accomplish anything. Our country is sure to be governed by one or the other of our two great political parties. Our greatest service to government can only be by helping to build up that political party which we feel is most able to direct its affairs wisely.

Nonpartisanship is the no man's land of politics. Giving allegiance to no party, we have influence with neither. Only by whole-hearted doyaity will we earn the right to help shape policies. To be non-partisan is to be non-minimum of the contentity.

THE WHY OF POLITICAL PARTIES.

THE WHY OF POLITICAL PARTIES.

Political parties are to give coherence to the ideals of a people. Without them the multiplicity of voices would result in chaos. It is a good thing to have in a political party men and women of many minds, some more conservative, some more radical, some placing emphasis here, some there, each contributing his viewpoint and making his demands; each claiming and guarding his rights; each relinquishing somewhat his personal preferences that all may unite in one swelling chorus on principles so big, so broad, so vital as to appeal simultaneously to millions of citizens the country over.

Myrlad-eyed, such a party will look well on all sides of every question. Its platform will be strong, sound, just, and wise. Its progress will be slower and less spasmodic than the ardent reformer might wish, but it will be steady and sure. Such party is big enough to embrace all of our several cuits. If these are important enough to make a wide appeal, there is always the chance that we may write them into our party platform. If not, it is the chief beauty of our free Government that no pet scheme of the few can be foisted upon an unwilling multitude.

PREEDOM OF CHOICE.

No woman should choose her party because her husband, father, or brother belongs to that party. If a woman's vote is to be worth anything, it must be her own free moral conviction and best judgment. There is no advantage in merely duplicating the votes we now have. When each vote expresses the viewpoint, needs, and ideals of its voter, then shall our country be the land of the free, a government of and by all the people, and each vote will be a contribution to the composite whole.

DORS NOT REQUIRE OMNISCIENCE.

In casting her ballot each woman may we'l use all the intelligence at her command; but voting wisely does not require a liberal college education so much as it does common sense plus attention to the main issues of the day.

Woman, overawed by the problems before the State and her limited knowledge of many of them, may be comforted by the assurance that only a few of these come before the people for decision at any one election. About these few, if she applies herself, she may readily become informed.

To vote intelligently women will not need to know everything about the tariff and international law. No man does. I was pleased to find the following from Abraham Lincoln:

"I do not know much about the tariff, but I know this much: When we buy manufactured goods abroad, we get the goods and the foreigner gets the money; when we buy manufactured goods at home, we get both the goods and the money."

Many of our bombastic economic terms are handles for truths as simple as that and as easily reducible if we look them squarely in the face.

Woman, who has been successfully wife, mother, seamstress, laundress, cook, baker, entertainer, educator, child trainer, and social criterion, will find the referendum no more difficult than the balanced diet nor politics than household management.

One by one as they arise these questions may be studied. No one needs to master all politics at once.

A HELPING GUIDE.

Because of woman's newness in the political field it is especially desirable that her inexperience be supplemented somewhat by party direction. Our ballots will be more certain to be well cast if we vote with the party whose judgments in the past have proven wisest, the party which has had most experience in guiding satisfactorily affairs of state, whose tendencies are in the main most reliable. Women know that this party is the Republican Party, and they feel its irresistible appeal.

LIKE CHOOSING A HUSBAND.

Choosing one's party is much like choosing one's husband; and no chit of a girl but feels herself, unaided, capable of doing that? In selecting the man with whom a woman will affiliate in all the purpose dearest to her heart she does not question explicitly into every petty detail of his opinion. She judges him by the big, salient features of his character. She asks herself not what are his views about the best cure for measies, but she satisfies herself that his motives are sincere, his character worthy, his judgment sound, his ambitions lofty, his industry unflagging, and his common sense evident. Convinced of these, she leaves the discovery of trifles to occasion. If he is the right sort, she feels safe in espousing him "for better or for worse," knowing full well that in the days to come he will use the same wisdom and resourcefulness that he has shown in the past.

PARTY TRAITS.

Parties, like individuals, have distinguishing traits. These may be easily found out by any new voter who will honestly try.

By these characteristics and not by their promises parties should be judged. To woman each party, the wooer, will now make its most pleasing appeal. Like a youth who, to the astonishment of his mother and sister, has suddenly become aware of his hairbrush and necktle, each political party will dress with care to sue for the favor of our sea. Her sultors will now represent themselves to have always had so high an opinion of woman as to have been willing to trust her—even with the ballot! Both will now claim to have always been creatures of sobriety, repudiating the saloon and the gambling den. Both will now pose as virile athletes, not "too proud to fight" for home and native land. But our memory is long. We remember that woman suffrage became an acute national issue in 1914, and was smothered by two Democratic Congresses. We women remember that when a Republican Congress came into power it passed the woman-suffrage amendment before it had been in session two weeks, and that of the first 24 States to ratify this 20 were Republican. We women remember that of the 36 States which finally ratified the amendment 29 were Republican and only T Democratic and that only 1 Republican State voted to reject the amendment, whereas 8 Democratic States so voted.

PARTY PLATFORMS.

It is a creditable thing for great political parties to state frankly the principles for which they stand. The party which is afraid to show its hand "open and above board" is the party "which loves darkness rather than light, because its deeds are evil."

Party platforms should be considered by every voter as guideposts indicating the main direction to which those parties tend. But to determine the real character of a party, its history is more reliable than its platform. Granting the sincerity of a party's program, its ability if put in authority to carry out the same into practical working laws is a factor to be reckoned with—its force, its capacity, its experience. In studying the platform of any party, another consideration, which may at first seem trivial, is really important; that is, What are this party's chances of election to authority? No matter how delectable an air castle a party platform may depict, its beautiful pictures are worthless blue prints unless that party gets into power to construct according to those specifications. Its outlook for success is not to be despised in deciding with which party one has most chance to be an influence for good.

THE G. O. P.

Loyal Republicans call their party the "grand old party"—the G. O. P.

The Republican Party has always gone before the people with a clearly defined program. There is nothing "gum shoe" about the G. O. P. The people have known exactly what to expect when they put the Republican Party into power. Compare this with the vaciliating policy of the recent Democratic administration, of which the people never knew what to expect next. Its "note" able uncertainty with Germany and Mexico were the chagrin of our Nation.

Throughout the history of the Republican Party from the beginning a consistent program and unity of policy has marked it. It has never been a "pussyfooter." The Republican Party has not only had the courage to make promises but it has had the finer courage to enact these promises into law.

THE RESULTS OF COURAGE.

In the past 60 years, since the birth of the Republican Party, there have only been six years of absolute Democratic control. During only 6 years out of 62 have both President and Congress been Democratic. Of the 14 Presidents since the Civil War, only 2 have been Democratic. Why this confidence in the Republican Party? Because that party has redeemed its promises. "You can fool all the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." The recent phenomenon of two Democratic administrations came about only because the Republican Party, in struggling to raise its banners to a still higher standard, split into two camps—for a time. This gave the minority party a chance for an inning.

WE DO NOT EXPECT PERFECTION.

Women do not look for perfection in choosing a party. The Republican Party is a human institution. It makes no claim to infallibility. There is glory in righting oneself when wrongs are discovered. By its mistakes—and these have never been serious nor long continued—the Republican Party has gained experience and learned wisdom.

A study of the history of the Republican Party shows that it has stood foursquare and true on the right side of every important issue for the past 62 years. One can not help but be amazed at its brilliant record of far-seeing statesmanship, of wise judgments, and of successful administration.

A PARTY OF GROWING IDEALS.

The Republican Party has been and is a party of growing ideals. Its standards have been and are becoming higher. Step by step the party has progressed and is still progressing. This is evident to the women of America, and it is this upward trend of the Republican Party which elicits their admiration and support.

Political platforms may sound equally lofty. No party ever laid before the electors a written program of vice, graft, extravagance of chicanery. The truism "what you are speaks so loudy I can not hear what you say," applies as well to political parties as to individually. Women judge the political parties by their personnel. What sort of men unite to form this party? What are their standards, characters, attainments, foresight, ability, and force?

Herein lies the strength of the Republican Party. Here is the answer to the query why the Republican Party appeals to women. Among its leaders, consider two—Lincoln and Roosevelt. Their spirit is bound to be the inspiration of those who shall "carry on" and usher in the still more glorious day about to dawn for the after-war America. Can women mistake in espousing a party thus inspired and thus led? If you wish to see Republican Party government, behold America? From Lincoln's inauguration in 1861 until Wilson's in 1913 there had been but one Democratic President and only two years of complete Democratic control. This 50 years of amazing prosperity and advancement is the product of Republican Party government.

PRESERVED THE UNION.

Born in 1856, when the Union was threatened with dissolution, the Republican Party stood for strong central government; while the Democratic Party clamored for State rights, even though they meant the break-up of the Nation.

PREED THE SLAVES.

Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president and the arch emanci-pator of the world, issued the proclamation which freed the 4,000,000 claves then in bondage in the United States.

HOMESTEADING.

When large stretches of our country yet lay waste and many of our citizens were broken and homeless after the Civil War, a Republican Congress passed the homestead law. This let out Government lands to settlers and aided in building homes and the development of the country.

SOUND MONEY.

The Republican Party saved the country a second time when the free silver peril endangered business ability and our sound financial standing. Our national honor and credit would have been ruined but for the Republican sasity, and we should have been disgraced among the nations of the world. Democrats themselves came to see the fallacy of 16 to 1 after Republican foresight had already averted the calamity.

MANDATORY FOR CURA.

Seeing Cuba fingrantly misgoverned by Spain, the Republican Government, without awaiting orders from any European league, drove off the oppressor and assumed the mandatory of that suffering little neighbor. With Cuba on her feet, her freedom was established. The same responsibility was accepted for the Philippines.

CURBED THE TRUSTS.

It was a Republican Government, led by that fearless knight Theodore Roosevelt, which had the courage to enforce antirust laws. These limited the power of immense corporations which were fattening upon the public.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

To assure justice to all in industry, a Republican administration created the Department of Commerce.

LABOR.

Employer's liability laws are due to Republican protection of the laborer. The Labor Bureau is also a Republican creation designed for the same purpose.

It is the tariff maintained by the Republican Party and opposed by the Democratic Party, which has built up American industries and enabled the American workingman and his family to live in standards of comfort undreamed of by the workers of Europe.

The Republican Party has always been the best friend labor has known. While others have sensationally prated of democracy and love for the workingman, the Republican Party has concerned itself about the building up of business on a foundation so secure that all who labor may be always employed at a profitable wage. Inscentity, uncertainty, and disorder are the greatest enemies the honest, industrious laborer combats; these have never prevailed when the Republican Party was in power.

PANAMA CANAL

To build the Panama Canal had been the dream of centuries, but it was finally abandoned as impossible. It remained for the Republican Party, under the leadership of the whirlwind of energy, Theodore Roosevelt, to show the world what American enterprise consisted of.

RURAL LIFE SURVEY.

Another of the really great, though less spectacular, accomplishments of Roosevelt's administration was the rural life survey and the interest this directed toward raising the standards of country life. ENDOWED SCHOOLS.

Naturally the Republican Party led by the greatest scholars America has produced, would devise some means to place education in this country on a solid basis. That was accomplished by endowing the public schools and colleges by revenues from the sale of lands of the public domain.

BUDGET STRTEM.

President Taft, careful fer public funds, felt certain that hundreds of thousands of dollars could be saved to the American people by applying a budget system to Government finance. He first urged a Republican Congress to establish it. The orgy of extravagance and waste which marked the recent period of Democratic control is too fresh in our memories to need comment. The women of America are painfully aware of the fabulous prices paid for camp sites, used and unused; the enormous sums spent on the ridiculous Creel bureau, on supplies not needed and never delivered, and in many other channels needlessly.

Among its early acts, the Republican Congress adopted the budget system idea, and began an instant curtailment of Government expense. There is no doubt that the party which has thus befriended this economy system will bring it to further perfection, to the enormous benefit of the public purse.

AGAINST PATERNALISM.

It has been the policy of the Republican Party to encourage individual effort, investment, and development of business, taking care that all citizens have equal opportunity and that none become so overpowerful as to encoach upon the rights of the proposed to discuss been the Democratic doctrine of paternalism, with its proposed to discuss the policy of the proposed to the proposed to the policy of the proposed to the proposed to discuss the deverment of the deverment of the deverment of the proposed to the people owning and operating the Government. It is a movement away from freedom toward a servitude to Government.

BATLWAY BEGULATION.

EAILWAY REGULATION.

Under what was practical Government control and ownership of the railroads under recent Democratic control, expenses were enormously increased at the same time the properties were permitted to deteriorate, and the service to the public became more expensive and more inefficient, until a threatened breakdown of our transportation system became imminent. The Hepublican Party worked out a law known as the Cummins-Each bill that met the difficult situation in the best possible manner it could be met at that time. Under provisions rates have been reduced from time to time, and our transportation system so vital for the welfare of all our people is saved from a complete wreck.

CONSERVATION.

CONSERVATION.

It is to Republican forethought that we owe our conservation policy. This withdraws from land grants such parts of the public domain as should be kept for all time for the good of all people and not parceled out to become the possession of a few.

By the conservation policy thousands of scres of forests, natural beauty spots, park lands, coal, oil, and gas fields, and water-power sites are reserved for the Government, and instead of creating fabulous fortunes for a few, the profits from these natural resources will hereafter go into the public purse for the further development of our country.

THE MAIL

Republican institutions are also the Rallway Mail Service, the postal trings bank, the parcel post, rural free delivery, and free city delivery. INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is of Republican origin. It applicates rates for the railways and thus protects the public against unjust discrimination.

Pure food laws, Federal meat inspection, honest labels, and many similar provisions are the result of Republican activity. Women, in their especial province of housekeeping, know that they can depend upon the Republican Party to enact such laws as occasion demands. Under a Republican administration we shall have coal to bake the children's bread and sugar to spread upon it.

PROTECTING THE CHILDREN.

The Children's Bureau was founded by a Republican administration under Taft. Republican leaders have ever given thoughtful care to the nuder taft. Republican leaders have ever given thoughtful care to the research of the recently discovered undernourishment too prevalent among American children.

Opposition to Federal child labor laws has always been centered in Democratic strongholds. Those States which have the best child labor laws are Republican States. The same is true of those States which have the most advanced humanitarian laws in general, the best laws safeguarding the morals of young girls and establishing the highest "age of consent."

THE MERIT SYSTEM.

Both great political parties have been guilty of practicing the spoils system—but not equally guilty.

It was Thomas Jefferson, the first great Democrat, who was the author of that famous excuse, "Few die and none resign." For this reason he began the removal of officeholders from office without regard to their ability or faithfuluess. In their places he put supporters of the Democratic Party, What Jefferson practiced moderately flared out shamelessly under Jackson, the second great Democrat.

In peace this is less dangerous than in war. In critical times the most capable men to be found should be put and kept in office regardless of political faith. Lincoln had a war Cabinet composed of three Democrats and five Republicans. Wilson refused to appoint a single Republican to his Cabinet during the great World War. Mothers whose sons paid the price of a victory won at such cost of partisanship had it hard to forgive Democratic methods. They can not help but wonder how many American graves in France are due to wholly in appropriate, inexperienced, and incapable men in high office controlling military affairs—how many are due to our tardy preparations and to our woofully inefficient conduct of the war.

For 20 years the Republican Party had been building up a merit system only to have it all broken down during the last 7 years of Democratic administration.

POREIGN SERVICE.

In no department is it more important that men trained by long service should be retained in office than in the foreign relations department. Diplomacy in many foreign countries is so shrewd and intriguing that a novice, no "matter how ardent a partisan, is utterly unable to cope with it and to serve adequately this great and dignified Country.

Taft kept our foreign service untouched by partisanship. Our country in Republican days commanded due respect in international councils.

At that most delicate period immediately before the war the spoils system, under Democratic auspices, filled our foreign service with new and inexperienced ambassadors at the various courts of the world.

THE TEST OF WAR.

THE TEST OF WAR.

Nothing shows up more distinctly the difference between the two great parties than their respective services in the late World War and in the cause of peace.

Republican foresight knew it would be impossible for the United States to keep out of the war and accordingly urged preparation. It won thereby the ingratitude of the unthinking and the pain of seeing a Democrat President reelected to office on the delusive slogan "He kept us out of war."

Even after war had been declared, in April, 1917, war preparations lagged and blunder followed blunder. Important offices were filled with inexperienced men—Democrats whom the President insisted on retaining because of personal or party loyaity, utterly disregarding the efficient service needed by the country in its time of danger.

It was then that the patriotic Republican Party rose sublimely above partisanship and stood by the administration in the prosecution of the war more loyally than the leaders of the President's own party.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO PEACE.

Even more valuable than its war work is the contribution which the Even more valuable than its war work is the contribution which the Republican Party has made toward the cause of world peace. This extends over many years.

One phase of its peace work is a long line of measures leading to arbitration. Carefully the beginnings of international law were being fostered under such respected diplomatists as Hay and Root. Boose-veit was a leader in the movement for a Hague tribunal. When the Russian-Japanese War threatened to spread around the world it was he who used his wonderful influence and brought it to an end.

That other factor in the preservation of peace, "the big stick," was not overlooked during Republican control. The Navy was at its highest efficiency during recent Republican administrations.

The Republican triumph of a completed Panama Canal is an inestimable peace contribution, as are also our great coast-to-coast railways. Our roads, inventions, manufactures, and business prosperity contribute to the cause of peace by making our country powerful and commanding the respect of foreign nations.

But the greatest contribution any party made to the cause of peace was the refusal by Republicans to go into a world league that would bind American wealth and our American sons to wage war in Europe over the petty quarrels engendered there in which we have no direct concern. This protection of Americanism is made complete by the Disarmament Conference called by President Harding and presided over by Secretary of State Hughes. Here the great nations of the earth wrote treaties to discontinue the rivalry of building armies and navies, to scrap a lot of the war material on hand, and when peace was threatened in the future to meet together and try and settle all difficulties with justice rather than by force of arms.

A third time the Republican Party has saved the Nation. First, during the Civil War, when State rights threatened to disrupt the Union; a second time when the overthrow of our sound currency would have shamed us before the world as a nation whose credit was gone; and now again by asserting our independence as an American nation, that refuses to surrender one iota of its sovereignty to the kings and princes of European and Asiatic countries.

Had it performed no other service for the Republican Party the everlasting gratitude of every man, woman, and child in America. But it has much in addition to that to its credit i

But it has much in addition to that to its credit in the very recent past.

After eight years of disastrous experience with a Democratic administration marked by wasteful expenditures, by Government meddling in private business, by socialistic experiments, by favoritism and inefficiency the voters of the Nation by a majority of 17,000.000 places affairs in the bands of the Republican Party under the leadership of Warren G. Harding.

The results are noticeable. When the Republicans assumed control business was at a standstill, our transportation system was wrecked, our farmers were bankrupt, our laborers were unemployed, housewives were finding the cost of living unreasonably high, Government expenses and taxes were at new high marks, and Government securities—Liberty bonds—were selling at less than 85 cents on the $1, our returned disabled soldiers were clamoring in vain for the hospitalization and care they needed but could not secure, foreign nations were flooding our shores with cheap farm and manufactured products to the ruination of our home producers, we were nominally at war, and distrusted by all the other nations of the earth.

What has been accomplished in a few months of Republican administration?

Two million idle men have been put to work.

Two million idle men have been put to work.
Government expenses have been reduced and taxes reduced almost a billion dollars a year.
Farm prices have been stabilized, so that farmers no longer face bankruptcy.
Business and manufacturing have revived.
Living costs are reduced.
Railroad rates are reduced.
Businesd veterans are cared for through a reorganization and coordinating of all the several veteran agencies.
Liberty bonds are at par.
We are at peace with the world and loved and respected by other nations.

WHAT WOMEN WANT.

What women want from their Government is the same as what men want. Both desire, above all, the welfare of America. We are not a household divided against itself. What affects man affects woman, be it a sound financial prosperity, child welfare, industrial unrest, foreign entanglements, or a shortage of coul.

Minor differences of temperament and training between the sexes are fast being lost sight of in the big needs of patriotism. Men and women love their country equally, and the chief concern of each is the best possible Government for this the best Nation on earth.

THE HOPE OF THE FUTURE.

Great and numerous problems confront America to-day; great and numerous opportunities will, under wise statesmanship, open up to her citizens. A glorious future hangs in the balance. The women of America, as they consider our splendid Republican history and our lamentable Democratic past, are wishing for a continuance of Republican efficiency to usher in the great postwar day.

The Republican Party is the party of straight, clean statesmanship; of leaders honorable in private as well as in public life. It is the party of sincerity of effort in public welfare, of brotherly love and human purposes, of broadmindedness and far vision, of loyal partictism, and of zeal for Americanism.

It is the party which believes that America, as the first and stronges Republic in the world, has a mission among the nations. In order to wield its rightful influence and assume this expected leadership, it is the firm opinion of Republican statesmen that America must guard well her own integrity and keep herself strong and free.

The Republican Party is the party of all the people—not sectional, not overbalanced by any class, faction, sect, or sex; conservative enough to be deliberate and progressive enough to move forward.

It is the party of experience, having inaugurated most of our great business adjustments and welfare movements for the past 62 years.

With serious earnestness our Republican Congress is tacking its stupendous task or reconstruction. Women feel that all will now be well with America. The party of their confidence is coming again into its own.

Women appreciate the frank and dig. filed welcome they are receiving into the magnificant Barnhillean.

Women appreciate the frank and dig. lifed welcome they are receiving into the magnificent Republical. Party—as fellow citizens, copartners, and voters, regardless of sex. The womanhood of America heeds the call to patriotism and to public service and is appealed to by the methods and aims of the Republican Party.

We are coming—we are coming, many millions strong—to join forces with the great Republican Party, the benefactor of the past, the stabilizer of the present, and the hope of the future.

SPEECH OF

HON. FRANK CROWTHER.

OF NEW YORK, IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Saturday, June 3, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 8996) to amend paragraph 440, section 5211, act of June 3, 1864.

Mr. CROWTHER. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Mr. Chowthen, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, we have just voted for the extension of the War Finance Corporation for the period of one year. I voted in favor of the proposition and believe such legislation is necessary for the relief of the farmers and stockmen. We were called upon in November, 1921, to extend the emergency tariff act until February of this year. It passed the House in that form and the Senate sent it back to us with an amendment providing for an indeterminate date. Those of us who are real protectionists were in favor of an emergency tariff will and we desired to play the protective tariff game sourcely with real protectionists were in favor of an emergency tariff bill and we desired to play the protective tariff game squarely with the agriculturist, feeling that he was as much entitled to protection as we of the industrial centers. But we surely threw discretion to the winds when we allowed that bill to continue in force until otherwise provided by law. I objected very seriously to it, but my good Brother FORDNEY patted me on the back and told me it would be only a short time before we would have a real protective tariff bill, a permanent bill.

But it has been a long time since then, longer than the period between libations that the Southern governors referred to in the heyder of the mint julep, and still we have no permanent tariff bil. In Washington and all over the country the importers, international bankers, and free traders have set up an insidious propaganda against a protective tariff. The United States Chamber of Commerce met here a week or ten days ago. That is a great representative institution. If you will look over the subject matter of all the speeches which were delivered at that convention you will find that there was not one address made that had any relation to the benefits to be derived from a protective tariff. Instead of that, the United States Chamber of Commerce members had to sit and listen to a thinly veiled attack on protection by Mr. Balfour of the British Commerce Association—not the Mr. Balfour who was here during the Conference on the Limitation of Armament, but another gentleman of that same name—and he suggested that perhaps England had made a mistake in enacting her recent tariff legislation, which set at naught all the old free-trade principles of Cobden and Bright and put a high protective tariff on some 7,000 articles, that act being known as the British Industries Saving Act, and it imposed a tariff of 33½ per cent, and on home valuation. Many of the great metropolitan dallies and some of the big newspapers throughout the country, from the tone of their editorials, the subject matter of which is tariff criticism, would seem to have sold their editorial policy for the price of their advertising columns. In the days of Pulitzer on the World and Greeley on the Tribune and the old standard newspapers you could not buy the editorial policy of a newspaper for all the money you could wheel in at the front door. But it is different nowadays. I wonder if the newspapers of this country are afraid of one legislative body in this Congress, or is that body afraid of the newspapers?
Mr. WINGO. Both.

Mr. CROWTHER. As a matter of fact, the delay in the passage of the tariff bill is being condoned by these newspapers. They are constantly referring to the delay by Congress, but never give the House of Representatives any credit for having lived up to the preelection promises and passing the Fordney lived up to the preelection promises and passing the Foruney tariff bill on July 21, 1921.

"America first" was the slogan in this administration, and we need the support of every real American in keeping the wheels turning in all our industrial plants. We need folks who are anxious to see printed on the goods they buy "Made in the United States of America." Those in charge of the b'g department stores in this and every other city are cautioned to present to customers first the French, the Saxony, and the English or other goods before they present anything made in America. I canacially prove the women of this country to remember ica. I especially urge the women of this country to remember their sisters who toll and spin fabrics of silk and cotton and wool and whenever possible buy the products of American labor. [Applause.]

I referred a moment ago to editorial tariff attacks in metrcpolitan dailies and desire to refer to this one in particular. The logic with which the New York Herald is attempting from time to time to speak with authority upon tariff matters may be measured by the fact that this writer of the leading editorial of May 22 reaches the remarkable conclusion that no matter what the gold value of the franc, it would always take the same number of francs to purchase a dozen pairs of gloves—the same number when francs are worth 9 cents in gold as when francs are worth 19 cents in gold.

As though he had not yet sufficiently proved his ignorance, the writer gives specific proof of this when he says a little fur-

" We see that the woman's glove costing 150 francs a dazen in Paris means, at a 9-cent franc, $13.50. " But when the franc gets up to 12 cents in American exchange value the gloves at 150 francs in Paris will cost $18. " When the franc gets back to normal, 19.3 cents, the Paris cost will be $28.95.

Groping around in a mental fog, this writer does not seem to have any comprehension of the fact that goods are sold upon their gold value; that $13.50 is very evidently the gold value of the gloves to which he has reference; and that the gold value is in no way affected by the ascendancy of the depreciated franc toward, or to, its par value, although ultimately there will be a complete adjustment of whatever "lag" by which wages have not risen in pace with the decline of the currency, and have therefore reduced the gold cost of manufactured products. Obviously, if $13.50 represents the real, or gold, value of the gloves, that price will remain about as it is now, and as the franc appreciates in value a reduced number of francs will be necessary to purchase the gloves—not the same number of francs, which would more than double the gold price. There was a time when the New York Herald was more jealous of its repute for mental honesty and ordinary intelli-

Now, I want to call to the attention of my Democratic friends a resolution passed by the Texas Bankers' Association at Fort Worth, May 19, 1922. The situation has changed in the South. The principle of protection has appealed to the business men of that section, and while it may not add numerically to the Re-publican membership of the House, still some of you men on that side will find opposition in the primary and the Democrat will win who stands for protection rather than free trade or a tariff for revenue only. The resolution reads as follows:

Resolution passed by Texas Bankers' Association in convention at Fort Worth, Tex., May 19, 1922.

Whereas the value of all securities of Texas banks, the price of every farm product, and the prosperity of the entire South is affected by the tariff measure now pending before Congress; and Whereas the tariff policy of the present Congress was settled at the polis in November, 1920, and we are going to have a protective tariff on the products of all other sections of the country, regardless of our political convictions on the subject: Therefore be it Resolves, That so long as the articles of manufacture are protected from foreign competition, that we insist on a protective tariff on vegetable oils, peanuts, live stock, meats, hides, wool—

That means goat skins, Mr. GARNERgrain, poultry, and dairy products, and all agricultural, pastoral, and mineral products that will equalize the difference in cost of production between this and foreign countries, and urge our Senators and Congressmen to support the schedules demanded by the various organizations authorized to represent southern industries, as submitted through the Southern Tariff Association to the Senate tariff bloc and approved by them.

Now, they have set aside a day for tariff in Texas. I have here a Fort Worth paper containing a resolution asking that Saturday, June 10, be set aside as tariff day, and that mass meetings be held in all centers of population in the State to secure an intelligent expression from the people, to determine whether or not certain raw materials should be given the same protection extended manufactured articles in the tariff bill now pending in Congress. This resolution was unanimously adopted at the final session of the Southern Tariff Association held in Texas Tuesday.

Mr. GARNER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CROWTHER. Certainly.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has expired.

Mr. WINGO. I yield the gentleman one minute more. Mr. GARNER. Will the gentleman tell us whether he is in favor of putting a duty on the skins that the gloves are

Mr. CROWTHER. We have to pay the duty on the wool, and we do not want to pay on the skin and the wool too.

Mr. GARNER. Would the gentleman vote for a protective duty on skins?

Mr. CROWTHER. Does the gentleman from Texas feel the need of such protection in his section of the country?

Mr. GARNER. I ask the gentleman if he would favor a duty

Mr. CROWTHER. I might be tempted to if the gentleman row Texas would vote for the tariff bill. [Laughter.]
Mr. GARNER. Why does not the gentleman say he is in favor of protecting the exins out of which he makes the gloves? Mr. CROWTHER. Well, I might give it serious consideration if a sufficient compensatory duty was allowed on gloves. [Laughter.]

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York has again expired.

The late Hon. Henry D. Flood, of Virginia,

MEMORIAL ADDRESS

HON. C. BASCOM SLEMP. OF VIRGINIA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Sunday, May 28, 1922.

The House had under consideration House Resolution 356, relating to the life, character, and public services of Hon. H. D. Floop, late a Representative from the State of Virginia.

Mr. SLEMP. Mr. Speaker, it is with a sense of profound sorrow that I rise to pay a few words of tribute to our departed colleague. His death came so suddenly that it is still difficult for me to realize that he will be with us no more. He was so strong, so virile that one felt his life would have been vouchsafed to us for many years to come. It is beautiful to have these exercises.

While death is the end of all mankind, yet when the grim reaper issues his summons we can not be philosophical. We give way to the feelings of sorrow we have.

give way to the feelings of sorrow we have.

The death of Mr. Flood is a loss in every sense in which that word can be used. A young and growing family needed the counsel and advice of a father. The home circle can never be complete without the father and the husband. In the great activities of life, in politics, in business, in law, in Congress he will be missed as one who was doing his part in life and doing it worthing. It will be difficult to either the contributer of the contrib doing it worthily. It will be difficult to fill his place.

I regarded him as my good friend. While we have differed in politics, yet in all the years I have known him there was between us the best of good feeling, of good respect, and good friendship.

He represented here in Congress one of the great constituencies, not only of Virginia but of the United States. It is a proud privilege to represent any district in Congress, but especially so a district of the pure Anglo-Saxon race that dominates that section of the State.

The tenth congressional district of Virginia has a political history almost romantic. It has been represented by a Republican in Congress, one of the ablest men our State has produced, Hon. Jacob Yost, of Staunton. It was represented at one time by John Randolph Tucker after Marshall, Virginia's one time by John Randolph Tucker after Marshall, Virginia's great constitutional lawyer, and later by his no less distinguished son, the present incumbent, Hon. Harry St. George Tucker. Both these influences Mr. Floor successfully combated, and he retained the regard of his people to the day of his death. His is the story of successful progressive development. He did not plunge into fame overnight; he did not flash successful progressive development. across the sky in some meteoric appeal; but calmly, fearlessly, he walked along life's pathway, gradually growing in power and in wisdom. His life was essentially political. He loved politics and he loved open combats. He would never refuse a joint discussion, but invited them. The hour could not be too dark when his party could not find in him a ready, able, and devoted champion. The Democratic Party in our State never had a leader or a member who loved it with more singlehearted devotion than did HAL FLOOD, as his friends affectionately termed him. I have thought that his greatest enjoyments came when in his party convention he was fighting for a friend or preparing some policy of his party. No one who heard him can forget the scene in Baltimore in 1912 when he electrified the great convention by his thrilling and brilliant defense of a friend. He could never all talls he and friend. friend. He could never sit idly by and see a friend suffer. Once he accepted you as such, he gave unreservedly his confidence, his counsel, and his comradeship. He declined a seat tendered him in the United States Senate to serve a friend, and he did it unostentatiously.

I attributed the great success he achieved to those qualities that make for success in every political life—loyalty to friends, courage of convictions, power of organization, and ability on the stump. Those qualities Mr. Frood possessed to a high degree. Had he lived longer, and he really passed away in his youth, it would have been to do greater service and accept greater honors. It may have been that death was stealing on him unawares, but his intimates say that it was brought about by unusual exertions in the State compaign of 1921. Following the frequent changes in political control, characteristic of our national life, the Republican Party came into power in 1920, registering an unprecedented victory. It was of such dimensions that its followers were stimulated in every State, and particularly so in our own State of Virginia. A challenge was issued to State democracy. This aroused all the fire and energy and the spirit of this inspired leader. The chairman of the National Democratic Congressional Committee, member of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House, and Congress still in session, he accepted the less conspicuous position of chairman of the Democratic State committee and proceeded to the management of this campaign, which was to be his last. He made the opening address of the campaign, he organized his forces as they had not been organized before; he went everywhere; if there was a weak spot anywhere, if a county was about to be shaken from its moorings, there was Floor in their midst, in the sweltering sun or burning the midnight candle, enjoining democracy to stand hrm, and they heeded his call. He overtaxed his strength and was suddenly taken from our Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

So it can be said of Mr. Flood; he gave his talents, his energy, his life, his all to his party, and he did it because he loved it, Mr. Speaker. I mourn his loss, I respect his achievements, I hallow his memory.

Present Economic Conditions as Affecting American Homes.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. ALICE M. ROBERTSON. OF OKLAHOMA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Saturday, June 10, 1922.

Miss ROBERTSON. Mr. Speaker, many years ago an unexpected call came to me to act temporarily as stenographer for a commission sent to make a treaty with the Cherokee Nation for the cession to the United States of a part of their landed domain. At that time I was a missionary teacher in charge of a school for Indian girls at Muskogee, Indian Territory. The work of the commission to whose assistance I went was very important because of the question of title to a large landed domain not open to either Indian or white settlement. The commission took a house at Tahlequah, and in the intervals of councils with the commissioners for the Cherokees we were left upon our own resources for entertainment. Our little force used to gather before a big log fire and beg the chairman of our commission to relate his experiences. That was before the days of the ambassadors; but he had been consul general and minister to several courts, including England, France, and Spain. Studies of labor conditions and questions of American pro-tection and foreign free trade had been a passion with him. He was a major general, whose empty coat sleeve and bronze button bore witness. He told reluctantly of battles, as brave fighters always do. It was in speaking of the battles of the sixtles he told us of foreign conditions.

AMERICA'S LASTING PROSPERITY LAY IN PROTECTION.

Southern born and southern bred as I was, it was from his lips I first heard the declaration that protective tariff was behind the conquering North, while free trade handicapped the gallant, intrepld men of the South. From him I first learned that America's battles, America's victory, America's lasting freedom and prosperity lay in protection. He was insistent that Amer-ica's greatest warfare was to be for her homes, to keep her people above the horrors of foreign free-trade laborers. that time free trade and protection have been my constant study, not from the standpoint of a lawmaker but of a plain American woman. Later, as my little school, with the development of the Indian community into a great State, grew into a coeducational college in which I taught civics, this question received even more intense study.

THE BENEFICENCE OF PROTECTION-THE PATALITY OF FREE TRADE. Solomon said, "There is no new thing under the sun," and from the times of Alexander Hamilton to Fordner and Mo-

CUMBER tariff has been covered in its every phase. To recite the history and the results is unnecessary, nor is it necessary to make any arguments on the beneficence of protection or the fatality of free trade, and to enter into a discussion of schedules and rates would burden you and me unnecessarily. After the many months in which I have watched, sometimes present at bearings of the Ways and Means Committee, where the interests of my own constituents were most vitally interested, I am ready to accept and vote for the pending bill. I am satisfied that it will be helpful to the country. Protection! Could there be a word meaning more to woman since the days of the cave man, when her master sheltered her frailer form with his cave man, when her master sheltered her frailer form with his brute strength? The instinct of woman has always been to accept the strong care of man, and so protection has stood for safety to the family, to the home, to the Nation. The idea beginning so long ago has shaped itself into police and fire and health departments; into laws for women and children; for health; for control of factories and safety for workmen; into life insurance and fire and casualty insurance. In our homes, in our journeys, in work or recreation, always the protection of life governs us. This leads into protection not alone of the life of the individual but of the opportunities for physical comfort and hominars of the masses. fort and happiness of the masses.

THE FIRST DUTY IS TO TAKE CARE OF OUR OWN.

We have all smiled often at the picture of Mrs. Jellaby dili-We have all smiled often at the factor of airs, sensing the gently sewing red flannels for Africa while her own children were dirty and ragged in the back yard. I refused to go as a missionary to India when my duty, I felt, was absolutely at home with the American Indians, whom I knew and loved. To me the first duty is to take care of our own American people before we reach beyond our immediate environment. This does not mean America should be a hermit nation—far from it—but America should not emulate the slumbering foolish virgins, NO ARBUMENT FAVORING FREE TRADE THAT HAS NOT BEEN COMPLETELY DEMOLISHED.

This thought came to me with great force upon the recent visit to America of that gracious and beautiful daughter of Virginia, the distinguished member of the British Commons, Nancy Langhorne Astor, who, in discussing comparative questions of British and American interests, spoke of herself as being 50 per cent American and 50 per cent British. This seemed to me hardly fair. She should be 100 per cent British is a member of their governing body, so I, 100 per cent American, can not take her fifty-fifty. Really, however, I do not think she is fifty-fifty British and American, because her viewpoint is oddertirely for the interesting of the proportion of the pro so distinctly for the interests of England and not America that she is 100 per cent British. And so we come to the methods of protection and free trade. There is no argument I have ever found favoring free trade that has not been completely demolished in consideration. If we had before us a health chart of American prosperity, such a chart as is made for hospital patients, and you could follow with me the up and down wavering line of depression and prosperity, it would startle you to see how this line has followed a protective tariff. There have been, however, those exceptions which prove the rule. Two free-trade tariffs, those of 1846 and 1913, did not at once show the inevitable disaster, because of war and its inflation of values, but the depression was only delayed, and of the last one we, as a country, now know the results. There is in the heart of woman, especially the woman who has had the conceded duty, always, of caring for the family and expending the support provided by man, the protector, a keen interest in making the most of what comes to her. It has been as great a delight to her to plan, as to man is the conquering of nature's resources. I do not like to say that the desire to get something for nothing is a strong feminine trait, but to get as much as possible for as little as possible is almost universal with womankind. have known women to use an hour of time and energy they could ill spare to go to a bargain sale where they might perhaps get a paper of pins for 2 cents less than the ordinary price.
One dollar and ninety-eight cents, instead of two dollars, sounds wonderfully seductive, and free trade appeals most to those with whom this often blind, unreasoning bargain desire is predomi-nant. We do not stop to consider cause and effect, what the balance will be, and whether seeming economy is not grossest extravagance.

DUTY IS PAID BY THE FORBIGN SELLER OR IMPORTER.

And just here, to bring the meaning of the words before those who do not hear but read this speech, a tariff is an import duty or tax laid on articles or lists of articles entering our country from a foreign country. The duty may be ad valorem—according to value; that is, a certain percentage of the value of the article or articles—or specific—that is, so much per pound or yard or gallon or dozen, and so forth. This duty or tax is paid by the foreign seller or importer or agent, and such revenue is paid into the United States Treasury.

A duty imposed on competitive goods-such as we ourselves can and do produce-to equalize the cost of production here and abroad and to prevent our being at the mercy of foreign producers is known as a protective tariff, while a duty on com-modities which we do not produce or do not produce in sufficient quantities for our use—as coffee, tea, sllk, and so forth—is called a revenue tariff. The Democratic free-trade contention is that a low tariff which admits foreign goods freely is a revenue tariff, although it has been our experience that such a tariff does not give us as much revenue as does a protective PRACTICAL FREE TRADE.

With no tariff whatever we should have absolute free trade. But the term "free trade" should also be applied to the operation of a tariff so low as not to prevent the unchecked importations of competitive products. If, for instance, a duty of 20 per cent or 20 cents is necessary to equalize the cost of productions of the cost of the c duction here and abroad, a duty of 19 per cent or 19 cents results in practical free trade.

To be protective a duty must give us at least an equal chance in our own markets with the foreign producer or importer. Tariff protection, therefore, gives us just what the term implies and is a synonym of patriotism.

There is a phase of protection that I have never seen fully elucidated, at least not by a woman. I think I am within the truth when I say that there is nothing in a woman's life quite like shopping. Wen do not know how fascingting it is. Mar-Men do not know how fascinating it is. the shopping. See to not know how fascinating it is, that keting may be a drudge, but shopping is a delight. The great department stores in our large cities are the most seductive places on earth. First, there is the appeal of advertisements of about everything in about every store "below cost." The men or women employed in reducing prices are unceasingly busy. And how we women fall for these "bargains." We do not stop to consider that if there are actual "reductions" and "below cost" sales there must be some tremendous profits to more than balance them, because of the millions and millions of capital invested in these stores and the other millions spent in advertising and like endless expenses.

I am not "knocking" these splendid shopping centers. They are wonderful institutions with owners who are very human who are in business for the purpose of making money. Competition is keen and unceasing; invention of methods and devices must be employed to gain and hold trade. Customers, too, are human and we all love a bargain. But do sellers and buyers always use a common-sense realization of conditions and results? I am afraid not. I am afraid neither look much further than immediate profits to sellers and savings to buyers.

IMPORTED GOODS PROMINENTLY ADVERTISED.

We are told that the imported goods, so prominently advertised and displayed, form but a small percentage of the total goods sold. Of course percentages vary, but the aggregate year in and year out must be enormous and never perhaps so great as now. It would be useless to attempt to reproduce their daily advertisements, but I will present one of recent date taken from a New York paper. It reads as follows:

[From the New York Tribune, June 2, 1922.]

IMPORTED GOODS DEPRIVE OUR WORKING MEN AND WOMEN OF WAGES.

Imported dress fabrics at almost half the regular price! What woman could resist? It is not a question of lack of patriotism or loyalty, for we do not think of that phase of it. We do not stop to consider that every dollar's worth, every hundred dollars' worth, every thousand dollars' worth, every million dollars' worth of imported goods that are bought displaces just that amount of American goods and deprives our working men and women of just so much wages. Combine the words "imported" and "reduced" and the "bargain" becomes irresistible.

ARE THEY REALLY BARGAINS?

But are they really bargains? Why, we are told that the profits on imported wares run from 100 to 2,000 per cent. Articles that cost 25 cents abroad sell for $5 in our stores here. A watch worth 60 cents abroad is sold for $25 here. A razor which cost only 3 cents is sold for $3, and so all through an almost innumerable list, from articles costing cents to those costing hundreds and thousands of dollars. The thoughtless woman who buys the imported hose or gloves or dress pattern little realizes that she may be contributing toward her husband's or son's or daughter's idleness. And so with all of us. We do not know. We do not realize what the continued buying of foreign-made goods may mean. We do not lack patriotism, but we are thoughtless or without intelligent appreciation of the harm we are doing.

PROTECTIVE TARIFF INSURES AGAINST IDLENESS.

And so we must be protected against our own acts: just as our pure food and drug act protects us against poisons or unwholesome food, just as insurance protects us against our own carelessness. And, mind you, a protective fariff is a national safeguard. It directly and indirectly protects us all, every man, woman, and child in every State of the Union. It promotes opportunity, it safeguards every occupation, it insures us against idleness.

Nor do we ask for a wall that keeps out all foreign products. We shall go on importing millions and hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of foreign products just as we have been doing for over a century. We shall buy what we want to buy of both competitive and noncompetitive wares, and we shall sell what foreigners want to buy of our productions. But with an adequately protective tariff we shall not be at the mercy of foreign producers as we are to-day. And we shall, moreover, be able to make articles as good in quality and as reasonable in price as the foreign goods now dumped in such enormous quantities on our markets. We lose nothing, we gain much. We are all gainers because we are so interdependent. An idle mill in Massachusetts means a lesser sale of the products of Oklahoma, and, as we are all here to represent our several States, I want briefly to plead the cause of my State, which was among the last three to enter the Union, generation ago we were an undeveloped Indian country with no white ownership of land and no lawful investments for capital; to-day we are a small empire, and we have passed over half the older States in population, wealth, and progress. are an industrial State in the broadest sense of the word. glory in our mines, our oil, our agriculture, and our manufacturing. We grow the corn of the North and the cotton of the South, and the value of our manufactures total nearly a half billion dollars annually. Perhaps no State in the Union has such a varied production as ours. For all these varied products and for all the workers on our farms and in our mills we want protection, the protection of a tariff against the products of the cheap labor of foreign countries. Unless you prosper, we can not prosper. Unless we prosper, you will not reap a full measure of prosperity; and so in pleading for protection to the labor and industries of my State, I plead for protection to the labor and industries of your States. We benefit or suffer alike and together. We are a union and are inseparable. TARIFF A LOCAL QUESTION WITH NATIONAL EFFECT.

Truly, as General Hancock said, "The tariff is a local quesbut with national demonstration and effect. grown in Oklahoma, if tariff protected, may be consumed in Massachusetts. Zinc mined in Oklahoma, if tariff protected, may be consumed in California or Florida or Pennsylvania.

Protection benefits every locality and every person. This idea seems to me not a selfish but a glorious idea, an idea that is exemplified in teamwork, whether in warfare, in work, or in play. And if it be right and glorious to die for one's country, it must be right and glorious to live for one's country and work for one's country and plead for one's country, just as we do, and should do, for one's State, one's community, one's family, and one's self.

OKLAHOMA WANTS OPPORTUNITY TO DO HER SHARE.

Oklahoma wants the opportunity to do her share of the Nation's work. I have said that our manufacturing amounts in value to half a billion dollars annually; our agriculture is of even greater importance. We have some 200,000 farms with a value approaching $2,000,000,000. The value of our crops, of course, varies. In 1919 it was $550,000,000. But then the war was over and we were operating under practical free trade and values fell till there was little or no reward for our farm-It was mighty disheartening to be able to get only 15 to 20 cents a bushel for our corn and corresponding prices for other Just what would have happened to our farms and farmers during the years from 1913 to 1921, had it not been for the World War, one does not like to contemplate, nor does one like to feel that even temporary prosperity is dependent upon warfare. We in Oklahoma felt the disastrous effects of the Democratic free-trade tariff of 1913 at once. To save the tenant farmers from actual want, when they could no. sell their cotton, the men joined the "buy a bale" movement, and we women pledged ourselves to wear cotton garments-a pledge well kept till war made a market again for cotton. And as soon as the war was over came again the withering blight with disaster we could not avert.

But on March 4, 1921, there came to the White House a protectionist President and to the Capitol a protectionist Congress in both branches, which gave us the emergency tariff of May, 1921, now still in operation, and our farms and farmers were saved from further disaster and absolute ruin.

PROTECTION WILL GIVE PURCHASING POWER.

But we not only want protection for our products, we want protection for our customers, and our customers are scattered over all this broad land. Our wheat and corn may be consumed in New England, our zinc in California or Pennsylvania or Florida, and that will give us the purchasing power with which to buy the products of New York or Illinois or Oregon or any other State of the Union.

Protection under normal conditions would quickly place Oklahoma among the first 10 States in industrial rank. I want to see all Oklahomans prosper. I want to see all Americans prosper, and we must retreat or advance together, and the Republican principle of protection is not sectional. It benefits every class and every community.

NOW IMPORTING DOUBLE.

I have just noticed that our national imports for May amounted in value to $254,000,000, 25 per cent increase over April and 25 per cent more than May a year ago, and this is in face of lower prices. It means perhaps that we are now importing double what we were a year ago and it accounts largely for the unemployed outside of those who are idle because of strikes.

We should not continue to be at the mercy of foreign cheap producers and conscienceless importers who are pocketing enormous profits at the double expense of American labor, for our people are not only losing wages but paying far too much for what they buy. The only remedy is a protective tariff that will check both importations of competitive goods and outrageous profiteering.

A HAPPY HOME WHEN WAGE EARNERS ARE BUSY.

My plea, then, is for the American home, for American women who can only make that home a happy one when the wage earners are busy. My plea is for American youth, with the opportunity for them in acquiring education followed by opportunity for employment at such remuneration as will enable more perfect manhood and womanhood and citizenship as the affairs of the Nation devolve upon them, carrying it to still greater power and glory.

CAN NOT PAY DEBT IF WE EMPLOY OTHERS TO DO OUR WORK.

What a pity to delay this splendid progress! It will take us generations to recover the losses of the war. There is a national debt of over $20,000,000,000 to be paid, and it can only be paid by the wages and profits of production. It is about one-tenth of our national wealth—but it must remain a burden till it is liquidated. We can not pay this debt if we are idle and employ others to do our work for us. That would mean going deeper and deeper into debt, till we become insolvent. Then, indeed, would our American standard of living, American homes, and American spirit all be gone.

DO MORE THAN MURBLY EXIST.

I want to see the people of my State and of every other State do more than merely exist. I want to see more and more American homes. Already more than half of our people own their own homes and millions of others are being paid for. I want those payments to increase, and it can only be done by doing our own work. The home is the very foundation of our American institutions, of law and order, of contentment and happiness, of aspirations and ambittons, of moral and physical advancement, of stability and the healthful growth of mind, soul, and body. We can well rejoice in our places of worship, in our splendid schools and colleges, in our legislative halls, in our fields for recreation and our places for work, and though we excel in each and all there is still no place like home, the substantial, comfortable, happy American home. Our song of songs extols this sweetest and most sacred place.

PREE TRADE NOT A HOME BUILDER.

But we can only have it if through work we are prosperous. It is not a product of idleness; it can not come by buying abroad what we should make ourselves. We need protection to enable us to buy our homes; we need protection to enable us to furnish them and maintain them. Free trade is not a home builder. Free trade does not give us carpets and pictures and pleasing furniture and musical instruments.

How eager we all are at the close of the session to get "back home"; how eager are the boys and girls at school and college to get home for vacation; how eager are the weary workingmen and women to get home after the daily toll. Are these loved homes worth working for, worth pleading for, worth voting for? We know they are, and my plea for protection is a plea for the American home—the basis of our American life, My plea is that American men and women shall have opportunity to build and maintain these homes—the basis of our fine manhood and womanhood and childhood.

WORKING WITHOUT SUBSTANTIAL REWARD.

My sister recently went on a cruise through the Mediterranean. She visited many countries and many cities. She saw the men and women of those lands working without substantial reward or aspiration; she saw so much misery and degradation, so much poverty and sorrow that she could not but think every day of the higher standard of living at home, of our opportunities and blessings, of our joys and happiness, and as she told me of her experience her constant thought was the contrast with our States and our homes of comfort and plenty.

There may be a few palaces abroad but the hovels are so many that it makes one joyons indeed to have been born in America, where protection has been a national policy and principle and made our lives to differ from theirs.

PROTECTION THE FIRST LAW OF NATURE.

Why, protection is the very first law of nature. Every bird, every animal protects its young. Even the savage protects his own; why, then, should we not do the same, and by example stimulate others to do likewise? Surely it must be a God-given attribute which it is our plain duty to observe. We are far from perfect as a Nation and as a people. This millenium is far distant, and for a long time to come the wise and strong must care for the ignorant and weak. Our fathers were wise in their day and generation, and built our industrialism on the rock of protection. Whenever we have departed from that principle disaster has followed in greater or less degree. There is no better lesson than experience, and we can do no better than profit by the teachings of the past.

BARLY APPROVAL OF TARIPP ACT THE REMEDY.

In fact, we can profit from the everyday object lessons that now confront us. Ships laden with foreign wares are coming to our ports from all parts of the world. Our markets are flooded with these goods, our newspapers are carrying the advertisements of the sellers who are reaping enormous profits and preventing American labor from being at work. Do we need any clearer lesson than this situation? I can not plead with American merchants not to offer these goods for sale. I can not plead with American shoppers not to buy them. No; there is only one remedy—the early approval of the tariff act now pending.

And now a word as regards revenue. A protective tariff always gives us more revenue than a tariff for revenue. Time was when the revenue from import duties made up about one-third of our total Federal incone. Now it is less than one-tenth, but every added million should mean a million decrease in taxation now so burdensome. We not only need this increased revenue, but it is a just fee that foreign producers should pay for the privilege of entering our markets. Our own domestic manufacturers and farmers pay heavily for this privilege. They pay in taxes—Federal taxes, State taxes, and local taxes. They pay in various other ways. Why, then, should not the foreign manufacturers and farmers pay as well for their privilege? There is no element of a protective tariff that is not just and equitable and righteous.

ARE WE READY TO ADOPT LOWER STANDARDS OF LIVING?

If we work freely with the rest of the world, there must be a leveling of standards of living. Are we willing and ready to adopt the lower standards of Europe and Asia? No, I say; a thousand times no. We can not raise them to ours; that would be impossible. The only way to elevate the rest of mankind is to maintain our own high standard and incite their emulation. The strong can help the weak far more by remaining strong than by becoming weak.

A PITY TO CAST AWAY OUR OPPORTUNITY.

Think for a momen, ...hat the United States has done for the world and mankind during a century and a quarter of progress, progress under and because of a protective tariff. If we had not become powerful and rich, do you think we could have done what our country and its people did in 1917 and 1918? Our American spirit rallied with our millions of men and our billions of money and the cruel World War came to a sudden end. Without our century and more of protection, which made us so strong, the result might have been—yes, would have been—far different, and our own safety menaced. I shudder to think of it, and I shudder to think of the consequences should we lose out in the coming industrial warfare and be at the mercy of the world. Oh, what a pity to cast away our opportunity, to neglect to fortify ourselves, to keep our markets open till we are dragged down to the lower level. How I wish I could arouse the women of the country to the importance of this question. They now compose about one-half of the voters; they compose more than one-half of the buyers as ultimate consumers.

THE TARIFF PRINCIPLE EASY TO UNDERSTAND.

And the tariff question as an idea and a principle is so easy to understand. Even the making of rates is one of equity and computation. But experts can attend to that, so long as the principle of protection is safe. Most of our women are home makers. We are a Nation of homes. Half our people own their homes, millions of others are making partial payments, and these homes are comfortable and roomy, well furnished, and contribute so much to contentment and ambition.

SPLENDID AMERICAN HOMES DUE TO PROTECTION.

These splendid American homes are due to the American system of protection, due to a tariff principle and practical operation that enables us to do our own work, and not only that but the best kind of work. Protection instills a desire to do our best, to go forward and always excel. This phase of our national life and work was so splendidly elucidated by the late Senator John P. Jones, of Nevada, in his most excellent speech, afterwards printed under the title "Shall the Republic do its own work?" that I could wish every woman and every man in the country had a copy. I do not need to attempt to elaborate this thought. It is so self-evident that we can not prosper if we are idle and employ the labor of other lands to do our work for us. We can not excel if we are idle; we can not go forward; we can not even exist.

A PROTECTIVE TARIFF LAW THE BEGINNING OF A NEW ERA.

I am so glad I am an American. I am so glad I am a protectionist. I am so glad to be able to go on record in favor of an economic policy that builds and maintains American homes. I shall ever be proud and grateful that I had the privilege of voting for a tariff law—a protective tariff law—to supersede the free trade act now in operation. May the day soon come when that vote can be cast for the conference bill, for that will be the end of free trade and the beginning of a new era. It will, I believe, mark the end of enforced idleness and usher in a period of busy times in industry. That means less poverty and sorrow and discontent; it means less strife and less strikes; for with the constant pay envelope and the adequate income, there will follow a desire for the good things of life, a desire that can be appeased—not longed for in vain.

And, best of all, there will be not only more happiness in the

And, best of all, there will be not only more happiness in the homes we have but innumerable new homes, more firesides, greater peace and joy and contentment.

PROTECTION MEANS SO MUCH.

Let me conclude with other expressions of my love for the word protection. It means so much; it does so much; it flusures so much. Protection for our labor and industries. Protection for our institutions and, best of all, protection for our homes. That will bring better citizenship, better men and women and a better Nation—a Nation that in its power and wealth will make a better world and enhance the welfare of all humanity.

Port of New York.

SPEECH

HON. WALTER M. CHANDLER,

OF NEW YORK.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Thursday, June 1, 1922.

The House had under consideration the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 337) granting the consent of Congress to a compact between the States of New York and New Jersey for unified control and development of the port of New York.

Mr. CHANDLER of New York. Mr. Speaker, in recent months it has been my great pleasure and privilege to report from the Judiciary Committee of the House two bills relating to the port of New York.

The first was Senate 745, which had been referred to my committee, and that was intended to determine the legal status of longshoremen. This bill was intended to carry out what the committee believed, after careful consideration, to be a correct solution of the problem of providing compensation for port workers.

Previous to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Jensen against Southern Pacific Co. no difficulty had arisen on this head, and the courts and administrative authorities had acted on the assumption that the State law could grant compensation to these as well as to other workers within the State. The Jensen decision held in the case of a longshoreman employed by a ship, who was injured under circumstances amounting to a maritime tort, that the compulsory compensation law of New York State could not apply. They considered that the cost of providing compensation in all the ports called at by a ship and the differing compensation laws in different States would be a burden on commerce and a substantial interference with the uniformity of maritime law.

That decision in the interest of uniformity for the shipowner overlooked uniformity for the workmen or uniformity for the large class of employers within the State, part of whose work was maritime, while the rest was necessarily covered by the State compensation laws and for whom the uniformity provided for the shipowner meant confusion and lack of uniformity. Since the decision in the Jensen case the courts and the compensation commissions have been confronted with many difficult cases well illustrating the confusion into which the Jensen case had thrown the various trades affected by the decision.

The confusion in all these cases resulted from the varying remedies depending upon the peculiar character of the long-shoreman's employment at the moment of injury. If he was working on a dock moving freight from one pile to another the compensation law of the State applied. If he was injured while working on a vessel, moving freight, his remedy was under the maritime law of the United States. If he happened to be injured while working on a gangplank, a kind of twilight zone between sea and land, both his status and his remedy were uncertain. To add to the confusion and annoyance, if the long shoreman happened to be shifting freight that was moving in interstate commerce, he had no remedy under the compensation law of the State of New York but was compelled to apply to the State courts for his remedy under the common law of torts.

The bill that I had the honor to report from the Judiciary Committee of the House on January 31, 1922, will, it is believed, meet the constitutional objection urged in the Jensen case and will provide a uniform remedy under the compensation laws of the States to all the longshoremen of all ports of the country. The absence of such uniform remedy in our judicial system has worked a great hardship upon a most deserving class of workmen, and I am glad that it has been possible for me to be at least partially instrumental in righting the wrong.

Mr. Speaker, the case of the longshoremen had to do only with the legal rights of a certain class of workmen at the port of New York. The present bill has to do with the future development of the port itself, and I wish to submit at this time a printed copy of my report for insertion in the Record.

[House Report No. 1039, Sixty-seventh Congress, second session.]
DEVELOPMENT AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE PORT OF NEW YORK.

Mr. CHANDLER of New York, from the Committee on the Judiciary, submitted the following report to accompany House Joint Resolution 337:

submitted the lonowing report 337:

The Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the resolution (H. J. Res. 337) granting consent of Congress to the comprehensive plan for the development of the port of New York as agreed on between the Legislatures of the States of New York and New Jersey, having had the same under consideration, report it to the House, with the recommendation that it do pass.

This resolution supplements and carries out the purpose of Senate Joint Resolution 88, passed by Congress and approved by the President in August, 1921. In accordance with the agreement of the States of New York and New Jersey, expressed in the compact between them, signed April 30, 1921, the legislatures of the two States have adopted a detailed and comprehensive plan for the development of the port of New York, as contemplated in said compact. The acts of the two legislatures adopting such plan are chapter 43, Laws of New York, 1922, and chapter 9, Laws of New Jersey, 1922.

This resolution was first introduced by Mr. Annege as House Joint Resolution 283 and submitted to the Secretary of War, who recommended some amendments thereto. The resolution was then reintroduced by him in somewhat modified form, and with these amendments added no change was made in the effect of the resolution, except to modify it so as to comply with the recommendations of the Secretary of War.

As this resolution only carries out more in detail what was sought to be accomplished by Senate Joint Resolution 88, the reasons for the passage of that resolution apply likewise as reasons for passing this resolution. I submit the following excerpt from the report on that resolution. I submit the following excerpt from the report on that resolution:

"Historically, geographically, and commercially New York and the industrial districts in the northern part of New Jersey constitute a single unit, a great metropolitan district of more than 8.000,000 people. The port of New York, with its three entrances, 800 miles of water front, 12 railroads—exclusive of local transit lines—entering the port, a terminus of nearly all of the more important trans-Atlantic lines not only concern the people of the two States but constitutes an asset of the entire Nation. The necessity of creating the port district and authorizing the creation of the port authority is manifest from the fact that over 40 municipalities are involved, some of them controlled by men of diverger's views and many of them working at cross-purposes and in the dark.
"The port of New York is one of the main arteries and principal and in the dark. The port of New York is one of the main arteries and principal gateways between the United States and the markets of the world and any improvement to the port of New York will work a benefit to the entire Nation. Concededly the terminal factivities at the port are grossly inadequate, mainly due to the lack of cooperation between the wo States of New York and New Jersey. It is submitted that a unified authority and control will bring order out of chaos and afford a blessing not only to the contiguous municipalities but also to the country at large.

Speaking of improvements sought to be authorized by this plan, Hon. John W. Weeks, Secretary of War, among other things, made this gatatemat:

Hon. John W. Weeks, Secretary of War, among other things, made this statement:

"The adequate improvement and development of port facilities at New York is a deserving enterprise, and if the work is accomplished on the comprehensive plan of cooperation contemplated by the two States it will doubtless result in benefit to the transportation interests of the entire Nation. I recommend, therefore, that Congress give its consent to the agreement."

It is of pressing importance that this resolution be passed in the very near future, so that the work sought to be accomplished under it can be initiated at once. There is very great need for this improvement. A great deal of criticism has been directed against this port because of the difficulty experienced in entering and leaving it. It is believed that if the improvement contemplated under this resolution can be carried out it will be of great service not only to New York City but to the country generally.

Needless to say to you, my colleagues, that the constitutional requirement of the consent of Congress to a compact between two States is to be found in the following language of Article I, section 10. of the Constitution:

No State shall, without the consent of Congress, enter into an agreement or compact with another State.

The States of New York and New Jersey entered into an agreement which was signed by them on April 30, 1921. In accordance with the compact so entered into by them the legislatures of the two States have adopted a detailed and compre-hensive plan for the development of the port of New York, and now they come asking the consent of Congress under the constitutional provision just mentioned. There is no reason why this consent should not be given. unified control under a legally constituted port authority will accrue enormously to the advantage and benefit not only of the States immediately concerned but to the entire Nation as well. New York harbor belongs primarily to the States of New York and New Jersey, but every State in the Union has a direct interest in its development and control. It is the great port of entry for foreign goods destined for every State of the Republic, and through it and from it our manufactured goods and raw material go out to all the world. In other words, more through New York Harbor. In 1914, the year of the beginning of the Great War—that is, the last normal year of foreign commerce—8,400 vessels, with a capacity of 24,000,000 net tons, cleared from the port of New York. In that year 45,000,000 tons of freight, exclusive of that carried in Hudson River and Sound vessels, entered or left the port of New York.

than 50 per cent of the foreign commerce of our country passes

The purpose of the compact between the States of New York and New Jersey is to effect a joint control and to execute an intelligent plan of development and maintenance of the port of New York. Heretofore there seems to have been a complete lack of cooperation between the two States, and the result has been a very costly and damaging confusion, especially in matter of freight shipments, causing a very bad congestion in the matter of the receipt and distribution of foodstuffs in New York City and the surrounding country.

The terminal facilities at the port are not only antequated but are wholly inadequate at the present time to meet the demands of modern commerce. The result is not only a great loss at times to shippers from other States to New York of their perishable products but a great increase in the cost of living to the people of New York City due to insufficient ter-minal and transportation facilities. It is a distressing fact that it now costs a great deal more to move foodstuffs from the meadows of New Jersey to Brooklyn, Queens, Upper hattan, and the Bronx than it does to transport it from Illinois and other mid-western States to the meadows of New Jersey.

An intelligent development of the port of New York under a unified control will completely change these intolerable conditions and will materially lessen the high cost of living by materially decreasing transportation charges

The detailed plans proposed by this bill provide for simplifying transportation methods by providing bridges, terminals, tunnels, and belt lines which will connect New York City immediately with the great transcontinental railways. In this way congestion in freight shipments and delay in distributing food to the people of New York will be avoided.

The plans submitted further provide for unified termina's within the port and for a consolidation of shipments from certain points. In this way congestion and duplication of work will be eliminated and long truck hauls avoided, with a natural and consequent decrease in the cost of living as a result of cheaper food products.

Mr. Speaker, this compact between the States of New York and New Jersey and the resulting detailed plans for the development of the port of New York have been the results of alternating rivalry and attempts at conciliation and cooperation between the two States extending over several years. At times quite a degree of bitterness has been aroused. Each State has sought on occasion to vindicate its rights by judicial action. has sought on occasion to vindicate its rights by judicial action. New Jersey once sought to secure a differential in its favor against New York, and at another time, in the celebrated harbor-pollution case, New York went so far as to sue New Jersey in the United States Supreme Court. Crimination and recrimination characterized the proceedings, as each State charged the other State with polluting the waters of the harbor. The Supreme Court, playing the rôle of a good mother between two naughty children, advised both States to get together some way and agree upon an intelligent plan for the solution of the harbor-pollution difficulty. The same advice seems to have been given in the rate case by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The result has been this compact between the States of New York and New Jersey.

However, no agreement was reached until the matter had been submitted to a referendum of the peoples of the two States through party platforms at a general election.

The Republican Party at its unofficial convention held at Saratoga on July 28, 1920, inserted the following plank in its platform of principles:

A progressive plan of future improvement of harbor facilities must be adopted in cooperation with the State of New Jersey.

We therefore favor a compact or agreement with our sister State which will provide for the creation of a port district and a port authority with adequate powers to develop this port comprehensively.

Similarly the Democratic Party, at its unofficial convention held at Saratoga Springs on August 4, 1920, declared in its party platform as follows:

We owe it to the Nation to organize and develop the port of New York. To that end we favor a compact or agreement with our sister State, New Jersey, which shall provide for the creation of a port district and a port authority with adequate powers to develop the protect omprehensively, and with proper protection for New York City over the public ownership and development of its water front and commercial facilities.

It may be added that both political parties in New Jersey made similar platform declarations. And to illustrate further the nonpartisan character of the whole matter, I need only mention that the Republican Governor of New York, Hon. Nathan Miller, has appointed the former Democratic Governor of New York, Hon. Alfred E. Smith, one of the members of the port authority to represent New York.

It will thus be seen, Mr. Speaker, that this compact has not only the sanction of the sovereign people of two great States, expressed at the ballot box and through their representatives the celebrative groundlike. in legislative assemblies, but it has also been tacity approved in the advice given by two great Federal agencies—the Supreme Court of the United States and the Interstate Commerce Com-Since the Constitution permits such an agreement, mission. what serious objection, then, can be made to its ratification by an act of Congress? I submit that there is none. The bill has been so skillfully drawn that the relative rights of municipalities, of States, and of the Nation are all duly protected. It is especially stipulated in the agreement that property belonging to any city or municipality can not be taken without the consent of that city or municipality. The sovereign political as well as the property rights of the States of both New Jersey and New York are rigidly safeguarded, and the resolution itself provides that nothing contained in it shall be construed as impairing or destroying any right or jurisdiction of the Federal Government over the territory or subject matter which forms the basis of the compact.

Several features of the bill were suggested by Secretary of War Weeks as a proper protection to the Federal Government, and provisions embodying these suggestions were incorporated in the hill. The chief of these provisions may be found on page 13, and runs as follows:

No bridges, tunnels, or other structures shall be built across, under, in any waters of the United States, and no change shall be made a the navigable capacity or conditions of any such waters until the lans therefor have been approved by the Chief of Engineers and the ecretary of War.

Mr. Speaker, it is quite natural that I and every other New York Representative should very keenly desire the passage of this resolution. It is a forward step in the direction of the solution of a vexed problem of several years standing. Its direct result will be the beginning of the development of the port of New York in a manner that can bring only good to the people of the great city that have honored us with their suffrage and have commissioned us to represent them here. But the interest in this project should not be confined to the New York representation in Congress. New York City, it must be remembered, is not local but national and international. It belongs primarily to the people of New York State; secondarily, to the people of our common country; and, in a more remote degree, to the people of all the earth.

New York City is certainly the metropolis of America, and probably of the whole world. If a 19-mile radius be applied to greater New York, as the same is applied to greater London, the population of New York City would be 7,600,000, or nearly a half million more than London.

In its march of thousands of years the race has encircled the globe and entered this its last promised land, containing every condition of national greatness, prosperity, and perpetuity, Every tribe of earth has made to our national population its contribution of men, women, and children, and New York City has been the gateway through which the people of other lands have come to mingle and dwell with us. In passing:through the gateway many hundreds of thousands have lingered for a while and have then stopped to make their permanent abode.

Every State and every Territory of the American Union has made its substantial contribution to the citizenship of New York City. From Maine and Minnesota, from California and Texas, from Florida and Virginia, and, indeed, from everywhere within our borders, from every State of the great Republic, the best and bravest have gone to the greatest of all cities to live and dwell and die.

These considerations, my colleagues, should move you to an immediate passage of this resolution, for whatever benefits the people of New York City benefits the people of all the Republic, benefits, indeed, your own neighbors, relatives, and friends who have gone out from among you to dwell with us in the big city by the sea. [Applause.]

To Scrap Certain Naval Vessels.

SPEECH

HON. TOM CONNALLY. OF TEXAS,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Tuesday, May 16, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11214) authorizing the President to scrap certain vessels in conformity with the provisions of the treaty to limit naval armaments.

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, I hesitate to invade this discussion that has been conducted so notably by the two gentlemen from Virginia [Mr. Tucker and Mr. Moore], both of whom are learned in the law, and both of whose minds are filled with the traditions and the glory of that great State which has produced so many men eminent in not only fashioning but in construing the Constitu-tion of the United States. This bill I believe to be absolutely necessary to carry into execution the terms of the limitation of armament treaty entered into between the United States and the four other great powers. I am very much gratified to hear the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. Towner], whose views of the Constitution heretofore have exhibited evidences of elasticity, announce here on the floor that he agrees almost in toto with the views of the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Tuckes]. 1 was not pleased, however, to hear the utterances of the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Burron], who maintained the opposite view, and, while not in so many words conveying it, exhibited a tendency to view the treaty-making power as almost all-embracing and to entertain the view that a treaty made between this country and a foreign power could override constitutional this country and a foreign power count overfide constraints as statutes of Congress and perhaps even some of the grants of power under the Constitution. I recall, however, that the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Burron] about a year ago, when there was before this House for decision the question of whether or not the Congress as a Congress had the right to declare peace with Germany by joint resolution at that time, when those of us on this side of the aisle were insisting that that was a matter within the scope of the treaty-making power, the conclusion of the war and the making of peace, because it affected the external relations of the United States, because it affected our status in reference to a foreign power-I recall that the gentleman from Ohio, in seeming contradiction to the view he now maintains, asserted Congress could invade the domain of the treaty-making power and by joint resolution of Congress declare a state of peace to exist between the United States and

Germany. But what is the treaty-making power? There is to be borne in mind a distinction between the treatymaking power, in so far as it affects the United States, and the common acceptation of the treaty-making power as it affects European nations, and there must be borne in mind the difference in the character of the Federal Government and the character of foreign sovereignties. We must remember that when the United States was first fashioned, and before that time even, the colonists in dealing with international affairs still carried into their thoughts and into their polity the idea of European sovereignty. Under the European system each king was a sovereign, each emperor was a sovereign, and as a sovereign could negotiate peace, declare war, could make treaties affecting anything within the scope of his govern-ment. But when the Government of the United States fashioned its Constitution there were 13 sovereignties already in existence. Before there was any Nation there were the States, and under our dual system every shred of sovereignty that was not delegated to the Federal Government still resides in each one of the States or the people, and so while the treatymaking power by the Constitution was delegated to the Federal Government the jurisdiction of the treaty-making power was limited to the scope of particular powers which the Constitu-tion delegated to the Federal Government. So the Federal Government through the treaty-making route can not absorb any power which belongs to the State governments. For instance, no one would contend that the Federal Government by treaty with a foreign government could provide that slavery should exist in one of the States, because another part of the Constitution provides that slavery shall not exist anywhere within the confines of this Republic, So to that extent a treaty is not the supreme law of the land. As was well shown by the gentleman from Virginia, the Constitution provides that, first, the Constitution; second, the statutes of Congress passed in pursuance of the Constitution, in other words, a statute which is founded upon the power given to Congress in the Constitution—in other words, a constitutional statute—and, third, a treaty. How made? Treaties made just like an act of Congress. Treaties made under the powers delegated to the Federal Government in the Constitution. These things shall be the supreme law of the land. The treaty-making power is limited by all other portions of the Federal Constitution. For instance, Congress has the power to levy taxes. Congress has the power to levy tariff duties, and while the President of the United States might negotiate a treaty with a foreign power providing for the fixing of certain tariff duties or rates on foreign goods, yet until the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States and the President, functioning as Congress, should in pursuance of that treaty pass an act of Congress fixing those rates or duties at the figures provided in the treaty, the treaty would be inoperative or executory, as was suggested by the gentleman

Mr. STEVENSON. Will the gentleman yield?
Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. I will.
Mr. STEVENSON. Take the instance of land tenures. Suppose the Government executed a treaty, say, with Japan providing that her nationals would have the right to acquire in fee simple land in the United States, and the State, on the other hand, in which it was proposed to buy the land prohibited that thing happening, what would be the result of that col-

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. The gentleman from South Carolina has put his finger on a very troublesome question, one that is to perplex us in years to come. My own view on that question-and then I will give the court's view, which I am sure is better than my view—is that the Government of the United States, the Federal Government, can no more interfere or regulate any of the internal or police powers of the several States by the treaty-making power than the Federal Government can itself intervene and regulate the tenure of lands in South Carolina.

Of course, the gentleman from South Carolina will appreciate that the Federal Government has no right whatever to enact, for instance, a statute to in anywise fix the law of descent and distribution or inheritance in South Carolina. But there is a line of cases, with which I am sure the gentleman from South Carolina is familiar, regarding a freaty which the United States at one time had, I believe, with France respecting the right of French citizens, American allens, to inherit property within the But I think the gentleman from South Carolina, if he will thoroughly investigate those questions, will find that the treaty, under the decision of the court, was not held to in anywise affect the laws of the several States as to the descent of property, but that the only factor, that the only power which the treaty had, was to divest French citizens of the taint of allenage, which was set forth in the State law as being a bar to inheritance. In other words, the treaty did not affect the law of inheritance, but removed the bar of alienage. held that alienage or nonalienage was a Federal question, but inheritance was not.

Now, with reference to Japan. I really do not fear that question as a practical one, for this reason: In the case of Japan let us suppose that the Federal Government, the President and the Senate, should conclude a treaty with Japan providing that Japanese citizens, in the same language as the French treaty, should have the same rights to inherit within the United States that the United States citizens had to inherit in Japan. I can not believe that two-thirds of the Senate would ever ratify a treaty which would be so hostile to what is the generally accepted public opinion in the United States. I can not conceive that the Senate would so interfere with the State's right to determine that particular question, the question of inheritance of real property, even indirectly.

Mr. STEVENSON. If the gentleman will permit one other question. Take another view—and I will take not more than a minute of your time—if the United States negotiated a treaty with Japan or China guaranteeing that their children that attend schools should have equal schooling and have the right to attend the schools of the children of any other race in any State in this Union, have they the power to do that where the State itself says for the different races there must be different schools?

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. Unhesitatingly, my answer to the gentleman from South Carolina is that the Federal Government does not possess the power by treaty to regulate matters of that kind, for the simple reason that under our dual system of government the internal affairs of the States, the control, or the exercise, rather, of their police powers, the regulation of descent and distribution of property, of public education, and of the questions that affect purely the social intercourse of their own people, so far as they do not affect Federal questions, are absolutely within the power of the State, and the control over those questions was never delegated by the Constitution to the Federal Government, and not being within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, the Federal Government can not intermeddle with them by treaty or in any other way, because the power to meddle with them in any fashion was never granted to the Federal Government.

Mr. STEVENSON. That being the case, then, there is no one of treaty with another nation that can in any wise control the police power of any State, because the State itself can not make a treaty; only the United States Government can make a treaty, and therefore the police power of a State can not be interfered with by treaty in any way? That is the conclusion

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. That is my opinion. the gentleman better authority than myself. The Supreme Court of New Hampshire, away back yonder 50 years ago, held

The police power of the several States, regarded as separate governments, is not a subject matter to which the treaty-making power extends.

For the obvious reason that it was not a matter to which the power of the Federal Government extends. And not being within the power of the Federal Government to deal with it, the Federal Government can not deal with it by treaty or in any other fash-ion. The California Supreme Court—and this is getting closer to the Japanese question, although this was many years ago-early as 1850 decided that a treaty is supreme only when made in relation to those subjects the jurisdiction over which has been exclusively intrusted to Congress.

So we have here the decisions of two of the supreme courts of the States, in addition to the great array of Federal decisions, laying down the limits of the treaty-making power.

Now, the clause in the Constitution which gives to the Federal Government the treaty-making power is limited, as I said a little while ago, by other clauses of the Constitution. In other words, the Federal Constitution gives to Congress the power to admit new States, for instance, and under the power to admit new States Congress by joint resolution admitted the State of Texas to the Union in 1845. Mr. STEVENSON. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. Yes.

Mr. STEVENSON. Was not that because they did not have two-thirds vote in the Senate to ratify a treaty with Texas, which was an independent government?

Mr. CONNALLY of Texas. That is true, I will say to the gentleman from South Carolina; but that does not reach the question that Congress, under the grant in the Constitution which says Congress has the power to admit new States, had the power and the right under the Constitution to admit Texas by joint resolution irrespective of a treaty or any other considera-tion. Now, it might be said that the United States had the power to admit Texas by a treaty. My contention is that if that treaty had been ratified by the Senate it would not have had the effect of admitting Texas as a State into this Union until the Congress, which consists of both branches of the lawmaking body, should in some way have expressed its assent and agree-ment to the admission of Texas into the Union, just as we are here to-day by this legislation giving the assent of the House of Representatives as a part of the Congress of the United States to the execution of a treaty already made and ratified by the Senate. Congress having the power to "admit new States" must have exercised that power, or Texas, though by treaty a part of United States territory, would not have become a State of the Union. But I must run along. So the treaty-making power is just like any other Federal power, it must keep within the domain of Federal power. The most confused one and uncertain question relating to the treaty power is the one referred to by gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. Stevenson], and that is the inheritance of property in the case of the French treaty.

But the immediate question involves the objects and purposes of the limitation of armament treaty and the four-power pact, its handmaiden and companion through the Senate, the other branch of the lawmaking power. It has been the dream of all modern times, of statesmen and philosophers, somewhere in the future, in some future state, to arrive at a period when world might be able to set up some plan or some instrumentality whereby great nations might settle their disputes, not out on the battle field, but in the council chamber or around the council

It will be recalled that at the end of the Queen Anne wars, in the early part of the eighteenth century, in 1713-14, I believe it was, the Abbe Charles Irenée Castel de St. Pierre promul-gated his plan of universal peace. With all of the zeal and the enthusiasm of a soul that was anxious to bring about the regeneration of Europe, he promulgated his plan to the nations of the world. It involved not simply disarmament; there was involved, of course, the idea of disarmament; but away and beyond the question of disarmament was the idea of an association among the then nations of the world whereby their disputes would be settled by conciliation, by arbitration, by the canons of reason and of law, rather than by the arbitrament of the battle field. But the world was not ready for the adoption of such a plan.

Then we skip along for a hundred years or more, and Rousseau, that great Frenchman, proposed a plan for universal His idea contained an extension and a modification of those that had gone before; but that great Frenchman, who did so much to bring on the French Revolution, who did so much to bring on that great cataclysm which shook to its foundations every throne of Europe—this man Rousseau advocated another plan for universal peace. He denounced in unmeasured terms the theory of the balance of power. He had seen Europe embroiled for years and centuries under the theory of the balance of power. Two or three great nations would form an alliance or league, and then in order to offset influence and power another group of powerful nations would form an alliance, and playing the force and weight of their influence against each other, inevitably the clash of their ambitions would end in the shock of arms. And so he promulgated his plan, but the world was not ready for it, and it Then that great Englishman, Jeremy Bentham, in 1789 set before Europe his plan and advocated its adoption. He laid down as the corner stone of his plan, not disarmament—disarmament was a part of his scheme—but Jeremy Bentham laid down the proposition that peace could never be assured, that the reign of reason would never be satisfied until a common court of judicature could be set up to which the nations of the earth should be willing to submit their controversies and abide the decisions of that tribunal.

But the plan of Jeremy Bentham did not get anywhere. Then, within the confines of Germany, Kant, the great philosopher, gave to the world practically the same plans as those that had gone before except that he enlarged and expanded the doctrines of Rousseau and Jeremy Bentham. Kant said that the world can never enjoy peace permanently until the nations would submit themselves to the control of law and reason. As

A perfect civil constitution can not be established unless the external relations between States are regulated according to law, with reason supporting the law.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, the disarma-Mr. Chairman and gentlement of the four-power treaty is very good as a beginning, but in the four-power treaty I fear that we have fallen into ways that may prove troublesome. Instead of inviting all the nations of the world to form an association, to set up a tribunal such as has been discussed here, in which the humblest as well as the greatest might submit its controversies, the treaty has set up an organization of the four great naval powers of the world and excludes from the benefits of that treaty the small, the weak, and the defenseless nations of the earth. Being associated in a four-power treaty with these three other great powers, consequence or provided willingly or provided the small that the set of the small that the small that the set of the small that the set of the small that the sciously or unconsciously, willingly or unwillingly, we can not close our eyes to future contests in which they are concerned. We can not dissociate ourselves from them unless their attitude or their conduct places themselves absolutely without the pale of all reason.

The limitation of armament treaty goes a long way. I favor the naval limitation treaty; I favor this bill that carries out its provisions. Some of you gentlemen will recall that more than a year ago, standing on this floor, I offered an amendment to the naval appropriation bill providing that the President of the United States should issue an invitation to all the nations of the earth to enter into a disarmament treaty.

You will remember that there stood upon this floor the majority leader, Mr. Mondral, of Wyoming, and that he sought to make a point of order and to have the amendment discarded; that being unsuccessful, you will remember how it was overwhelmed with votes. But later on there was incorporated in that bill in the Senate an amendment which made possible the calling of the Disarmament Conference and the agreement to the treaty that we have under discussion now. But we have only gone a little way. We have only scratched the surface of this question of disarmament. You will never secure peace merely by agreeing to carry one pistol instead of two. shall never learn to settle international disputes in peace until we set up somewhere an agency for settling the question about which men fight. Great nations may fight with small armaments and small navies. Though the carnage may not be as it will be prolonged, perhaps, for a longer period of time, and in the aggregate may bring more suffering than if great armies and navies should quickly bring the issue to a settlement. The League of Nations, in whose creation the United States, through our great President, Woodrow Wilson, had so large a part, is now undertaking to meet its high conception; but the United States stands aloof. We owe it to the world to enter the league with reservations and amendments or to create a new agency that shall lead the way to peace in honor and with justice. And so I trust that the President of the United States may not hesitate to go forward with the ambitious program which he has proclaimed as being his ultimate goal, but that this is only the beginning, and a small beginning at that. I trust that the President of the United States may not content himself with associating this Nation with the great nations which are signatory to this treaty, but the association of nations which is his goal may ultimately be brought into being and that the United States may participate not only with the four nations named in the Pacific pact, but that we may invite to the council board all the nations of the earth, in order that the small and weak ones as well as the great and powerful may be able to lay down their arms, not because some treaty requires them to do so but because they are able to settle their disputes according to law and reason, and have no necessity for arms to wage a war that can not come out of a controversy that has been settled in peace, amity, and good will. [Applause.]

The Tariff and the Dye Industry.

SPEECH

HON. WILLIAM H. KING. OF UTAH,

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,

Thursday, June 1 (legislative day of April 20), 1922,

The Senate had under consideration the bill (H. R. 7456) to pro-de revenue, to regulate commerce with foreign countries, to encourage e industries of the United States, and for other purposes.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. Freeinghusen] has presented certain conclusions and an eloquent presentation in general terms. I regret, however, that he has not submitted facts or reasons for the conclusions which he draws. He does not submit reasons for rates which practically amount to an embargo upon dyes and intermediates and which appear in paragraphs 25 and 26 of this bill. As Senators have perceived, these paragraphs provide exceedingly high rates of duty—60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound upon the finished dyes and 50 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound upon intermediates.

Mr. President, these rates are entirely too high, even from the standpoint of the extreme protectionist; and I now move to amend paragraph 25, page 10, line 17, by striking out the numerals "50" and inserting in lieu thereof the numerals "30." Perhaps I can reach the same result by moving a disagreement to the committee amendment. I am seeking to reduce the rate as suggested by the bill from 50 per cent ad valorem upon the intermediates to 30 per cent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Ladd in the chair). The question is on exceeping to the committee amendment.

question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, at the proper time I shall move to strike out, in line 18, the word "and" and the numeral "7," so as to complete the amendment which I have offered.

The Senator from New Jersey has argued that there was no dye industry in the United States prior to the war, and that the high rates found in paragraphs 25 and 26 are imperatively the high rates found in paragraphs 25 and 25 are imperatively required in order that the dye industry, which has now assumed immense proportions, shall be permitted to continue; in addition he insists that an embargo should be placed upon all coaltar products, as well as upon all synthetic organic chemical compounds. When we reach that part of the bill dealing with the embargo I shall have something to say concerning it. Permit me to add in passing that the principle of an embargo, even to high protectionists, is obnoxious, because they can see that it may eventually destroy the protective system.

If high protection or prohibition of imports is to be effected by embargoes, then efforts will be directed toward formulating embargo bills instead of tariff measures. If an embargo upon one commodity or an allied group of commodities can be imposed, then other greedy interests will seek embargoes. procedure would discredit any rational or fair scheme of protection and ultimately create such a revulsion toward the entire policy of protection as to threaten its destruction.

It is true there are some protectionists, and members of his school are found in this Chamber, who would exclude all imports, or at least exclude commodities and products of every kind and character that possibly can be produced in the United States. The suggestion has been made by foolish extremists that we should grow tea and tropical fruits and products not indigenous to our soil in the United States, notwithstanding that their development would compel enormous capital and the returns would not be commensurate with the investment or the labor cost involved. Such a view belongs to the prehistoric age. It is in keeping with a blind and reactionary policy incompatible with the progress of this century.

The theory of protection, as I understand it, contemplates legitimate and fair competition. It proceeds upon the theory that there shall be sufficient tariff to enable the domestic manufacturer to fairly compete with the foreign manufacturer. But an embargo negatives the idea of a tariff for protection; it rests upon the view that the domestic producer shall have the exclusive market though it results in a monopoly. lates the country adopting a general embargo policy and destroys its foreign trade and commerce. No wonder that reputable newspapers in the United States, of the Republican faith, refuse to approve of the pernicious embargo policy. Leading Republican economists denounce embargoes as they oppose what they call "free trade." They perceive that embargoes will destroy any fair protective policy, and appreciate that if embargoes are extended to one industry they will provoke demands from other industries for like legislation. The Senator from New Jersey contends that no tariff can afford adequate protection to coal-tar products. His idea seams to be they are sui generis, subject to no law and incapable of being protected by any tariff bill that may be framed. Mr. President, those adopting this view will have difficulty in convincing the public that coal-tar products are to be differentiated from other commodities manufactured in the United States and elsewhere. In my opinion the record is clear that if protection is desired for coal-tar products, rates may be provided that will not only afford protection, but indeed may result in the prohibition of imports.

The House of Representatives, which can not be accused of being favorable to temperate tariff rates, repudiated the idea of an embargo. It placed in the bill tariff duties so high as to practically turn over to the domestic producers a monopoly upon the dyestuff industry.

Following the war, when hysteria and lack of information produced irrational measures, an embargo bill, temporary in character, was passed. Misrepresentations were made as to conditions in Germany and particularly as to the quantity of dyes on hand in Germany. Doctor Herty and other propagadists and lobbyists, representing the lomestic dye manufacturers, represented to the American people and to Congress, that Germany had such an abundance of dyes on hand, that she would flood the world and destroy the dye industry of the United States and other countries. Owing to the false claims made, Congress was induced to place an embargo on dyes. But the bill went further, as it is interpreted by the Treasury Department. The emergency tariff bill which contains the embargo provisions, placed synthetic organic compounds upon the embargo list and made it impossible to import them into the United States, except under an obnoxious, oppressive, and bureaucratic system.

When the emergency tariff bill was pushed through the Senate, under whip and spur, I am sure the understanding of the overwhelming majority of Senators was that its provisions, so far as they related to the commodities embraced within the two paragraphs under consideration, referred only to dyestuffs. No one dreamed that camphor, for instance, which is now made as a synthetic compound, and many others which might be enumerated, were to be covered by this general embargo.

I stated some days ago indirectly in the discussion of this chemical schedule, that a fraud was perpetrated upon the Senate and upon the country in the emergency tariff bill with respect to medicinals and synthetic compounds which may not be classified as dyes. I have nothing to retract with respect to that statement.

I come now to these two paragraphs, and I want to briefly discuss them.

The duties imposed on coal-tar intermediates in paragraph 24 and upon coal-tar products in paragraph 26 of the chemical schedule in the pending bill present one of the most objectionable and unjustitiable features of the bill. The hearings before the Senate committee are void of any facts or representations upon which the unprecedented increase in the rate from 30 per cent ad valorem to 50 per cent ad valorem on the intermediates designated in paragraph 25, and the increase from 35 per cent to 60 per cent ad valorem on the coal-tar products within paragraph 26, were made by the Finance Committee of the Senate, But these are not the only objectionable features of these paragraphs. The Senate committee has also brought in a provision that the specific duty of 7 cents per pound shall be imposed upon "a standard of strength" for each article which shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, which shall conform to the lowest commercial strength in use in the United States prior to July 1, 1914; and the Senate committee further brings in an amendment which includes within these obnoxious provisions the synthetic acids in paragraph 1.

I shall be glad if my colleague or other members of the committee would advise me if my interpretation of this part of the section is correct, because if it is, then this is more than a

Mr. SMOOT. My attention was called to another matter. I would like to have my colleague repent his last statement.

Mr. KING. The Senate committee has also reported a provision that the specific duty of 7 cents per pound shall be imposed upon "a standard of strength" for each article which shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, which shall conform to the lowest commercial strength—that is the interpretation which I think can be placed upon the language-in use in the United States prior to July 1, 1914.

Mr. SMOOT. That is where there is more than one chemical strength.

Mr. KING. The Senate committee reports an amendment which includes within its obnoxious provisions the synthetic acids in paragraph 1, the miscellaneous articles in paragraph 5, the synthetic esters and ethers in paragraph 35, the synthetic flavoring extracts in paragraph 37, the synthetic aromatic and odoriferous chemicals and perfumes in paragraph 56, the synthetic stains and colors for paints in paragraph 63, the synthetic hydrosulphite compounds in paragraph 79, and the synthetic products used in gunpowder in paragraph 1578. Mr. SMOOT. I think the Senator has put the wrong construction on this provision. The provision referred to by my colleague is as follows:

Provided further, That any article or product which is within the

That is, acid.

That is, chemicals,

Thirty-five

Ethers and esters.

Thirty-seven-Flavors.

Fifty-six-

Perfumes.

Sixty-three Colors not specially provided for.

Certain mixtures.

Or 1578

Explosives.

As well as within the terms of paragraph 25-

That is, intermediates,

Twenty-six-

Coal-tar products.

Or 1546-

That is, the crude coal-tar products.

Shall be assessed for duty or exempted from duty, as the case may be, under paragraph 25-

Which is intermediates.

Twenty-six-

Coal-tar products.

Or 1546-

The coal-tar crudes.

The object of that is to prevent any conflict whatever between the items following in these paragraphs and paragraph 26 of this bill, and wherever there is a conflict in any way, then of course they will fall under paragraph 26.

Mr. KING. Does it not mean that having dealt with various items such as I have described—acids, synthetic esters and ethers, synthetic flavoring extracts, synthetic aromatic and odoriferous chemicals, and so forth—in other parts of the bill and subjected them to certain rates, either ad valorem or specific, that we now by this provision withdraw them from those paragraphs and subject them to the higher rate placed in paragraphs 25 and 26?

Mr. SMOOT. That will not be the result. These are coaltar acids, and they are not all mentioned in the paragraphs we have referred to, but they fall in the basket clause. Whenever they fall in the basket clause, and it is found that the article is a coal-tar acid, and there is any conflict whatever as between whether they shall fall in this paragraph or in the basket clause, then they shall fall under this paragraph. Not only that, but they can not fall in this paragraph unless they are coal-tar products.

Mr. KING. I am not certain about that. If my colleague's interpretation is correct, I have no particular criticism along the lines which I have indicated.

Mr. SMOOT. Let me read to my colleague what the Tariff

Commission said in relation to it:

Commission said in relation to it:

Suggested changes.—Page 12, lines 15 to 19 of H. R. 7456: The provision "That any article or product which may come within the terms of other paragraphs of this act, as well as within the terms of paragraph 25, 26, or 1546, shall be assessed for duty or exempted from duty, as the case may be, under paragraph 25, 26, or 1566, is too bread. It is therefore suggested that the following phrasing. In which conflicting paragraphs are referred to by number, be adopted:

"That any article or product which may come within the terms of paragraph 1, 5, 35, 37, 56, 63, 79, or 1578 of this act, as well as within the terms of paragraph 25, 26, or 1546, shall be assessed for duty or exempted from duty, as the case may be, under paragraph 25, 26, or 1546."

That is exactly the language that the Tariff Commission recommended, and it was for the very purpose of doing away with the coal-tar items that may fall in a basket clause not specifically provided in those sections. Wherever there was a conflict, then it could fall under paragraph 25 or paragraph 26, paragraph 25 for the intermediates and paragraph 26 for the coal-tar products, or, if it was a crude, then under paragraph

Mr. KING. It seems clear to me that any article found in paragraphs 1, 5, 35, 37, 56, 63, 79, or 1578, notwithstanding the rates fixed in this paragraph, if it shall be of coal-tar origin, or if there shall be any of the products or derivatives of coal tar employed in its manufacture, will be taken bodily from those paragraphs and transferred to paragraphs 25 or 26 and subjected to the higher rates found herein.

Mr. SMOOT. I know my colleague does not want to misrepresent this matter.

Mr. KING. I do not, and I am going to be sure that no injustice is being done to the American people by this language. I will say that my colleague does not want to Mr. SMOOT. accomplish that any more than I myself on these schedules. If we take the paragraphs named in this provision, it will be found that each one of them specifically mentions the items, with the exception of those not specifically provided for, and then they must be coal-tar products or they will not be affected by this provision. I want to assure my colleague that there can not be any result from this provision other than to provide in the basket clause, where there is a coal-tar product that may be outside of the paragraph in which it should have gone, that would fall into one of those paragraphs, and under the provision of each of those paragraphs where it is not specifically provided for. I ask my colleague to keep in mind that they must be from a coal-tar product, that they must not be mentioned in any one of those paragraphs, and that they must be amassed from a coal-tar product, then they fall in the basket clause where there is a conflict between the basket clause and claims that would fall under any of the sections named.

To illustrate what I mean in a concrete way, in paragraph 35 this language is employed:

And ethers and esters of all kinds not specifically provided for, 30 per cent ad valorem.

It seems to me there can be no controversy that if any ether or ester was in any manner formed from coal tar, or if coal tar or any of its derivatives entered into the construction of any of the ethers or esters, then the provision of 30 per cent ad valorem, for which we voted when we considered paragraph 35, would be held to be inapplicable, and the article would be transferred from paragraph 35 to paragraph 26 and be subjected to the higher rates of duty found therein.

Mr. SMOOT. The Senator has not made the statement just as it is.

Mr. KING. That is the statement I made in the beginning. Mr. SMOOT. No; that is not the statement the Senator made in the beginning, I will say to my colleague. The statement the Senator has now made is absolutely correct. Paragraph 35 is not to cover an ester or ether derived from coal tar. It was not intended to and does not cover it, just as my colleague says.

So there is no conflict now between my colleague and myself on that point.

Mr. KING. The language which I employed was this My colleague said, as I remember, that we were taking the articles out of these paragraphs and putting them into those paragraphs in which the articles are named and referred to as paragraphs 15, 35, and so forth. That is as I understood my colleague to state it. It does not take an item out of those paragraphs. They are not provided for in those paragraphs, but all coal-tar derivatives fall under section 26.

Mr. KING. It is a question of terminology and construction of language. I repeat the language in paragraph 35, anticipating the antecedent subject:

And ethers and esters of all kinds not specifically provided for, 30 per cent ad valorem.

Now, "not specifically provided for" where?

Mr. SMOOT. In the bill.
Mr. KING. We have been dealing with esters and ethers and other products in paragraph 35, as we dealt with various products in the other paragraphs to which I have called attention. My colleague says that is true provided the esters or ethers are not formed in any way from coal tars or any of their derivatives, in which event they would be transferred from the omnibus or basket clause in paragraph 35 to paragraph 26 and be subjected to the increased rate, all of which means, with the explanation which my colleague has offered, that in those paragraphs to which I have directed attention, starting with Nos. 1, 35, and so forth, if any of the articles or products or substances there referred to are in part the products of coal tars or their derivatives, then they are lifted out of those paragraphs and are brought within paragraph 26 and subjected to the rates of duties therein provided.

Mr. SMOOT. But they are not provided for in paragraphs 1 and 35, I will say to my colleague, because in paragraph 35 the esters and ethers are made from other products than coal tar. We are dealing in paragraph 25 with all coal-tar intermediates and in paragraph 26 we are dealing with all coal-tar products. If the esters and ethers are derivatives from coal-tar products, they ought to fall in paragraph 26. If not, there would be a conflict at once. That is the reason why we put in each one of the specific paragraphs referred to by the Senator the items falling within the paragraph not specifically provided for, because they fall in this one paragraph. As to the rates,

Mr. KING. My colleague comes back to the position which I have assumed from the beginning, namely, that paragraph 26 is intended to take from other paragraphs in the bill items or articles which are formed in part from coal tars or any of their derivatives and subject them to the rates, not in those paragraphs provided, but the higher rates in this paragraph provided. The result will be that if esters or ethers or any of the compounds or products found in those paragraphs to which I have directed attention are in part derived from coal-tar products, they are to be subjected to a higher rate of duty than other esters and ethers that may be formed from other products or compounds as bases. In other words, we are to take the coal-tar industry and all synthetic organic compounds and give them preference, and give the products which are formed from coal tar or coal-tar derivatives higher rates of duty than products formed from natural or other compounds. The ordinary ether or ester not produced from coal-tar products bears an ad valorem of 30 per cent. If an ester or ether were formed from coal tar or any of its derivatives, then it is to be subjected to a higher rate of duty.

My colleague and myself have no controversy as to the effect of this legislation. I wanted to be sure that the intention was plainly expressed in the bill and that Senators fully understand that in voting for these rates they intended to discriminate against products not of the coal-tar variety; that they intended to give to the coal-tar industry higher rates and special privileges.

It is now clear that this bill aims to secure such results, and if Senators vote for these paragraphs they are supporting an indefensible and inequitable policy.

It seems clear that a manufacturer who produces an ester or an ether, or a flavoring extract, or some compound embraced within paragraphs 1, 5, 35, 37, 56, 63, 79, or 1578 of this bill, where any coal-tar derivative or any synthetic organic chemical product is employed in its production, will derive an advantage over the manufacturer who produces similar articles or com-modities but does not employ in their production coal-tar products or any of their derivatives.

The producer first referred to will obtain the almost prohibitive rates found in paragraphs 25 and 26, but the other manufacturer must be content with the low rates found in the other paragraphs to which I have just referred. I repeat, the dye industry seems to be the special favorite of Congress and particularly the Senate, and under the pretense of protecting the dye industry, manufacturers of various kinds of medicines, pharmaceuticals, and chemical compounds are securing both the extor-tionate rates provided herein as well as the benefit of the embargo provisions appearing in a later paragraph of this bill.

Let me say in passing that a fraud was perpetrated upon the Senate when the embargo bill was passed. The claim was made that the dye industry was exposed to severe competition from German dye producers and that the rates found in the law, which was in force when the emergency tariff bill was before the Senate, were inadequate to afford protection. It was alleged that the embargo was to extend only to the dye industry and was to expire when a tariff law was enacted, which it was stated by Republican leaders would be before the expiration of this Con-gress; but under the broad folds of the dye embargo the exclusive provisions were extended to more than 2,000 medicines, pharmaceuticals, and chemical compounds. An injustice was done to the American people and a fraud and deception practiced upon the Senate.

I have referred to coal-tar products. Senators, of course, are familiar with the fact that they are the by-products of coke ovens, and that the United States to-day is producing more of these by-products, and at a lower cost, than any other country in the world. It is known that the United States leads the world in the production of all forms of crudes and intermediates which are the bases of dyes and which are the by-products of coke ovens.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President, will the Senator from Utah yield to me?

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from New Jersey?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Do I understand the Senator from Utah to say that we lead the world in crudes and in intermediates?

Mr. KING. I did not put it quite that way.
Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Is it not true, then, that we do lead the world in crudes, but not in intermediates?

Mr. KING. If we lead the world in crudes, there is no reason why we can not lead the world in intermediates, because the intermediates are made from the crudes

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. If they are protected. Mr. KING. Oh, Mr. President, it is not a question of protection at all. I repeat that because of the great development of our coal industry and the enormous output of our coke ovens we can lead the world in crudes, in intermediates, and in dyes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Does the Senator from Utah take the position that we can do so without protection?

Mr. KING. Yes. I take it that we can do it without protectionth but I am not here urging, and the motion which I have suggested does not indicate that I am urging, that there shall be no tariff on dyes. I repeat, however, that, after having stud-ied this question more than superficially, I do not hesitate to we can manufacture not only crudes but intermediates and dyes in competition with the world; we do not need protection in order to secure the domestic market, but also an important part of the markets of the world. My position, Mr. President, is that because of the great resources of the United States, the skill and genius of its people, the superiority of its manufacturing plants, and other factors not necessary now to enumerate, the dye industry of the United States can not only successfully meet any foreign competition in the domestic marsaccessfully meet any foreign to considerable part of the world's market. It is quite likely, however, that there are some few dyes that we may not be able to produce as cheaply as other countries because of the small quantity consumed and the large amount of time, patience, and labor required in their

The American manufacturer seeks quantity production. There are some forms of laces and handmade goods which we will never produce in the United States, not because we can not but because we do not care to engage in the production. The benefits or profits derived therefrom are too unimportant. There are various dyes the consumption of which in the United States—and, indeed, throughout the world—is small, and the American dye producers, no matter how powerful and dominant the industry may be not only in the United States but in the world, will not care to engage in their manufacture.

We are now producing at least 92 per cent of all the dyes consumed in the United States and are exporting millions of pounds annually. However, Mr. President, the question of pro-tection of the dye industry is not involved in the present discussion, and no motion will be submitted during the discussion of this bill which will call for the free admission of dyes into the United States. On this side of the Chamber the position is being taken that schedules which provide a reasonable tariff upon intermediates and finished dyes will not be opposed. We are opposing the extortionate rates found in paragraphs 23 and 26 and we are likewise opposing the proposition to grant an embargo, and thus turn over to the domestic producers the complete control of the domestic market, with power to exploit the textile industry of our country.

When the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. Frelinghuysen] interructed me, I was about to state that before the war we were producing coal cheaper than it was being produced in any country in the world. High-grade bituminous coal was sold at many mines in the United States at approximately $1 per ton. My recollection is that even in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, and Great Britain prices were somewhat higher. Many American mine operators have employed the most scientific and up-to-date methods in their mining operations and have put into effect economies that enable them to produce coal at ex-

Senators are familiar with the Versailles treaty and its pro visions which materially interfere with Germany's industrial development and progress. Much of the coal of Germany was taken from her by this treaty, and she is also compelled to furnish for many years to come very large quantities annually to some of the victorious nations. With cheap coal and the large output of coal-tar products, the production of dyes becomes a comparatively easy thing.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I do not want to interrupt the Senator if he does not want to be interrupted.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from New Jersey?

Mr. KING. I have no objection to being interrupted; it is not my purpose to conclude as soon as possible.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I shall not again interrupt the Senator.

Mr. KING. I have no objection. I want the Senator to feel entirely free to interrupt me whenever he desires. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The Senator has referred to the immense coal deposits we have here and of the immense opportunities to develop coke products. While that is true so far as ammonia and some other by-products are concerned, yet unless we can maintain a flourishing domestic dye industry and retain the American market for it, there will be no use for raw material from coke products amounting to about a billion dollars' worth a year. The point I make is that we must protect the intermediates and the dye products in order to utilize the crudes. Even though we have a vast amount of coal, it will be of no use so far as a great portion of the by-products are concerned unless we can utilize the by-products in the dye industry

Mr. KING. anderstand the Senator correctly, I must express my di ent from the statement which he has just made. His position, as I understand him, is that the by-products of the coke ovens are of value only in the production of dyes. In other words, that once we develop the dye industry in the United States these immensely valuable by-products will be absolutel, casted. Mr. President, the Senator upon investigation will discover that but 10 per cent of the by-products of coke ovens are utilized in the manufacture of dyes. not time to enumerate the multitude of products and compounds yielded from the by-products of the coke ovens. There are literally hundreds of such products, and the small per cent are literally hundreds of such products, and the small per cent available for the manufacture of dyes leaves available for other uses and for other purposes a very large part of such by-products, the benefit and value of which it is impossible to determine. Even the 10 per cent available for the manufacture of dyes can be used in the production of other products, so that all of the by-products are of value and may be used, though none are employed in the manufacture of dyes.

Mr. President it is only within the past fow years that the

Mr. President, it is only within the past few years that the value of the by-products of coke ovens for dye purposes was value of the by-products of community, perhaps, anticipated the possibilities of these by-products sooner than the chemists of other countries. I have been advised, however, that some American chemists foresaw at a very early date in the coal-tar industry the importance of coal-tar products in the manufacture of dyes. Parenthetically I would like to add that the chemists of the United States rank with the chemists of Europe. Indeed in many ways they surpass those of other countries. This has been denominated the "chemical age," and undoubtedly our great economical and industrial progress and undoubtedly our great economical and industrial progress is largely due to the genius and ability and scientific knowledge of the chemists of the world. The achievements these brilliant men have wrought in this great field entitle them to the crown of immortality and to the gratitude of the world. I sometimes feel that the accomplishments in other fields of human endeavor are feeble and unimportant measured by the triumphs of these characters, whose genius and labor and struggles have lightened the burdens of humanity and marked the path of progress which it is to follow: the path of progress which it is to follow.

Mr. President, I return to the theme which I was discussing when my colleague engaged my attention and directed my thoughts to the meaning of the proviso found in paragraph 26. I repeat, that it is now clear that the proper interpretation to given to this bill is that all coal-tar products and their derivatives are to obtain much higher rates of duty than are those products which may be placed in the same classification but are not in any manner related to coal-tar products or their derivatives. In other words, diethyl sulphate, ethyl acetate, and ethyl chloride will bear the rate of duty found in paragraph 35, which is very much less than the duties provided in paragraph 35, which is very much less than the duties provided in paragraphs 25 and 26; but if either of these products just mentioned is of coal-tar origin, or if any of the derivatives of coal tar are employed in their manufacture, then they are automatically transferred to paragraphs 25 and 26 and a higher rate of duty imposed.

Mr. President, there is no valid reason for this discrimina-

A manufacturer producing esters and ethers from natural products should receive the same protection as is granted to a manufacturer who is engaged in the manufacturer of coal-tar products or their derivatives. I leave with Senators the conceded fact that various paragraphs in the bill are amended by the proviso found in paragraph 26, which in fact removes from paragraphs 1, 5, 35, 37, 56, 63, 79, or 1578 many commodities and compounds and subjects them to the higher rates provided in paragraph 26.

Mr. President, there is another provision reported by the committee which seems to be designed to give to the Chemical Foundation or others who have been fortunate enough to secure by direct or indirect methods, by purchase or by confiscation, the patents, trade-marks, copyrights, or other property of Ger-mans and Austrians, certain rights, privileges, interests, and property represented by said patents, trade-marks, and so forth. The provision referred to is to the effect that the Government shall confiscate any coal-tar product which comes into our ports bearing the trade-mark or trade name which the Chemical Foundation or any of the vendees to which I have referred may claim to have the exclusive right to use

Let me add at this point a fact with which most Senators are familiar, that the Alien Property Custodian selzed more than 5,800 German patents and a large number of copyrights and trade-marks, most of which were sold to the Chemical Foundation or to the Bayer corporation, and the provision to which I am now calling attention seems to be aimed at the protection of these vendees in any property rights which they may assert under such seizure and sales. Under this provision referred to the obligation is placed upon the Government to determine the legality of all sales and the validity of all transfers of the trade-marks, copyrights, and so forth. It would seem to be the purpose of the provision to make the Government an agent to selze property—at its peril, perhaps, in some instances—for the protection of vendees of the Government or of the Alien Property Custodian. May I inquire of the committee whether it is their purpose to insist upon this amendment to the Hence hill? ment to the House bill?

Mr. SMOOT. They are going to offer an amendment to strike

Mr. KING. Then I shall give no further attention to that part of the committee amendment.

Mr. President, I call the attention of the committee to certain provisions of the bill with a view to inquiring whether, upon their own motion, they will not, in the interest of justice, offer certain amendments.

For instance, in paragraph 26 we find many medicinal compounds—antipyrine, acetylsalicylic acid, aspirin, benzaldehyde, beta naphthol suitable for medicinal use, salol, sodium benzoate, saccharin, phenolphthalein, resorcinol suitable for medicinal use, and so on—a number of very valuable and important medicinal compounds. I ask the committee now whether it is their intention to subject these important medicines to these exceedingly high rates, and whether they do not see any reason differentiate between medicines and pharmaceuticals and products which are used in the industries.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President, I understand that

Mr. FRELINGHUISEN. Mr. Freshent, I understand the these products are cheaper under the embargo than they were before the war, when Germany had absolute control of them. Take salvarsan, for instance. It sold up to the time of the war at $3.50 a dose, and to-day it is selling at about 75 cents. The United States Government is paying only 20 and 28 cents.

Prior to the war the United States Government paid $2.50 to Phenacetine sold before the war for $16 a pound in the United States, about $2 a pound in Germany, and about $3 to $4 a pound in other countries. To-day the American price for phenacetine is $1.75; and so I might go on.

Mr. KING. The Senator has not answered my question, I asked the committee whether it was their intention to subject medicines and flavoring extracts and the various other articles provided in paragraphs 25 and 26—perhaps several thousand compounds, not dyes, not used in any way in the dye industo the same duties which they levy upon dyes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. All those that are mentioned in that paragraph; yes.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I can only express my regret that the committee, in their manifest purpose to serve the interests of the dye manufacturers of the United States, should impose upon the American people these high tariff rates upon medicines and products which are not related to the dyes.

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, I will say to my colleague that they are included only in case they come from coal-tar products or are derivatives from coal-tar products. All other medicines, of course, fall in the paragraphs where they are specially provided for.

Mr. KING. Oh, I understand that, but we know that with the development of the coal-tar industry new medicines and new compounds of medicinal and therapeutic value have been discovered and manufactured. Many new compounds have been produced of great importance to the health of the people. We do not yet know all of the possibilities locked up within the by-products of the coke ovens. It seems as though nature had lavished her choicest gifts upon the carboniferous age and locked her richest treasures in the coal measures of the world. The carbon compounds in coal are so numerous as to be unnumbered. The most beautiful colors, the most remarkable drugs and medicines are found in coal tars.

As I have heretofore stated, but a small fraction of coal-tar products are essential for the manufacture of dyes, but the Pharmacopæla and the United States Dispensatory contain the names of hundreds, if not thousands, of medicines and drugs and products of medicinal value which are yielded from coal

Mr. President, I can not understand the attitude of Senators who in their devotion to the dye industry and in their determination to give it all that it demands are willing to place upon the American people heavy burdens in the purchase of medicines and drugs essential for their health and welfare. I can understand how Senators may support schedules imposing heavy taxes upon products used in the industries and in the arts, but I submit that they can not justify their course in imposing taxes upon the medicines that carry health and life to the sick and the afflicted throughout the land.

But it is apparent that medicines are to be taxed under the guise of protecting the dye industry. The sick and the dying are to be penalized to protect the pockets of the domestic dye manufacturers of the United States.

Mr. President, we shall continue to protest against these cruel and unjustifiable provisions, these discriminations and injustices, these wrongs to the American people. Our protests may not be heeded here, but they will find a sympathetic echo in the hearts of the American people.

I now invite the attention of the members of the Finance Committee to another provision found on page 13 of the pending

bill. It reads as follows:

bill. It reads as follows:

Provided further, That in the enforcement of the foregoing provisos in this paragraph the Secretary of the Treasury shall adopt a standard of strength for each dye or other article which shall conform as nearly as practicable to the commercial strength in ordinary use in the United States prior to July 1, 1914; that if a dye or other article has been introduced into commercial use since said date, then the standard of strength for such dye or other article shall conform as nearly as practicable to the commercial strength in ordinary use; that if a dye or other article was or is ordinarily used in more than one commercial strength in shall be adopted as the standard of strength for such dye or other article.

It seems to me, Mr. President that this provision will lead

It seems to me, Mr. President, that this provision will lead to controversies and to vexatious and costly litigation. We know that various standards—if I may use the term—have been employed in the past, and that many of the dyes and products that are embraced within these two paragraphs have been brought into the United States in different chemical strengths or standards. It seems to me that this provision not only leads to uncertainty that will provoke litigation, but it is designed to increase the specific duty above that which is provided in the bill.

For instance, if a given dye was imported and used commercially in the United States a very small quantity, say 50 per cent paste, but the majority of the dyes imported were imported subject to a different standard, 30 or 25 per cent paste, ported subject to a different standard, 30 or 25 per cent paste, it would leave to the Secretary of the Treasury the opportunity of imposing the duty on the basis of the lowest standard of the imported dye, and in that way perhaps double or at least increase the specific duty above the 7 cents per pound which is prescribed in the bill. Undoubtedly that would provoke litigation and controversy and result in serious injustice. I can conceive of many instances where instead of a 7 cents are required specific duty it might be 14 cents or 21 cents or 25 cen a pound specific duty it might be 14 cents or 21 cents or any higher number of cents, depending upon the standardization which may be adopted by the Secretary of the Treasury.

I ask the committee whether or not they considered the advisability of adopting some other method of determining the application of the specific rate? It occurs to me that it should have provided that 100 per cent pure should be the basis for the application of the specific duty, and then if importers pre-ferred to bring in a dye under the 100 per cent strength duty would be paid on the actual dye content of the imported article, and if the committee deemed a 7-cent specific duty inadequate they could have recommended a higher specific rate. my colleague whether that matter was fully considered by the committee with a view to determining whether some plan could not be adopted that would obviate contention and certain litigation?

Mr. SMOOT. Mr. President, the committee gave a great deal of consideration to this matter and virtually followed the recommendations of the Tariff Commission. I will say to my colleague that I wanted every provision made here so that the dye manufacturers of this country could not complain that the industry, being a key industry, as they say, was not amply protected without an embargo.

I have had a good deal of experience with the commercial strength of these dyes, and I know that what the Tariff Commission says is true. I know that when the alizarins first came into use I used to buy them by the carload. They used to come in barrels containing about 30 to 35 per cent of the dye product. The rest was water, and that water, being mixed with the dye product, was called alizarin paste. For years after they were first discovered and put into practical use those alizarin colors were furnished the American market only in paste form. The importers naid the freight upon that water from Germany to importers paid the freight upon that water from Germany to the landing place in the United States, and then we in the West paid the freight on the water, wherever we purchased it, to the mill where it was used. That first shipment was the commercial grade, known to all of the purchasers in the United States. Years followed, and through processes developed in Germany they learned to make that dye into a completely powdered form. After it was made into a powdered form I never thought of buying it in paste form thereafter. The freight upon 1 pound of the powdered form was just exactly the same as the freight upon 1 pound of the paste carrying about 70 per cent water.

Then as to the commercial strengths, there were two of them. There was the full strength of the powdered form, and there was the 30 per cent of the paste form; and where was the duty Was it to lie upon the paste form, as the bill that passed provided, or was it to be applied to the powdered form, with not a drop of water in it? Therefore it made all the difference in the world as to what rate of duty should apply to that product.

That is one of many. I could stand here for hours and call the Senator's attention to just such cases as that. The committee decided, upon the recommendation of the Tariff Commission, that that ought to be taken into consideration, and a rule ought to be laid down so that all users, whether it be in powdered form or whether it be in paste form, would pay the same rate of duty upon the coloring matter itself.

It was a question as to how to reach them. If we had taken the powdered form, the highest concentrated form of the article, and put a rate upon that, then it would have been an absolute embargo for all of the pastes of all those products in which paste is used instead of the powdered form. So it was decided that the proper thing to do was to put the rate upon the lowest commercial standard.

The black dyes, I suppose, contain the lowest percentage of the dyestuff in the paste of all the articles which come into the United States from a foreign country. Generally 30 per cent is called the commercial value. That is, that is generally the commercial value where there is 70 per cent of water and 30 per cent of the dyestuff itself, and that is made into a paste. Just as soon as it is possible to make that into a powdered form and a process is developed for doing it commercially and successfully, then it is done, because nobody wants to pay a higher price for the product, or a higher duty, or a higher freight rate. But there is an advantage to small manu-facturers in using the paste form, because of the fact that when it is in the powder form, "dry as powder," as the old saying is, it is very hard indeed to mix that with water and make a paste of it, as it was made when the product was first make a paste or it, as it was made when the product was first produced; and unless you have a good dyer or a good chemist around your mill, or unless you have first-class facilities in the dye room at your mill, it is very much cheaper even to pay the freight upon the water in the paste than to take the chances of spoiling the powder in bringing it back to paste, as must be done before it is used in the dyeing of the wool or the cloth, or whatever it may be. I say frankly that I thought that policy was right.

As to whether the rate is too high, that is another question; but, as far as the principle is concerned, it is right, it is just, and it is as it ought to be. I say that, knowing well that this means that if you take the low commercial strength, say 30 per means that it you take the low commercial strength, say 30 per cent, and make it 60 per cent, of course the duty will be twice the rate fixed; there is no doubt about that at all.

Mr. KING. Or 90 per cent, and it will be three times.

Mr. SMOOT. I will say to the Senator that the freight on the water would prohibit that. There is a point where the amount of water itself will prevent one from paying freight upon the item. This is right, it is just, and therefore the Tariff Commission vaccommended that the committee adort its result and Commission recommended that the committee adopt it, and that is why it is in this bill.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the explanation which my colleague made is the only one which can be made, and undoubtedly it has much merit. Yet it does seem to me, as I indicated, that it will lead to confusion and to litigation. My colleague has indicated that there have been different standards

Mr. SMOOT. I want to say to the Senator that it will not lead to any litigation, because of the very fact that in the case of every dye used in the industries in the United States the strengths are all known commercial strengths,

Mr. KING. It will lead to litigation in a case like this: There will be a question as to whether a given strength is in "commercial use." What is "commercial use"? One judge may hold that if it is used in Boston by one textile mill, one shipment of dyes would constitute commercial use. Some other agent of the Government might insist that one swallow did not make a summer, and that to constitute "commercial use" there must be two or more commercial textile plants using the same grade; or that a large section of the country must use it. So I insist that there will be a basis for controversy, which will inevitably lead to the courts.

Mr. SMOOT. It is not a question of what is used by one section or another. There is not an article, there is not a paste made from a dye, the strength of which is not given out, and every manufacturer knows the different strengths of those

Mr. KING. My colleague misunderstood me. Mr. SMOOT. I will say to my colleague that all they have to do in order to find out the strength of it is to determine how much water is in it, and that is done by the insertion into the product itself of a simple instrument. Every paste has a commercial strength. It is advertised; it is quoted as being of those strengths, 30 per cent or 60 per cent. Those are the two principal ones known to the trade in the United States.

Mr. KING. I did not mean to state that there would be difficulty in determining the commercial strength of a product. Of course, that is susceptible of proof, of demonstration, or course, that is susceptible of proof, of demonstration, indeed, and the manifest which accompanies the imported article would probably declare its strength. But what I intended to convey to the Senate was this, that there would be controversy as to what constituted "commer ial use."

Mr. SMOOT. The strength of one of these commodities would be known just as the strength of any medicine is known, just as the strength of alcohol is known and it can be tested.

just as the strength of alcohol is known, and it can be tested just as quickly and as easily. It does not pay to get them too low, because, as I have already stated, people can not afford to pay the freight on the water. Therefore the commercial strength is generally about 30 per cent. Everyone who would make it would make it the same strength, because of the fact that that is known to the trade. For instance, when alizarin pastes were first put upon the market there was only one The strength strength, and everybody knew what it was. The strength was advertised to the world. I can not see any chance of litigation in connection with this.

Mr. KING. I have not made myself clear yet. I agree with my colleague that there is no difficulty in determining the commercial strength, but there is difficulty in determining the commercial use and out of this uncertainty litigation will arise. Suppose some person imported a given dye in the form of 70 per cent paste and 30 per cent dye content and that he was the only user of the dye in that form or standard. It might be insisted by a representative of the Government that the use of the dye in that form, or by one person or mill, constituted a commercial use and that such use, by one individual or mill, afforded a proper basis for applying the rate to all future importations. In this view an importation under this bill containing 60 per cent dye content and 40 per cent paste would be subjected to a higher specific duty, the Government insisting the standard was determined or established by the lowest former importation for commercial use. Another agent of the Government might take the position that if a dye were imported in the form of 60 per cent dye and 40 per cent paste, he would adopt that as the basis or standard for fixing the specific duty and ignoring the commercial use of a dye formerly im-ported where the dye content was only 30 per cent and 70 per cent paste. Another representative might learn of an importation where the dye content of the imported product was only 20 per cent and insist that that should be the standard for fixing the specific duty, because some one or more individuals in some section of the country had imported dye for commercial use in that form.

Mr. SMOOT. Permit me to call my colleague's attention to this language:

If a dye or other article was or is ordinarily used in more than one chemical strength.

One shipment would not fall under the language "ordinarily Every strength is quoted, and every buyer knows what he is going to buy before he makes his purchase. A buyer is not going to buy a 20 per cent paste when he knows that the commercial strength is 30 per cent. It would be a fraud upon him, and of course he would find it out just as soon as he put it into the dye vat.

We come back again to the question, What is Mr. KING. the ordinary use? What determines the ordinary use in Phila-delphia, the ordinary use in Boston, the ordinary use in some other textile neighborhood, the ordinary use in California?

If it be a fact that all of the dyes imported in the past have consisted of one or two grades, then there might not be much in my criticism, although, of course, if they were in two grades it is manifest that the officials of the Government could adopt the lower grade for the purpose of applying the specific rate; and if the lower grade were 30 per cent and dyes were brought over 60 per cent pure, then, instead of 7 cents per pound specific, it would be 14 cents per pound. So I most respectfully insist that there is ground for controversy, if not for litigation, in determining what is the ordinary grade, the ordinary standard of strength.

I have inquired of a number of textile men, and my advices are that there are different standards of strength at which the are that there are different standards of strength at which the dyes are purchased and used. You can not say that there is only one standard or that there are only two standards. The point I am making is that by fixing the 7-cent specific rate and committing to the Treasury Department the authority to determine the ordinary strength at which dyes have been used, when there are more than two standards, you put it into the when there are more than two standards, you put it into the power of the Treasury officials to adopt the lowest, though it may be infrequently applied or adopted. "It is ordinarily used," they will say, "in Philadelphia, or in Boston, or in some district where there are many textile mills, and we will apply that standard as the ordinary standard," though the majority of the people of the United States who import dyes purchase those of a higher standard; and thus in the future those who import dyes will be subjected not only to the ad valorem but to the double or treble specific rate, according to the standard that may be imported.

The Senator must know, of course, that most of the imports fall under the first provision, where it is provided that they "shall conform as nearly as practicable to the commercial strength in ordinary use in the United States prior to July 1, 1914." It is true, if there is any other dye discovered, as alizarin was some 25 or 26 years ago, and it were made into paste, of course the commercial strength of that would be announced to the world the first time it was sold upon the market, just as the strength of alizarin paste was announced when it was first sold. Of course, that strength will become the strength upon which the duty will be laid. After that, if they make a higher concentrated article than that which was originally shipped into the United States, bearing a certain commercial strength, then, of course, the extra duty would apply.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, it seems to me that a great injustice will be done and controversy will arise.

Calling attention to paragraph 25, that provides by name for some 91 coal-tar intermediates, at 50 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound specific, some of the intermediates provided for in this paragraph are very simple in manufacture and to-day are sold at only a few cents per pound.

Before the war I may say they were sold at a very low price, not orly in the domestic but in the foreign market. Take, for instance, beta naphthol; the foreign price in 1914 was 10 cents a pound. It is proposed to impose a specific duty of 7 cents per pound and an ad valorem duty of 50 per cent, with the proviso that if that intermediate happened to be brought in at a standard lower in some places than in other places the lower standard will now be adopted and the specific duty of 14 cents per pound may be applied in addition to the ad valorem.

Take, for instance, nitrobenzol. The foreign price in 1914 was 6 cents a pound. That doubtless was introduced in the United States in varying standards. So under the bill and the authority given to the Treasury Department it might so transpire that a standard would be applied to determine the basis of the application of the specific duty so as to bring a duty of 12 cents or 18 cents or 24 cents per pound specific plus the ad

who rem duty of 50 per cent.

Mr. SMOOT. What item is that—nitrobenzol?

Mr. KING. Yes. Take, for instance, refued naphthaline; the foreign price was 1½ cents per pound in 1914. Under the bill, assuming one standardization, it is subjected to a tax of 7 cents specific plus 50 per cent ad valorem, question is, Shall we take the coal-tar products as a whole and put them in as has been done, or shall we separate part of the coal-tar products out and make a special duty for them? What the Senator says not only applies to the intermediates, but applies to some of the dyes.

Mr. KING. The finished products.
Mr. SMOOT. Yes.
Mr. KING. There is no doubt about that.

Mr. SMOOT. So in the whole thing there is a policy, and whether that policy shall be carried out the Senate must decide. That policy, as provided in the bill, means that the coal-tar products of the United States are to be protected as a whole in order not only to establish but to maintain the industry in the United States. When I reply to the remarks made by my colleague I shall refer to these things more in detail. It is not because the committee does not know. There are many items in the bill falling within these two paragraphs where the rate itself could not be justified by anybody, but the principle is whether or not by taking these articles out and making them competitive and killing the items which are generally of immense production in the United States we could maintain the industry as a whole. Some say it would be impossible. Others think differently. That is the principle.

I will say to my colleague that the principle adopted in these two paragraphs and in the bill, so far as coal-tar products are concerned, is to take the industry as a whole and to protect it beyond a question of doubt as against the world, so that it may be maintained in this country on every item that can be made in the United States. I think that is a fair statement, and I think I know what is in this paragraph. Whether it is a wise policy is for the Congress to decide.

Mr. KING. My colleague has always been frank in his discussion of the coal-tar question. It has been called a problem; but when we come down to the germane and fundamental issue included, I think much of what is assumed to be a problem will be proven to be exceedingly tenuous.

The trouble has been—and this is a digression—that a number of corporations, headed by the Du Pont de Nemours and the Dyes Institute, and a number of lobbyists, like Mr. Herty and Mr. Eisermann and others who haunt the galleries and are

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KING. I yield. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Have not those who are interested in an industry the right to be here and in the galleries? Are in an industry the right to be here and in the galleries? Are they not public galleries?

Mr. KING. I have not denied them the right. I am delighted to see their smiling faces.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The Senator is criticizing them. I might mention others who hide themselves and have a rendezvous in the Senate Office Building.

Mr. KING. The Senator may make any observation he pleases. He will provoke no controversy with me.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I refer to the representatives of German importing interests who are here trying to defeat this legislation.

Mr. KING. If there are any, I do not know them. But I come back to the proposition I was stating, that if we get down to the fundamentals, this problem will not prove to be so difficult of solution as one at first blush might think, I repeat that the trouble has been that some of the corporations engaged in the manufacture of dyes have confederated together for the purpose of creating an artificial atmosphere and developing throughout the United States an incorrect and an erroneous view with respect to the industry.

I want to say to the Senator from New Jersey that I have no antipathy whatever toward the dye industry. Upon the contrary antipathy whatever toward the dye industry. Upon the contrary I am glad that there is a dye industry, and I would do anything I could in a legitimate and in a proper way for its development in the United States. The Senator from New Jersey, I think, in his zeal has misconceived the character of legislation required not only with respect to the dye industry but with respect to other subjects covered by the bill now be-fore us. I think the Senator—and I am not saying this by way of criticism—in his zeal gave too much attention to the cyanide interests in his own State and looked upon the situation as presented by that industry with rather a colored view.

I repeat that I am making no criticism of the attitude of the Senator upon cyanide or upon any other schedule or paragraph in the bill. The Senator believes that the dye industry will not Mr. SMOOT. The Senator knows that, taking these dyes by themselves, the duties upon a great many of them are indefensible. We can not defend them when standing alone. The real pressed by Mr. du Pont, who testified before the Finance Committee, that the dye industry wanted tariff rates so high they would be prohibitive; that, in addition, an embargo should be laid upon all imports, and, not satisfied with that, that the Sherman antitrust law and all of its provisions should not be enforced against those engaged in the dye manufacturing business in the United States, Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.

Mr. President-Mr. KING. Let me complete my statement and then I will yield. Mr. du Pont undoubtedly was sincere in the view which he expressed. He is entitled to that view. Others who believe in an embargo, in tariff walls that reach the skies, are entitled to their views, just as much as I am entitled to my views or any other men may be entitled to their views. But I think the Senator from New Jersey—and I say it in all kindness misconceives the situation of the dye industry and believes in these tariff exactions when the necessities of the occasion, even from a protective standpoint, do not warrant enacting them into

I now yield to the Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I have indulged in no personalities in the discussion of the bill. I have not questioned the motives of the Senator from Utah in his position toward the legislation, legislation which has been advocated by men in the party to which the Senator belongs. I think the Senator, while he scolds and admonishes, does not quite realize my motive, or the high plane upon which I am advocating and supporting the legislation. I am not doing it from the standpoint of any personal interest or any political interest.

I am doing it from the standpoint of the national defense. I am doing it from the standpoint taken by every country that had the frightful experience in the recent war of learning how heinous, how atroclous the warfare would be which could be carried on by those who absolutely control the dye industry.

The memory of the war has not passed, although we are trying to forget it. The memory of the war should not be allowed to pass. We must protect our still the memory of the war should not be allowed to pass. We must protect our civilization. We remember how civilization was threatened by the industries on the Rhine which manufactured those dyes and explosives and gases that nearly destroyed civilization. But there is a higher mo-tive that should impel every statesman rather than the selfish motive of trying to protect any individual interest. If the motives of the men in the industry who struggled so valiantly during the war to save civilization and who furnished the Allies with the necessary explosives and gases to counteract the German onslaught are to be anathematized in public I shall mention the names of the men who represent those industries on the Rhine, who murdered our boys on the other side with their poisonous gases, and who are here to-day by their representatives and agents in the Capitol trying to write this legis-

The Senator from Utah questions my motives. He mentions the men connected with this industry. What wrong have the The Senator from Cuan questions. What wrong have they the men connected with this industry. What wrong have they done? Was it a heinous offense for them to supply our soldone? Was it a property with explosives? Was it a diers, our Army, and our Navy with explosives? Was it a heinous offense, when for 40 years statesmen had failed to give proper protection to an industry and we found ourselves powerwhen the war broke out, for patriotic American citizens to build an independent industry during the war? Has the Senator the right to question my motives when I now insist, as did the President of the United States and as did the head of every department of this Government who had anything to do with the prosecution of the war, as well as the officers of the Army, that this industry be protected in order that what hap-pened from 1914 to 1918 may not happen again?

KING. Mr. President, the Senator from New Jersey may indulge in as much bitter declamation as he pleases. I shall not retort in kind. I have not misconstrued his motives; I do not challenge them at all. Upon the contrary, I said that I thought he was acting in the utmost good faith; but believe he misconceived the facts, which do not call for this legislation. If the Senator regards that as misconstruc-tion of his motives, I must confess that I do not understand the English language. I have no doubt that the Senator was perfectly sincere the other day when he advocated a tariff on cyanide. It is manufactured in his State, and the Senator believed that a high tariff rate was essential for the protection of the industry.

I am not criticizing the Senator for championing the cause of that industry, although I may feel that his position was wrong, and that the success of his efforts might prove injurious to the country.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President, I did not ask for a very high tariff, and the commodity had been on the dutiable list in previous tariff bills. Cyanide was considered one of the essential chemicals which we should have an independent industry in this country to produce. I have no apology to make for my action.

Mr. KING. I did not ask the Senator to apologize.
Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. But the Senator tried to admonish me because I asked for a tariff on the product of an industry Mr. KING

Mr. KING. The Senator from Utah has not tried to admonish the Senator from New Jersey at all. I was attributing to the Senator the highest motives in advocating a tariff upon cyanide and upon other products that are found in this I do not challenge the motives of any Senator. I may think that he is mistaken, as I think the Senator from New Jersey is mistaken, and I have no doubt that he thinks that I am mistaken in my economic views,

The Senator from New Jersey is a Republican Senator. I do not say he is a "stand-pat" Republican, but he is accredited with belonging to the conservative or the Harding wing of the Republican Party. He is a consistent, hard-working, forceful Republican Senator. He fights for what he wants and what he thinks is right. I have not a word of criticism for the energy which he exhibits and the vast intellectual power which he manifests here upon the floor of the Senate. I compliment his State upon having a Senator so vigorous, so earnest, and so attentive to what he conceives to be the interests of his State and of the

Mr. President, it is possible some of my Democratic friends in New Jersey may not approve the compliment which I pay to the Senator from New Jersey, but I do it in all sincerity, and I want him to understand that if there is to be any controversy or acrimonious discussion in this debate it will not be occasioned by anything said upon this side of the Chamber.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I accept the Senator's offer to join my staff of speakers in New Jersey in the coming campaign.

Mr. KING. The Senator from New Jersey believes in high protection and he believes in protection upon some articles that amounts to prohibition. I do not. The Senator from New Jersey is just as earnest and just as honest in that view as I am in my opposition to that view. The Senator believes that the dye industry needs an embargo. I do not. I am not quarreling with the Senator for entertaining that view. I think, however, it is a mistaken policy; I think it is not justified by the facts. I warn the Senator and other Republicans that if they introduce the policy of embargo into the tariff legislation or into their economic system, soon they will be confronted with demands from other industries for embargoes, and when embargo measures are enacted rather than scientific or reasonable and fair protective measures, the protective system will be destroyed. That is the reason that Mr. Wakeman, one of the ablest economists writing for Republican newspapers, has denounced the embargo as un-Republican and un-American. He has vision enough to perceive that if we begin granting embargoes as to one industry, there will be no place where we may stop; that we shall be compelled to grant embargoes to other industries, and in the end it will not be a struggle for protection but it will be a struggle for monopolies, prohibitions, and embargoes

Mr. President, in opposing what I regard as an unwise, impolitic, and unsound economic principle, I am not attacking the motives or integrity of those who entertain a different view.

The Senator from New Jersey in a very impassioned speech has stated in effect that he is defending a policy which is called for in the interest of national defense. Mr. President, I do not agree with the Senator at all in that respect. The dye industry cuts but little figure in the national defense. I grant that during the war the Germans used mustard gas and phosgene gas and one or two gases of other kinds upon the battle field. They introduced those gases before they were thought of as weapons of offense or defense by Great Britain or by the United States, but the chemists of the United States, as well as the chemists of other countries, were familiar with mustard gas and other gases, some of them before the German chemists were familiar with these important gases

In view of what the Senator has stated-and I had not intended to refer to it—I want to call attention, Mr. President, to a statement which is made by an officer, Lieut. Col. Earl J. W. Ragsdale, who testified before the Committee on Finance. testimony will be found in the dye embargo hearing at page 750. He was asked by the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. LA FOLLETTE], a member of the committee, a number of questions. He stated that his residence was Norristown, Pa., and his business was the die-casting business. He served 10 years in the Regular Army and resigned with the rank of lieutenant colonel of the Ordnance Department. Senator La Follette asked him this question:

Senator LA FOLLETTE, You speak now of the general chemical in-

Mr. Raospalin. Yes, sir; I wish to make that later very clear. I found upon slight investigation that reference was made to the dyeatuffs in-

That is, the contention was made that Germany's superiority resulted from the dyestuffs industry. I think his testimony completely negatives that, as I think any searching examination of the relation of the dyestuffs industry to warfare in Germany will demonstrate. Further he says:

will demonstrate. Further he says:

There were very few plants in this country which were equipped to make dyestuffs. On the other hand, our general chemical industry was very capable. I found at Niagara Falls a chlorine capacity which surely was greater than that of England: I found one plant there, the Hooker plant, with a capacity of 40 tons of chlorine a day. There were two other chlorine plants operating. I also found a process there which, on my mind, now equals or is better than any other process of manufacturing chlorine in existence. So my original apprehension about the manufacture of chlorine was not borne out by the evidence brought in. It is interesting also to note that we did not use any of this capacity. Senator La Foll-ETTR, Why not?

Mr. Ragsballs. There were other reasons—one was transportation; second, that chlorine was used more or less as an intermediate in the manufacture of toxic gases. That, again, involved the question of transportation of highly concentrated materials.

It was also considered better policy to concentrate our poison-gas manufacture in one lecation, where we would have it under entire military control, where we could do all experimentation that we thought necessary without spying eyes.

He puts his finger there upon an important fact in connection with military activities-

We also felt it was necessary that the complete handling of these toxic materials be under the same head. The advantage of this was afterwards borne out. The centralized plant was at Edgewood Arsenal. I conceived the Edgewood Arsenal, and it was built under my direction, aithough it was completed and amplified later under the Chemical Warfare Service, which was later organized in the early spring of 1918.

He refers to the activities at Edgewood Arsenal, and then

My original plan was for 300 tons of chlorine a day. The Secretary of War cut this to 125 tons of chlorine a day. This plant was built for that capacity. Another plant had a capacity of 40 tons of phosgene. The complete capacity was never realized, although I understand that 25 tons could be produced.

We had a capacity of from 15 to 25 teas of chloropicrin a day.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President-

Mr. KING. I yield. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I do not wish to interrupt the Senator in the course of his speech, but I have some informa-tion which has been prepared on the question of poison gas, and, if the Senator has no objection, I should like to read it into the RECORD at this point.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, my speech will be so interrupted anyway that I think the Senator had better offer it in his own me. I hope the Senator will appreciate my position. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, Very well,

Mr. KING. Colonel Ragsdale further states:

Mr. KING. Colonel Ragsdale further states:

As this committee is interested in the dysstuff manufacturing, and as phosgene is the chemical which I chiefly recognize as entering into the dyestuff industry, I must say that against the capacity of 40 tons a day at Edgewood Arsenal, I would besitate to say that the entire United States would use over 100 tops of phosgene a year.

I would like to go back to how I found the dyestuff industry. As I have said, it was a very small industry it, this country, but what we did find was not encouraging toward the production of toxic unterfuls.

Anybody who has examined the situation in Germany knows that the dyestuff plants were unimportant per se in chemical warfare in Germany.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President, I challenge that statement. I have information here that the dye industry had a capacity of 2,600 tons per month, not including chlorine.

Mr. KING. The Senator does not understand my position.

I said "per se." I have no doubt that there could be manu-I said "per se." I have no doubt that there could be manufactured in the dyestuff plants a good deal of gas; but gases could be manufactured in brewerles and in various other plants in the United States. The dyestuff plants were not essential to the manufacture of the gases used in military warfare. They could be used for that purpose; they were adaptable for that purpose, the same as breweries and sugar factories were adaptable for that purpose, and the same as some of the wit-nesses have stated that other plants could be used for the manufacture of gases.

Proceeding:

As I look back over my organization of those chemists who were personally in charge of the producing units and under whose direction the various materials were manufactured, I do not recall the name of a single one who was associated with the dyestuff industry in this country. The chemists who had the greatest responsibility were recruited from the educational institutions and from the large chemical manufacturers, such as the Du Ponts, Semet-Solvay, and a number of Nicorae Balla.

at Niagara Falls.

I have been noting in the newspapers the comments which the facts before this committee have provoked and contrasting some of the statements with the conditions I found,

Let me say at this point that a number of propagandists who have been urging embargoes and high tariffs, and who have spent many months in carrying on this campaign, have always insisted that the dyestuff industry was essential and indispensable to the manufacturing of the gases used in warfare, and they contended that the gases produced in the United States were manufactured in the dye plants, whereas the fact is that phosgene was produced in greater quantities than it could be used in the entire United States in the plants constructed by the Government, and that instead of utilizing any of the dye plants the military authorities preferred to concentrate all activities in the production of gases under their own control. I regard the propaganda in regard to this matter as the most misleading that has appeared in the United States within my recollection.

He says:

The chemical plant at Niagara Falls which produced phosgene did so under compulsion, true, not physical but moral. The correspondence files of the trench warfare section of the Ordnance Department will show numerous telegrams urging to be relieved of the responsibility.

will show humerous telegrams urging to be relieved of the responsibility.

The Semet-Solvay Co., after looking into the matter, flatly refused to manufacture either phospene or chloropicrin.

The Stanford Synthetic Color Co. was in a bad financial way and undertook to manufacture chloropierin. Officers from my office had to be sent there to not only take charge of the plant but to work out the process.

If chemical warfare had opened up to our young dyestuff industry such a wonderful vision as now appears, I should have expected a more willing cooperation. The willingness that I did find was one of pure patriotism rather than the idea of entrenching themselves in an industry which would thrive after the cessation of the war.

As for the dyestuff industry being regarded as a potential military strength, it unquestionably is. No more so, however, than the entire chemical industry of the United States. This industry has thriven in the past and was very strong when we entered the war.

I called attention the other day to the fact that the amount

I called attention the other day to the fact that the amount capital invested in the chemical industries in the United States in 1914, before the war, was more than $3,000,000,000, Mr. POMERENE. Three billion dollars?

Mr. POMERENE. Three billion dollars?
Mr. KING. More than $3,000,000,000 in the chemical industries of the United States, and that the product for the year ending June 31, 1914, was more than $2,000,000,000. Let me say in passing that the amount paid labor was only $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the value of the entire production; so when our friends, who evince so much solicitude for labor, say that these high tariffs are necessary to protect labor, I want to call attention to the fact that the evidence shows that the amount paid to labor in the chemical industry in the United States in 1913-14 was only $\frac{1}{2}$ ner cent of the value of the gross production and was only 8½ per cent of the value of the gross production, and that in 1920-21 it was only 8 per cent. Less is paid now than was paid in proportion to the value of the product.

Mr. POMERENE. And this bill will add to the cost of every necessary of life.

Mr. KING. Yes. This bill will add to the cost of everything, whether it is a necessary of life or not, that relates to our industries and to our lives Continuing, Colonel Ragsdale says:

Personally, I am still interested in the potential military strength of the country, and I should like to see any condition brought about which would develop this industry as a whole and along healthy lines. I shall not read it all. If any Senator desires to put it in the RECORD. I have no objection at all.

Let me read a little further concerning the Edgewood Arsenal: Did you have the benefit of the experience of the Allies in the war to any extent?

Referring to the production of gases.

Referring to the production of gases.

Mr. RAGSDALB. That depends upon the time. Prior to our entrance into the war we had no cooperation from our allies.

Senator McLean. You did not need it?

Mr. RAGSDALB. No. sir. We had agents and officers abroad who furnished us with such information as we had, which was very meager. As soon as we entered the war the French dispatched to this country a very able officer, and later, at my request, two British chemical manufacturers came to this country and greatly assisted us—

Senator McLean (interposing). Tou followed their advice?

Mr. RAGSDALE. In the inception of what later developed into the Edgewood Arsenal. As to the production—

Senator LA FOLLETTE (interposing). Were they dye manufacturers or general chemical manufacturers?

Mr. RAGSDALE. None of them. were, sir. They had had their experiences primarily during the war.

And when we needed, if we needed at all, any help, we did

And when we needed, if we needed at all, any help, we did not get any chemists from England or France. We got men who had had some experience in the war.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President, will the Senator suffer a question?

Mr. KING. I yield. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Who is Mr. Ragsdale?

Mr. KING. I stated to the Senator. I am reading from page 750 of the testimony. He was a licutenant colonel in the Army and resigned after 10 years' service in the Regular Army.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Was he in the Chemical Warfare Service?

Mr. KING. All I know is what I find in the hearings, and they show that he was an able and honored officer, who served his country for 10 years.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Was he not sent down here by an importer, Mr. Metz, to testify?

Mr. KING. I do not know Colonel Ragsdale. His testimony is frank and honest and gives no indication of bias or interest. If the Senator wants to impute anything or cast any aspersion against Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale, let him do it. I think Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale will be ready to meet the Senator. at any time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I simply asked a question, and the Senator has not answered it.

Mr. KING. The Senator is talking so much about our soldiers that I should think he would have some little respect for this man, who had been an officer for 10 years and who came and testified before his committee.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The Senator can not point to anything in my language which cast any aspersion on Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdate. I simply asked the question whether he was not sent here after he had left the service by Mr. Metz, an importer, to testify?

Mr. KING. The Senator knows more about that than I. All I know is what is here in the record of the testimony taken before the Senator's committee. If the Senator felt that that was important, he or somebody else ought to have elicited it on examination. Even if he were asked to testify, that would not affect his integrity or afford ground to question his veracity as a witness, and I do not think the Senator dares challenge the veracity of Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale.

Proceeding:

As for the quantities which we had in mind, we determined that ourselves.

Senator McLean. Oh, certainly.

Mr. Ragsdale. And I must say that they thought we were nothing short of crazy.

That is, in the construction of the Edgewood Arsenal plant, I presume.

I presume. Our plans were to have a toxic-gas program which would equal that of 6. many, plus that of France and England. We plotted a chart showing from the first use of gas how the percentage of gas shell had increased and the percentage of toxic materials in general, and we merely exterpolated that curve and then went some over it.

Their criticism—referring to our allies—of this enormous plant did not recur when we commenced shipping at their urgent request toxic materials to both England and France.

Mr. President, it is here shown that within a few months we produced toxic gases in excess of the production of France and produced toxic gases in excess of the production of France and Great Britain combined, and we intended to produce more than all of the belligerents combined. It did not need a dye industry for that purpose, and the dye industry played no important part, if any part at all, in the production of the gases employed in the war.

Sonator McLean. But in organizing your plant for the purpose of furnishing toxic materials you had the advice of the English and French representatives
Mr. Ragbarm. Yes; we sought that advice.
Senator McLean. You sought it and you followed it. Now, it is unnecessary to remark that if we had been isolated and could not have had that assistance we would have been at something of a handleap; but never mind that.

That is a statement rather than a question.

When did you say you entered the service?

Mr. Haosbald. In 1970.
Senator McLhan. And how long were you in the service?

Mr. Ragsball. A little over nine years.
Senator McLhan. When did you leave the service?

Mr. Ragsball. I left it in 1919.
Senator McLhan. Is this organization carried on low?

Mr. Ragsball. It is; under the name of the Chemical Warfare Service.

I have no interest in either side of this controversy except my natural interest that the military strength of the country be not impaired, but I am also interested that its finances be not impaired. I would like to answer your question. To get back about our advisers from abroad, two of those advisers were purely of a military nature. One adviser arrived after our plans for the manufacture of chloropicrin had been completed, and he gave us many points which were helpful.

It should be kept in mind that Colonel Ragsdale is a military man, not a scientific man. Doubtless the advice referred to the shells and to the method of their use upon the battle field.

The majority of our technical information came through those efficers associated with our chemical industry and educational institutions of this country, and from my associating with them I know their minds, in which the Nation can take pride, and I know they were actuated by the purest motives of patriotism and accomplished a great deal in a short time.

Senator La FOLLETTE. How much advantage would you derive for the chemical warfare in the future by the establishment of the dye industry in this country, taking into account the very large and com-plete equipment which the country has in general chemical production? Mr. RASSDALE. My knowledge of chemical warfare leads me to believe that it is not in a crystallized state. I have a greater knowledge Senator La Follette. How about our development in that respect compared with that of the Germans?

Mr. Racsdalm. We followed her.
Senator McLear. Hew do you know that the state of the factory will not discover the controlling gas in the state. It is very possible he would, sr.
Senator McLear. It is very possible he would, sr.
Senator McLear. It moderatand you to say that you did not think the dye industry was of any consequence.

Mr. Racsdalm. I understand you to say that you did not think the dye industry was of any consequence.

Mr. Racsdalm. I would not assume that the inventor of the keynote of chemical warfare would come from the dye industry any more than he would come from—well, the tannery interests or something class. I think the chances are more likely that he would come from an educational institution, which, of course, is again dependent upon the general chemical needs of the country, because if we have no needs for chemists we will have no chemical institutions.

It is remarkable, in speaking of these discoveries of the key gas, and it runs through the entire bistory of warfare, that there has not been yet anything invented that has not a counter instrument. Senator La Follette. For defense?

Mr. Racsdalm. For defense; even the submarine. We found the instrument was expensive, but we also found that we could keep the submarines down.

I think in the history of warfare the submarine enjoyed probably for the longest period of time a free field.

Senator Smoot. Are you a chemist yourself?

Mr. Racsdalm. No. sir; I am not.

Senator Smoot. The chlorine plant at Niagara Falls existed before Europe went into the war?

Mr. Racsdalm. No. sir; I am not.

Senator Smoot. The use of chlorine gas. They made bleach and they had a very good process and had done a great deal in that direction. The use of chlorine was then becoming greater and greater, owing to its extensive employment in sanitary engineering, such as chloribating of water and sewage, and it was used either in fits liquid form or as bleach.

Mr. Ragsdale proceeds:

Mr. Rigsdale proceeds:

In other words, if there were given to my control funds to subsidize industries for their potential military strength, I would certainly be subjected to severe criticism if I placed it in any one phase of the chemical industry, be it describe it sugar, be it any other thing. It is quite conceivable that the by-product of sugar manufacturing or some other manufacture may be the raw material from which this key gas the Senator has spoken about is ultimately derived. I know that during the war we understood that the Germans were making a terrible gas which would penetrate our gas masks and have a terrible effect, and they were making it from the seed of some rare plant in Venezuela. We afterwards found out there was nothing to it. But still it was so conceivable at that time that a corps of chemists were put on the trail of this information to find out whether there was any truth in it.

Senator Smoot. Who were the men who actually worked out the formulæ for the poisonous gases used by America in warfare?

Mr. Raosdale. The actual formulæ, or, more properly speaking, analyses of the gases which we originally used came from abroad. Our agents and officers sent us that information.

Senator Smoot. Did they come from the dyshouses or chemical concerns or from officers of the French or English armies?

Mr. Raosdale. The two gases used most largely, being phosene and chloropictin, were used by the Germana, and phosene and chloropictin, were used by the Germana, and phosene and chloropictin, were used by the Germana, and phosene and chloropictin, were used by the Germana, and phosene and chloropictin were known, although sparingly known, in this country; and then it devolved upon us to work out a process for the manufacture of these in the United States.

Mr. Ragsbale. It mean the officers of the Army?

Mr. Ragsbale. It mean the officers of the Army?

Mr. Ragsbale. They worked the process out by themselves, and the phosene was first produced at the plant of the Oldbury Chemical Co.

at Niggara Falls.

Senator Smoot. Was that produced before we went into the war?

Niagara Falls.
Senator Smoor. Was that produced before we went into the war?
Mr. Racspale. I think it was shortly afterwards.
Senator Smoor. You did not furnish, then, our allies with any tosgene?
Mr. Racspale. We did not, sir; not before we entered the war.
Senator McLean. You mean that the military men worked out the rmule?

Senator McLean. You mean that the military men worked out the formulae?

Mr. RAGSDALE, I mean those chemists who used thrown into the military service worked out those formulæ. They were not difficult. Senator McLean. They had the banefit of the experience, of course, of the chemists of the Allies?

Mr. RAGSDALE. They were trained chemists. We had the formulæ for both chiloropicrin and phosgene worked out and production methods drawn up before we had any information from abroad.

Senator Jones. Those gases used in that warfare were known gases benator downs. Those shall be a supported to the desired war, were they?

Mr. RAGSDALE. Yes, sir; they were recognized. Phosgene had been used in the dye industry and is still used in the dye industry. I do not know any commercial use for chloropicrin. There is one or two uses, but I am not acquainted with them.

Senator Jones. Then there was no discovery of a new gas for the war?

Senator Jones. Then there was no discovery of a new gas for the war?

Mr. Ragsdall. I was going to continue my argument, that after the Chemical Warfare Service was created and General Sibert was put in charge of that as a separate service my further connection with it was purely one of personal interest.

Senator La Follette. May I ask your opinion of this statement? Doctor Reese, director of the E. I. du Pont Co., said, before the annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association, May, 1918:

"There has also been much talk in the papers with regard to the wonderful advantage Germany had on account of her extensive dye industry, in that she could immediately turn all the great dye plants into munition factories.

"I do not consider that the presence of the factories themselves was a matter of very great importance to the Germans. It might have been an important factor in a small war, but the requirements for this great war have been such that their mere existence have been a very small factor."

Then, after reading the statement of Doctor Reese, of the Du Pont Co., Senator LA FOLLETTE asked this question:

Du Pont Co., Senator La Follette asked this question:
What do you think of that statement?
Mr. Racsale. I could not very well contradict it, because it was practically the argument on which I based my request to have funds appropriated for the Edgewood Arsenal, that even the chemical industries of this country were not adequate to take care of the enormous needs for chemicals as I then foresaw them; and I think that was unquestionably true of Germany, although Germany did more intensive developing in an industrial way than we did. What I mean is, with the capacity for minuteness that the Germans unquestionably have, they could go into a garage and make munitions. We are not psychologically so situated; when we want to make munitions we have to have the proper plant and appliances, and we have to do it right. So that in Germany I think they utilized their small plants to far greater advantage than we did.

I find that the address, or a portion of it, delivered by Doctor

I find that the address, or a portion of it, delivered by Doctor Reese, of the Du Pont Co., was placed in the hearings by the chairman; at least the chairman said "the statement will be printed." I find it on page 759, and I wish to read a few paragraphs from that address. Bear in mind that this address was delivered by Doctor Reese before the annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association, in May, 1918, which was after we had entered the war. I omit the two or three paragraphs which Senator La Follette read, and on which he based the question to Colonel Ragsdale.

based the question to Colonel Ragsdale.

However, the real assistance that Germany obtained from the existence of these factories came from the chemical organizations which they maintained. As this war has become, in a sense, a chemical war, these chemical organizations in the German factories have been able to assist the Government very materially in its prosecution.

Now, what were the conditions in this country? There was no dye industry of any great magnitude, but there was a well-organized explosive industry with a well-organized chemical organization. I might say that at the best inning of the war the Du Pont Co, had in the neighborhood and chemical organization. I might say that all the say that a chemical organization. I might say that a content of the content of the

It will be remembered that the Du Pont Co. was in existence for many years prior to the war and was engaged in producing explosives. It had manufactured millions of dollars worth of explosives during the war and prior to the entry of the United States, which were shipped abroad and sold to the Allies. Doctor Reese proceeded:

The first effect of the Great War was to call upon this organization meet problems which seemed to be almost as insolvable as those resented by the dye situation, since many of the raw materials necessary for the manufacture of munitions had been secured in Europe, presented by the dye situation, since many of the raw materials necessary for the manufacture of munitions had been secured in Europe, just as the dyes had been.

This organization, however, was able to meet the situation in such a short time that the want of these materials did not occasion a day's delay in the production of powder. One of these materials, diphenylamine, which is an intermediate in the manufacture of dyestuffs, was produced on a large scale, and three separate and distinct processes were developed for its production. Dimethylanline, another dye intermediate, was necessary for the production of tetranitromethylanline, commonly called tetryl, and had to be produced, and a satisfactory process for its production was developed in ample time, as well as for the production of tetryl.

These accomplishments gave courage and confidence to the chemists of the Du Pont Co., and from the fact that this organization was manufacturing and using all of the basic raw materials necessary for the manufacture of dyes, namely, sulphuric acid, nitric acid, benzol, toluol, zylol, naphthalene, nitrobenzol, aniline, and picric acid, it was perfectly natural to consider the possibility of entering this great industry. The United States Department of Commerce in its report for October, 1920, says:

"With the return of peace it is evident that whatever the demand for dyes made in Germany may be, that country will never regain its lost supremacy in the world trade in dyestuffs.

This Is, as I stated, from a report of the Department of

This is, as I stated, from a report of the Department of Commerce.

Commerce.

"Private capital has been supplied as fast as it could be utilized in establishing scores of factories and in training skilled operatives and chemists for actual and experimental work on a large scale. There has been an increasing tendency since 1916 to centralize or consolidate the domestic enterprises in order to cut overhead expense, utilize all by-products, and reduce the price of finished dyes. This has not only increased production but has developed the foreign trade, as shown by the wide distribution of American aniline dyes exported in the calendar years of 1918 and 1919.

"The world-wide shortage of dyestuffs and the growing demand for both quality and variety of such materials offer every opportunity to extend the foreign market for American colors. "Germany, it is now conceded, will not be the streamous competitor she was formerly in the foreign trade. Switzerland is the only country, other than the United States, now making aniline colors sufficient to meet its own requirements and able to export on a large scale, and the Swiss are dependent on other countries for the raw materials."

Dr. B. C. Hesse, an eminent American chemist, thoroughly familiar with the situation, who was chairman of a committee of the American Chemical Society in 1916 which made recommendation for protective rates very similar to those finally approved in the present Hill bill, and who is now an advocate of licensing, said before the Franklin Institute on November 6, 1919;

"To particularize: In the explosives industry the coal-tar portion is very simple, the teating out of new products very complex and detailed; hence the invention, development, and manufacture of explosives from coal-tar materials is properly whelly an affair of the explosives from coal-tar materials is properly whelly an affair of the explosives industry, so highly and efficiently productive and progressive with as and not of the still-to-be-created dye industry. The invention, development, and distribution of photographic elemicals properly belong to the photographic industry, now and for a long time past so well-developed with us, and their manufacture belongs to our well-developed organic and fine chemical industry and not to the infant dye industry. "The discovery of new synthetic remedies is properly the function of the many medical institutes and schools of research in this country; they can be manufactured by our organic and fine chemical industry, helped out by our large pharmaceutical factories and distributed by the latter; synthetic flavors and perfumes have for years been successfully made here at a number of establishments, and they have also conclucted much of the research in this field; there is no reason, compelling or otherwise, why the struggling dye makers should share their work. In the manufacture of toxic and like gases for military purposes, whose invention and development belong to the Chemical Warfare Service, the largest single material involved and at the same time the one most difficult to transport is chlorine, which in 1914 was normally made in 23 different factories in this country, and in an amount approximating 65,000 tons annually, while during the war we made a total of but 12,000 tons of toxic-gas war materials; their manufacture, therefore, should be linked up with our going chlorine industry."

That is a very strong statement. The Senator from New Jersey has talked about the importance of the dye industry for national defense. Here is Doctor Hesse, one of the ablest chemists in the United States, who stated that 23 plants in the United States were manufacturing the most important gases prior to the war, and that development of poison gases and toxic gases, if we are to continue that development, is a matter for the Chemical Warfare branch of the Government rather than the dye industry or any private institution.

I may say at this point that recently in the Washington conference-and I regret that I do not have the volume with methe question of poison gases was under consideration. Senators are familiar with the result of the conference and the recom-mendations which were made. Senators will recall that there was a general agreement to abolish the use of poisonous gases in warfare. Without taking the time to read from the record of the conference, I will ask permission to insert that portion of the committee's report in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. McKinley in the chair).

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The matter referred to is as follows:

treaty between the United States of America, the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan in relation to the use of submarines and noxious gases in warfare.

ARTICLE V.

The use in war of asphyxiating, poisonous, or other gases, and all analogous liquids, materials, or devices having been justly condemned by the general opinion of the civilized world and a prohibition of such use having been declared in treaties to which a majority of the civilized powers are parties.

The signatory powers, to the end that this prohibition shall be universally accepted as a part of international law, binding alike the conscience and practice of nations, declare their assent to such prohibition, agree to be bound thereby as between themselves, and invite all other civilized nations to adhere thereto.

Mr. KING. I had no intention of calling attention to the Mr. KING. I had no intention of calling attention to the statement of Doctor Reese, and the testimony of Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale, had it not been for the observations of the Senator from New Jersey, who appeals to the Senate to grant this embargo and to give the high rates which are found in the bill largely upon the ground that it is essential for national defense. I have read what Doctor Reese, one of the chief officials of the Du Pont Co., said in his address in 1918. I have read from the testimony of Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale and from the statement of Doctor Hesse, one of the ablest scientific men in the United States, to the effect that the dyestuffs industry is unimportant for that purpose.

Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale very pertinently remarked that the chemists in the sugar industry will develop the gas that may be the most potential for war purposes. We all know that saccharine may be made from coal-tar derivatives.

Many of the coal-tar products constitute, as Senators know, carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen, but largely carbon and hydrogen, and the different products are the result of the arrangement of the molecules, the arrangement of the constituent atoms or molecules of the coal-tar products. So that we get from coal tar saccharin as well as a multitude of other products. Sugar is a product in part of combinations in which carbon forms an important part. Consequently these scientific men believe that we may expect in the sugar factories and in the laboratories and in the schools and in the colleges development for the discovery of toxic gases. It was indicated that our help in the war in a chemical way, in a scientific way, largely came from the military men and from the college men of the United States.

So all of this talk about the importance of the dye industry for national defense is to me without reason, and is not warranted by the facts. Doctor Hesse clearly indicates that the chemical warfare branch of the Government is the one provided for the development of these gases, and the testimony which I have read shows that in the war we manufactured under the direction of military officers, not of dye plants, the gases which we required. It is remarkable, in view of the importance attributed to poison gases, how insignificant was the quantity used upon the battle fields. Doctor Hesse re-ferred to the fact that only a few tons comparatively were used, although we had produced in the United States prior to the war very much more than was used during the entire war.

Mr. President, when I was interrupted I was calling attention to what I regard as the pernicious and unjustifiable provision of the bill imposing, in addition to an ad valorem rate, a specific rate of 7 cents a pound upon intermediates and finished products, and I had called attention to a number of those

I referred to refined naphthalene, the price of which before the war was 17 cents a pound. By the pending bill, in addition to the ad valorem duty, we provide a specific duty of 7 cents a pound, or more than 400 per cent duty. On nitrobenzol we provide a 117 per cent duty.

Take the item of benzol-chloride. The price before the war, as I recall, was 28 cents a pound. The bill carries a specific duty of 7 cents a pound and an ad valorem duty of 60 per cent. On aniline oil 7 cents a pound was the foreign price before the war. We impose a duty of 7 cents a pound, specific, which is 100 per cent, and an ad valorem duty as an intermediate of 50 per cent.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President-

Mr. KING. I yield to the Senator from New Jersey.
Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The information that I have from the Tariff Commission is that as aniline oil invoices the price in Germany in 1914 was 8 cents, and in 1921 our United States sales price was 22 cents. When the value was higher in 1914 the price was 8 cents, and even now Germany could import it as against 22 cents. So I think a 50 per cent duty is not out of the way

Mr. KING. The price of 7 cents a pound was furnished me by Mr. North, of the Tariff Commission, who made the computation at my request. He stated to me that the domestic price for aniline oil in 1921 was 22 cents; that the foreign price in 1914 was 7 cents. A specific rate of 7 cents per pound would be 100 per cent, and in addition the bill carries a high ad va-What the Senator says as to the domestic price is lorem duty. It simply means that the domestic producers are now charging more than 200 per cent more than the foreign price before the war.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Did not the Senator mention some other figure—a figure of 75 cents, or was it 7 cents?

Mr. KING. I mentioned 7 cents.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Our production cost is 22 cents now, and in Germany 7 cents. Even with a 7-cent duty and 50 per cent ad valorem Germany could put it here at 17½ cents.

Mr. KING. The difference between the Senator and my-self arises from the fact that he wants to preserve these peak prices and to frame a tariff bill upon war prices or present prices, assuming that present prices are the ones which should obtain in the United States and should be projected indefinitely into peace times.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The Senator has picked out one or two of the largest products, but he has left out some of those on which there is a very wide differential,

Mr. KING. If the Senator will pardon me, I did that for the purpose of emphasizing the unfairness of a specific duty and applying it to articles where there was such a wide range in prices. The Senator did not understand my point, or, perhaps, he was called from the Chamber when I attempted to make it. I agree with the Senator that I did not mention, although I intend to later, a number of high-priced dyes, a specific of 7 cents a pound, if one believes in a specific duty, would be entirely fair. I would have no complaint about that, but I was complaining about the provision of the bill, if the Senator will honor me with his attention, which gave the same specific rate to these cheap dyes, 11 cents and 1 cent a pound being the pre-war price, of 7 cents a pound, as the dyes, the pre-war price and the domestic price of which now is perhaps 50 or 60 or 70 cents or a dellar a pound.

I have called attention to the unfairness and discrimination hoping that the committee would offer an amendment that would meet the situation in a just and proper manner. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. The Senator knows that during the war, when the textile men came to Congress and asked for duties, we fixed at that time a specific duty of 5 cents and 35 per cent ad valorem. That was in 1916. That was before the fall in exchange. The specific duty at the present time covers those articles which are absolutely necessary to be protected, and protected drastically. If there is to be a dye industry at all on these intermediates, we must absolutely protect the intermediates as essential to the manufactured product. It is like the Aladdin ready-made house, if we bring the house here and assemble it. It is the same way with the intermediates. If we do not protect them properly, the German industry will bring their assembling plants here and simply assemble those products, and command the dye industry or those products from which dyes are made. That is the position of the committee it is assemble to have a minimum specific and then mittee; it is essential to have a minimum specific and then a compound rate, with a 50-cent ad valorem duty, in order to cover the wide differential.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I regret that my appeals have not found a readler response in the heart of the Senator from New Jersey and that I have been unable to make a convert of him. appreciate his position, and it was stated somewhat more fully by my colleague, the senior Senator from Utah [Mr.

Smoot], a few moments ago.

The theory seems to be that we must penalize the cheaper products by imposing higher rates upon them, thus laying upon the greater number of users of cheap products the heaviest burdens; burdens which result from this crafty and subtle method of indirect taxation. A dye that cost 1, 2, 3, or 4, or 7 cents a pound before the war is subjected to a specific duty of 7 cents a pound in addition to an ad valorem duty, so that the tariff may amount to 300 or 400 per cent; and this upon the theory that we must get as much as we can out of the products which are used universally or in bulk, because we will not get so much profit out of the articles which are not used in such large quantities. Mr. President, I do not think that view is I do not think it is sound economics or that it is just and fair.

Why should the textile people or those who use the cheaper dyes-indigo, sulphur black, and two or three other dyes, which constitute 50 per cent of the entire production of the country, which are made cheaply and which are used in such great abundance—be taxed so high, 7 cents specific and 60 per cent ad valorem, and the same compound rate be applied to dyes that sell for from 50 cents to 60 cents a pound or perhaps a dollar a pound? I submit that, from my viewpoint, it can not be justified in morals or upon sound economic theory. that it increases the profits of the manufacturer.

I said a moment ago that three or four dyes-indigo, sulphur black, direct black, and one or two others-constitute 50 per cent, approximately, of the entire dye product of the United States. In 1920 we manufactured, as I recall, 88,000,000 pounds of dyes. Approximately 50 per cent of those were of the dyes that could be manufactured cheaply; yet it is now proposed to put this enormous specific rate of duty upon them, the same specific rate that we put upon the other dyes, many of which were only manufactured to the extent of a few hundred thousand or possibly million pounds, and the prices of which range from 5 cents up to several dollars a pound,

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President-

Mr. KING. I yield to the Senator from New Jersey. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Did the Senator from Utah state that sulphur black and indigo constituted 50 per cent of the production of the United States?

Mr. KING. I stated that those two and two or three others—approximately four—including sulphur black and indigo, as I recall, constitute between 30 and 40 per cent of the entire production in the United States.

Mr. FRET INGHUYSEN. In the interest of accuracy, let us are the correct figures. Sulphur black in 1920 constituted have the correct figures. 18.5 per cent of our total dye production, and in 1921 it constituted 20 per cent. Indigo in 1920 constituted 20 per cent of our total dye production and in 1921 it constituted 17 per cent. Sulphur black and indigo therefore in 1920 constituted 38.5 per cent of our total dye production and in 1920 they constituted 37 per cent of that production.

Mr. KING. I said they constituted between 35 and 40 per ent. The Senator from New Jersey has the document before him and has read from it, while I spoke from memory, but I did not miss it very far. I gave the minimum and the maximum,

I thank the Senator, however, for having given the figures.

Mr. President, the same criticism which I am making with respect to the intermediates because of the specific rate is applicable to paragraph 26, which deals with the finished products. A few moments ago, when I was interrupted by my colleague, I was stating that the preliminary summary of the census of dyes and of coal-tar chemicals for 1921 prepared by the Tariff Commission shows that the average price per pound of coal-tar intermediates in the United States for the calendar year 1921 was 25 cents. While some of these intermediates are to-day was 25 cents. While some of these intermediates are to-day selling for only a few cents per pound, others are selling for upward of $1 per pound. It can readily be seen that the specific rate of duty of 7 cents per pound offers a high protection for the intermediates selling for a few cents per pound and affords only limited protection for those dyes selling in excess of $1 per pound. Refined naphthalene is selling to-day at 7 cents per pound, so the specific rate is equivalent to 100 per cent protection based on American valuation. Nitrobenzene is selling for 9½ cents to 12 cents per pound, chlorobenzene for 8 to 12 cents per pound, phenol for 12 to 16 cents per pound, and aniline oil for 15½ to 17 cents per pound and ortho nitrotoluene for 12 to 14 cents per pound. It is evident that the specific rate of 7 cents per pound alone is equivalent to a protection of 50 per cent ad valorem based on American valuation of these simple coal-tar intermediates.

It is logical that the commodities provided for in paragraph 25 should be divided into at least three classes. All those intermediates which are simple in manufacture and not far removed in process of manufacture from the coal-tar crudes from which they are derived should be provided for at one compound rate of duty, while all those intermediates which require a greater number of steps in the process of manufacture and whose costs of production are higher should be provided for by a higher compound rate, while those intermediates which require one or two steps in manufacture to convert them into the finished coal-tar products should be provided for by a still higher rate of duty, and most probably at a rate of duty the same as that of the finished coal-tar product. In this last category may be placed dehydrothiotoluidine and tetramethyldiaminobenzophenol (otherwise known as Michlersketone), and so forth, which products are converted into the finished dyes with only one or two operations.

I am assuming, of course, in making these suggestions, recommendatory in form, that one believes in the imposition of tariff rates both specific and ad valorem and that this industry calls for some protection. Those who believe in protection for the industry, it seems to me, ought to adopt a classification that would deal fairly and justly with the people and not impose a tariff rate of 400 per cent upon one coal-tar intermediate and 50 or 60 or 70 per cent upon another intermediate coal-tar product. I submit that that is discrimination which is not warranted and which may not be defended. It could easily be arranged to classify these intermediates-it could be more easily done than to classify the finished products—so that the injustices to which I have referred might in part be obviated.

In like manner certain of the coal-tar dyes in paragraph 26-that is the paragraph dealing with the finished productsshould be provided for at a lower rate of duty than those dyes which are more complicated in structure, more difficult to manufacture, and most costly to produce. For instance, indigo and sulphur black and other sulphur products illustrate the point that I am making. Sulphur black is to-day being sold in this country at practically pre-war prices, namely, 16 to 20 cents per pound. Indigo and sulphur black are consumed in this country in larger quantities than any other two dyes and, no doubt, the cost of manufacture of these two dyes is almost as low as in any country in the world.

I want to digress at this point, Mr. President, to again invite attention, and I apologize for so doing, to the situation in which other countries find themselves, particularly Germany and Switzerland, with respect to intermediates, which are the basis, after the crudes, for these dye products.

During 1921 Switzerland sent to the United States substantially the same quantity of dyes as did Germany. Switzerland is largely, if not wholly, dependent for her intermediates upon other countries. We are not; because of our enormous cokeoven industry, we produce great quantities of the crudes and the intermediates. I do not carry the figures in my mind, but my recollection is that in 1918 we produced of intermediates 200,000 or 300,000 tons, enough intermediates to supply over and over again the demands of all the countries of the world for the manufacture of dyes.

Great Britain manufactures some dyes; but investigation, I think, will establish the fact that we can compete with Great Britain in the manufacture of intermediates. France, now Britain in the manufacture of intermediates. France, now that she has had restored to her some of the coal fields which were taken from Germany, can produce her own intermediates; but Germany, under the Versailles treaty, has parted with a large part of her primary products. Her coal, her iron, her potash, and many other products that gave her more or less of primacy in some industries have been taken from her in large measure; she has lost a large part of her coal mines in Silesia; she has lost one-eighth of her important territory and a considerable part of her population, and a large part of her capital-I have heard it estimated all the way from one-eighth to one-fifteenth of her capital.

Be that as it may, as a result of the war she has lost a large part of her territory from whence she derived her primary She has been saddled with an enormous debt-a products. debt which up to the present time she gives no indication of her capacity to meet—and has been confronted with a situation that seems to portend, if not financial chaos in Germany, a situation that it will take many years to enable Germany extricate herself from. When Senators talk about Germany being a formidable rival to the United States, it seems to me that they discredit the genius, the ability, the resources of their own country. Germany, with 2,000,000 of her men killed and millions disabled, with much of her home land taken, with a great debt which has been placed upon her, with no ships to transport her products except the few which she has constructed and a limited number which she has been able to purchase—to speak of her as being the compet, or of this great Nation is to me to discredit the American people and our own institutions

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President—
The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from New Jersey?

Mr. KING. I yield. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Germany's production of dyes alone in 1922 was 190,000,000, as against 295,000,000 in 1913. That does not show much loss of man power.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, that would not prove anything at As a matter of fact, I do not think the Senator is accurate in stating that the production of dyes was nearly 200,000,000 pounds.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. That is by rate of marks.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. That is by rate of marks. Mr. KING. Oh, by rate of marks. As a matter of fact, the production of dyes—and I speak only from memory—was about 110,000,000 pounds, not 190,000,000 pounds. We produced annually between 1918 and 1920, inclusive, between sixty-five and eighty-eight million pounds of dyes.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I state this-that in 1913 Germany produced 295,000,000 pounds of dyes, and in 1922, in March, at the rate of 190,000,000 pounds.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the Senator says "at the rate of 190,000,000 pounds." I have known factories to turn out, under some stress of circumstances, a tremendous amount in a day or in a month; but it would not be a wise man who would predicate the production upon some extraneous or unique or contingent I grant that Germany is producing dyes. circumstance. deny that Germany can produce dyes any cheaper than they can be produced in the United States, or that she can equal the quantity production of the United States. Of course, if we intend, and that seems the design of this bill, to maintain these high levels of prices, then a different situation will obtain; but I had supposed that the Senator from New Jersey, being such a warm admirer of President Harding, and following so loyally his chief, believed in the statement of the President that "we must return to normalcy," and that he would facilitate the work of his leader and aid in restoring normal conditions; but the Senator, I am afraid, shows heretical tendencies. He is rather heterodox instead of being orthodox. He does not want to return to normalcy. He wants to preserve these war levels, these high prices of the manufacturers, the doubling and trebling and quadrupling of the prices of dyes to the textile industry of the United States over prices which obtained in 1913 and in 1914 and in pre-war years. I do not believe that that is a wholesome situation.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President—
The VICE PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Utah further yield to the Senator from New Jersey? Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. When the Senator speaks of heresy to a chief, I refer him to the message of President Wilson, dated May 20, 1919-

Mr. KING. I am familiar with it. It has been referred to many times in the Senate.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN.

In which the President urges that we must have complete independence from Germany in the dyestuff industry, and he has urged it twice. He thought it so important that he radioed it from France.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, any recommendation made by President Wilson would attract my attention as it would attract the attention of people everywhere. His statesmanship, his great vision, and his fine leadership justified his party in following most of his recommendations. No one claims him to have been infallible. i.f.e all leaders, he was dependent upon the recommendations and investigations of subordinates. of his subordinates were inefficient and incompetent, and doubt-less some were selfish. That always happens, and the greatest leaders have often been the victims of misinformation and misplaced confidence.

President Wilson undoubtedly was pressed to make strong recommendations in behalf of the dye industry. I have no doubt that statements were submitted to him which were inaccurate, and, of course, upon the facts presented he was compelled to act. It is quite likely that President Wilson was told that Germany at the close of the war was in possession of large quantitles of dyes and was in a position to flood the world with dyes at prices so low as to temporarily at least destroy production in many countries in the world. Undoubtedly he accepted the representations made, and, as I have indicated, suggested to Congress legislation for the protection of the domestic dye industry. If he had known of the facts, I have no doubt but what his recommendations would have been entirely

There was hysteria during the war, and immediately following the war, with respect to national preparedness and the importance of the dye industry to accomplish that end. A most persistent, well-planned, well-executed, and subtle campaign was carried on in all parts of the United States to secure prohibitive tariff duties upon dyes as well as an embargo. believe there ever has been so extensive a propaganda; one so cleverly conceived, so adroitly executed, and so effectively pursued as that devised by the Chemical Foundation, the Dyes Institute, and the domestic dye producers of the United States, including representatives of the Textile Alliance Associationall of whom confederated and conspired to visit various parts of the United States and to address societies, organizations, and associations.

Chambers of Commerce; business men's, Rotary, and Kiwanis clubs; patriotic organizations; the American Legion; and medical and chemical organizations have been importuned to permit representatives of the Chemical Foundation and the Dyes Institute to address them, ostensibly upon the question of national preparedness or the development of the chemical in-dustry of the United States, but primarily to secure the adoption of resolutions in favor of a dye embargo or prohibitive tariff rates applicable to dyes and all forms of coal-tar products.

Many of the people of the United States were deceived by this nation-wide propaganda. The campaign of the dye in-terests of the United States and the Chemical Foundation and the Dyes Institute and the Textile Alliance has not ceased. Their agents and representatives, hundreds of them, are active and energetic; they are here in the Capitol; they secure the aid of the press, and they are bending every effort to push through this bill, which grants to the domestic dye producers a complete monopoly and which will enable the manufacturers of drugs, medicines, and pharmaceuticals to exploit the American people, because under the terms of the embargo hundreds of medicines and drugs may not be imported into the United

I deny that President Wilson intended that rates should that resident which intended that rates should be so high as to exclude the importation of dyes, and I deny that he intended that a monopoly should be created or that an embargo should be established. Mr. President, I repeat that it is dangerous to the protectionists to establish an embargo policy. They will, by so doing, become iconoclasts and batter down the walls of their own economic superstructure.

When diverted I was saying that Germany, because of her chaotic industrial condition, is not in a position to compete with the United States in many of the products which we produce. There was handed to me a few moments ago a supplement to Commerce Reports, May 8, 1922, by Mr. Herring, commercial attaché of the German Embassy at Berlin, with an introduction by Mr. Klein, Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and in briefly discussing the situation in Germany the writer says:

It would seem, however, that the inevitable saturation point is ow approaching, and that continued note issues—

Speaking of the inflation and the issue of paper moneyand increases in the floating debt can not indefinitely postpone the operation of economic law. The steady decline in the mark's internal purchasing power during the last two years is highly significant, since it results in continuous wage demands and the necessity for greater income among all classes, with far-reaching effects on production costs.

Of course those acquainted with economics and with the function of money know that prosperity does not come by setting printing presses to work. Russia and Austria have pursued that course. Now a dollar will purchase more than a million Russian rubles. As the Russian currency was inflated the evils that besieged the country increased. Production is the basis of prosperity. A balloon currency will not vitalize industry or add to the wealth of a nation.

Reading further from page 7 of this publication:

As experience has shown at home and elsewhere since the armistice he real difficulties of industry, and thus of labor, begin with the erlod of deflation, which has not yet commenced in Germany.

This morning's paper and yesterday's dispatches indicate that Germany has reached an agreement, or has provised that there would be a balancing of the budget, and that we may expect that the height of inflation has been reached and that the period of deflation will now be entered upon and be continued until Germany's circulation of paper currency shall not exceed the annual revenues of the German Government. I continue reading from this publication:

The continuous rise in wages, the increase in coal and metal prices, heavy advances in freight rates with others in prospect, and the half-compulsory furnishing of a certain proportion of export credits to the Government for reparations payments have all c. nbined to bring about new high levels in German manufacturing costs. So long as the mark continues at its present low value there will probably be a reasonably safe margin of production cost, which will enable German manufacturers to dispose of the great quantity of goods which they must export if raw materials are still to be imported and German industry tent going. port if raw kept going.

All of which shows that Germany's situation is such as to preclude the thought of her becoming at the present time, and in her present situation, a formidable competitor of the United States in any considerable number of commodities.

Mr. McCUMBER. Mr. President-

Mr. KING. I yield.
Mr. McCUMBER. The Senator just made a statement which interested me very much, and I would like a little fuller explanation of his views upon it. His statement was that the peak of inflation in Germany had probably been reached, and that we would now see a period of deflation. I want to ask the Senator if he thinks that Germany can ever redeem her outstanding paper with gold at 24 cents per mark? Senator think that that is within the line of a possibility, even?

Mr. KING. Mr. President, one assumes a dangerous rôle when he becomes a political prophet or an industrial or economic prophet; yet I am inclined to think that the Senator's question almost answers itself. It would seem that from all human evidences Germany will be compelled to repudiate her internal indebtednes

Mr. SMOOT. Or tax it out of existence. Mr. KING. Yes; or tax it out of existence. probably adopt, in part at least, Soviet Russia's policy and call in a considerable part of her paper money, issuing notes of lower face value in lieu thereof. Russia attempted to call in, for instance, a million-dollar ruble note and issued in lieu thereof a thousand or a ten thousand ruble note. Germany will be compelled to inaugurate a drastic system of taxation and probably cancel or repudiate much, if not all, of her internal indebtedness

Aiready we are advised that Germany is retrenching, enforcing economies in the administration of the Government, denying to municipalities Federal aid which has heretofore been granted; transportation rates have been increased and many reforms inaugurated calculated to bring Germany back to the paths of safety. It seems clear under these conditions that the peak of inflation has been reached and a complete right-about-face must be made by the Government.

Germany is seeking to obtain a loan to meet her reparation payments. She can have no financial standing among nations who have power to extend credits unless she balances her budget, retraces her steps, and abandons the foolish, unsound, and destructive policies which have guided her since the armistice. To bring about needed reform will undoubtedly produce a serious situation in Germany. There will possibly be political troubles, possibly upheavals, more or less serious, there will be industrial and economic confusion and great distress and suffering will be experienced by the people, but the deflation policy will be followed or Germany will go "upon the rocks

A few days ago I called attention to the statement emanating from the Department of Commerce to the effect that on the first of last month wages had been increased in Germany 40 per cent, and transportation charges had been increased in like manner. The publication also stated that in all branches of trade and industry and in all parts of the Republic prices were advanced. The report from which I have just read fortifies the statement which I formerly presented to the Senate.

When I was diverted by the questions of the Senator from New Jersey, I was directing attention to some of the effects of the 7-cent per pound specific as found in this bill, and I was calling attention to paragraph 26, and I stated that indigo, sulphur black, and other sulphur products were examples of the injustice that would result from the specific duty upon products which were cheap, measured by the specific duty upon products the prices of which were high. Sulphur black is to-day being sold in the United States at substantially 16 to 20 cents a pound. More indigo and sulphur black are consumed in this country than any other two dyes and no doubt sumed in this country than any other two dyes, and no doubt the cost of manufacture of those two dyes is almost as low as in any country in the world.

It is of interest to know that the coal-tar medicinals, many of which are sold by the ounce, and the domestic prices of which are several dollars per pound, are provided for at the same specific rate of 7 cents per pound as the cheaper coal-tar The specific rate of 7 cents per pound alone affords a protection of considerable magnitude for these cheap dyes, and there is limited protection to these coal-tar medicinals selling by the ounce at prices from 60 cents to several dollars per pound.

No doubt the coal-tar finished products provided for in paragraph 26 should be divided into two or more different classes, as I suggested that there should be a classification of the products in paragraph 25, each class protected at a rate more clearly in accord with the differences in costs of production

I have no hope that this suggestion which I have made will be carried out, but I again submit that in the interest of justice and fairness there ought to be a classification of the rates fixed in paragraph 25 and in paragraph 26, at least two or three classifications, so that the same specific duty should not apply to all of the products in those two paragraphs.

The Senator from New Jersey referred to the "smallness" of our dye industry, and the inference was that the duties in the past were too low. The fact is that we have had duties upon dyes for many years. The act of June 30, 1864, provided a duty of 35 per cent ad valorem on the aniline dyes and $1 per pound specific. July 14, 1870, a duty was fixed of 35 per cent ad valorem and 50 cents per pound specific; but crude aniline oil was free, as were also picric acid and nitropicric

I need not call attention to the fact, because all will remember it, that the price of dyes then was much greater than now, Because of the remarkable developments in this country and in the world, prices went down in many products since 1864 and 1870, and that is true of dyes.

In the tariff act of February 8, 1875, rates were fixed the same as in 1870, with the addition of nitrobenzol, which was given 10 cents per pound, and alizarin was made free. In 1883 coal-tar dyes bore a 35 per cent rate and alizarin, natural or was free, indigo and artificial indigo free, aniline oils and salts free

In the act of October 1, 1800, the rates were the same as in the act of 1883, with dyes known commercially as alizarin yellow, alizarin orange, alizarin green, alizarin blue, alizarin brown, and alizarin black, which were added to the free list.

In the act of August 27, 1894, there was provided a 25 per cent ad valorem rate upon coal-tar dyes, but alizarin and indigo were free; alizarin dyes were free, as were also aniline oil and salts.

The act of July 24, 1897, provided a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem upon coal-tar dyes. Alizarin and alizarin dyes were free, anthracene dyes were free, indigo was free, and aniline oils and salts were likewise made free.

The act of August 5, 1899, gave substantially the same rates as the act of 1897.

The act of October 3, 1913, provided a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem on coal-tar dyes. Alizarin and alizarin dyes were free; anthracene dyes were free, as were also in igo and indigo dyes, aniline oil and salts, and a number of other products.

The act of September 8, 1916, carried a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem and 5 cents per pound on coal-tar dyes; indigo and indigo dyes, 30 per cent; alizarin and alizarin dyes, 30 per cent; anthracene dyes, 30 per cent; aniline oil and salts and a number of phenol compounds carried 15 per cent ad valorem and 2½ cents specific. Generally speaking, the intermediates carried a duty of 15 per cent ad valorem and 2½ cents

Mr. President, under the act of 1880, which carried high rates, we imported 563,872 pounds of dyes for that year, but we produced nearly 4,000,000 pounds of finished products. So that our production was greater than our imports in 1880.

Mr. SMOOT. In 1880 the only manufacturers of dyes in this country were those who manufactured from intermediates imported from Germany.

Mr. KING. That is true.

Mr. SMOOT. All they did in the world was to import the intermediates and mix them in a vat and sell them as American-made dyes.

Mr. KING. It had been the policy to admit intermediates free. That was desired by the American producers and, as my colleague says, we imported the intermediates and produced from those intermediates 4,000,000 pounds of finished product.

Mr. SMOOT. Yes; that is right. Then, in 1909, when some of us tried to establish a dye industry in the United States and started with a small ad valorem duty of 10 per cent, the western manufacturers of the country and the leather manufacturers and the cotton manufacturers were up in arms and fought it from beginning to end. The Senate passed a bill imposing a duty upon intermediates with a view of establishing the industry in the United States, knowing that they could not have any permanent dye industry in the United States until they got their intermediates, because they were dependent upon them. But when the bill went into conference, even that 10 per cent went out and the intermediates went back on the free list in the tariff act of 1909, as they always had been.

Mr. KING. I agree with my colleague. The manufacturers of dyes in the United States preferred to import their intermediates and to manufacture the finished products, so intermediates were placed upon the free list.

I want to make one observation at this point. Some people get the idea that it is calamity for us to import anything into the United States. Do they forget that for the importations from Germany there were exportations from the United States to Germany? Germany purchased millions of pounds of the beef products of the farms and the ranches of the United States. Germany furnished a market for our surplus products because we had the good sense to purchase some of Germany's surplus products. But some of our Republican friends conceive it to be evidence of impending national destruction for us to trade with any nation; that to point to the fact that we imported something from Germany or from England or from Can-ada is a badge of dishonor to be placed upon the brow of the Nation. That, Mr. Presdent, is such an ignoble, antiquated, and antedfluvian view that it is to me abhorrent.

Of course, we imported some intermediates from Germany, but we paid for our intermediates by sending abroad our surplus products. We found in Europe markets for billions of American products, and Europe found in the United States a market for many of her products. I wonder if Americans objected when Germany, Holland, Belgium, and France were building railroads across this country, uniting the Atlantic and the Pacific? Germany and Holland aided in building the Northern Pacific; they furnished money for railroads and for many of the industries of the United States. We were willing to take her money, willing that she should make investments in the United States.

We believed in the principle of fellowship.

But now the tariff bloc and other troglodytes emphasize the view that we must cut off all trade with all nations, and that we must by tariff walls make it impossible for imports to come into the United States. I do not include in that classification, of course, all Republicans.

Mr. President, the fact is that we were producing a considerable poundage of dyes, as I have indicated, in 1880—4,000,000 pounds. We preferred to divert our capital into other industries, or, doubtless, we would have prosecuted with the growth of the coke-oven industry in the United States the develop-ment of the dye industry. But no country or no community develops in a day or in a year or in a given period all indus-tries which the country or the community may have the power to create. Capital seeks investment usually where it can get the largest returns. For many years we were building railroads, and billions of dollars went into the railroads, steam and electric. When, because of reasons which I shall not enumerate, railroading was unprofitable and railroad investments were precarious capital sought other outlets. Now it is almost impossible to get money to invest in railroads.

The dye industry became profitable, and money was available for the development of the dye industry. Whenever any industry gives evidence that it will be profitable capital will seek investment therein.

In 1916 the Hill dye-tariff bill was passed. A committee of the leading chemists of the United States met and prepared a letter which was submitted to Mr. Hill, a member of the Ways and Means Committee of the House. That letter is so illuminating and discusses so clearly the situation that I shall tax the patience of the Senate in calling attention to it.

It must be borne in mind that there was a feeling throughout the United States following the war that we should have a dye industry. The war had shut off the importation of dyes from Germany, and it was found that our domestic production was inadequate for domestic needs. We had bec from 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 pounds of dyes per annum during 1912, 1913, and 1914. Our production was approximately three or four million pounds. Therefore it was deemed important by dye men and by the chemists who represented them and by the best chemical thought of the United States that there should be some modification of existing law.

A committee was appointed. The chairman of that committee was Dr. Bernhard C. Hesse, to whom I have referred and who was one of the ablest chemists in the United States. The other was one of the ablest chemists in the United States. The other members of the committee were Mr. J. B. F. Herreshoff, I. F. Stone, J. Merritt Matthews, H. A. Metz, D. W. Jayne, and Allen Rogers. All of them, as I understand, were either engaged in the manufacture of of dyes or in the manufacture of chemicals. They were familiar with the chemical industry, with the difficulties, if any, which the United States experienced, and with the possible competition from abroad. And the property of t a thorough investigation, weighing all the evidence, pro and con, they submitted this letter as the basis for legislation which they asked and which they regarded as necessary to the establishment in a dependable way of the permanent dye industry in the United States. I quote from their letter, as follows:

NEW YORK, January 7, 1916.

Hon. E. J. HILL, House Office Building, Washington, D. C. House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

SIR: H. R. 702 is in part based upon the report of the chemicals and dyestuffs committee to the New York section of the American Chemical Society appearing in the Congressional Record for December 10, 1914, copy of which is hereto attached.

The undersigned constituting the complete membership of seven of that committee herewith submit at your request their justification of—(1). The rates proposed in that report and by you incorporated into H. R. 702; and

(2) Their expectation that as a result of such duties a complete, self-contained, and independent coal-tar chemical and dye industry will eventually result in the United States.

The professional activities of these seven men and the industrial occupations represented by them on this committee are as follows:

(1) Manufacture of heavy chemicals,

(2) American coal-tar dye producers.

(3) Textile interests.

(4) Importers of coal-tar dyes.

(5) American producers of crude coal-tar products.

(6) Leather and tanning interests.

(7) Chemical expert in coal-tar dyes.

So it will be seen that this committee of seven men represented.

So it will be seen that this committee of seven men represented the entire coal-tar chemical industry. Representing this great industry, they had consulted together, with a view to determining the rate which would be adequate for the protection of any chemical or coal-tar industry in the United States. then proceed:

then proceed:

In 1882 this country possessed a coal-tar dye industry that promised to grow into something worth while. There was then a duty of 35 pectific the cent ad valorem and 50 cents per pound specific. When this specific duty was removed in 1883, whatever we then had of a coal-tar dye industry languished and has since been practically without effect. A specific duty has since then not been levied.

In 1908 two of the largest American coal-tar dye plants then in existence (Schoelikopf, Hartford & Hanna Co., of Buffalo, and Heller & Merz Co., of Newark, N. J.), submitted to the Committee on Ways and Means under date of November 9, 1908, at the hearing of November 11, 1908 (pp. 128-130, vol. 1, of the official record of those hearings), a detailed statement as to the added protection they would require in order to compete successfully in this market against European-made dyes, but themselves using European-made intermediates.

I shall put the entire letter in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Spencer in the chair). In the absence of objection, the letter to which the Senator from Utah refers will be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed

cent ad valorem and 50 cents per pound specific. When this specific duty was removed in 1883, whatever we then had of a coal-tar dye industry languished and has since been practically without effect. A specific duty has since then not been levied.

In 1908 two of the largest American coal-tar dye plants then in existence (Schoelikopf, Hartford & Hanna Co., of Buffallo, and Heller & Mers Co., of Newark, N. J.) submitted to the Comm'ttee on Ways and Means under date of November 9, 1908, at the hearing of November 11, 1908 (pp. 128-130, vol. 1, of the official record of those hearings), a detailed atstement as to the added protection they would require in order to compete successfully in this market against European-made dyes, but themselves using European-made intermediates.

In that elaborate cost statement they showed that a proposed materials cost of 13.22 cents per pound for finished dyes, against an existing cost of 14.76 cents (1, e., a materials cost decrease of 1.54 cents per pound), together with an increase in the ad valorem rate from 30 per cent to 40 per cent, would enable them successfully to compete, although using foreign-made intermediates. At the same time and place they also showed that the corresponding materials cost for the same finished dyes per pound in Germany was 10.57 cents.

Reverting now to the tarlff in effect in 1882, this committee is dependably informed that the then average import value of the great bulk—that is, from two-thirds to three-fourths of all the European-made coal-tar dyes entering this country—was a little over $1 per pound, and this notwithstanding the statement of from 50 cents to 60 cents made by Mr. John Campbell under date of July 26, 1882, at pages 154-156, volume 1, of the Report of the Tarliff Commission of 1882. If this committee's information of the $1 figure be correct, then the specific duty then in effect was essentially one-half of the fair average import value of the bulk—that is, from two-thirds to three-fourths—of all the dyes reaching this country fro all should be taxed 30 per cent ad valorem plus 7½ cents per pound specific.

In general, the German 1913 export price of intermediates is about one-half that of finished dyes. Therefore, this committee compensated the specific on finished dyes. Therefore, this committee compensated the specific on finished dyes to the intermediates by adding a specific duty of 3.75 cents per pound on all intermediates. This committee suggested a 15 per cent ad valorem duty on intermediates as against 30 per cent ad valorem on finished dyes, because, compared with the finished dyes, with the intermediates being made in larger units and amounts, the handling costs in manufacturing intermediates in the factory are less than the handling costs for finished dyes.

Returning now to the statement of Messrs. Schoelikopf and of Messrs. Heller and Merx above referred to, the added protection due to the there proposed increased ad valorem would amount to 1.5 cents on dyes of an average value of 15 cents entering this country. Adding this 1.5 cents to the 1.54 cents above shown given as a total an added 3.04 cents protection per pound on dyes of the above-stated fair average import value.

As a test case of the net effect of this schedule of rates upon the production of the cheapest dyes, this committee further had the benefit of the following calculations based upon the assumptions now to be given:

The dye known as orange II is probably the type of the cheapest.

be given:
The dye known as orange II is probably the type of the cheapest of the dyes that are imported into this country. It is made by assembling two intermediates known, respectively, as sulphanilic acid and betnnaphthol. In general, 173 pounds of sulphanilic acid and teamaphthol will yield 350 pounds of the commercial dye in its highest commercial concentration. There were four cases assumed with regard to respective import values, as follows:

Case.	Orange II.	Sulfa- nilie acid.	Beta- naph- thol.

in the Record, as follows: New York, January 7, 1916. Honse Office Building, Washington, D. C. Sir: H. R. 702 is, in part, based upon the report of the chemicals and dyestuffs' committee to the New York section of the American Chemical Society appearing in the Concressional Record for December 10, 1914, copy of which is hereto attached. occupations represented by them on this committee are as follows: (1) Manufacture of heavy chemicals. (2) American coal-tar dye producers. (3) Textile interests. (4) Importers of coal-tar dyes, (5) American producers of crude and coal-tar products. (6) Leather and tanning interests. this cheap dye under this variety of price circumstances and combi-

It is therefore clear that the rates that this committee suggested meet the following three conditions:

(1) Recreate the tariff conditions of 1882 to conform as nearly as possible to the altered conditions of 1914.

(2) Give the industry that makes does from intermediates the added assistance that in 1908 it showed to be necessary for its continuance in business.

(3) Protect the domestic intermediates maker.

There is also the added advantage to the dys-making industry that all of the coal-tur dyes are dutiable and none are free and that all intermediates are dutiable and none are free.

That the committee's assumption that 15 cents represents the fair average import value of the bulk of the dyes reaching this country in 1914 is reasonably near the truth is shown further by the average materials and labor costs given in the statement of Messrs. Schoellkoph, Hartford & Hanna Co. and of Messrs. Heller & Mers, of 1998, just referred to... The combined labor and materials costs in Germany of the 3,000,000 pounds of dyes there referred to is 12.82 cents per pound. Our present consumption of dyer, is between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 pounds per year.

In order to visualize the effect of these proposed rates upon intermediates and dyestuffs and the total protection afforded, the following table is submitted:

In 1913 the average export value out of Germany of intermediates was 10.07 cents per pound, and of finished dyes 21.53 cents per pound. Therefore these proposed rates give a total protection of 53 per cent to this average value of intermediates and of 65 per cent to this average value of infished dyes, and, furthermore, conform very closely to the tariff conditions in 1882 and satisfy the 1908 requirements of the United States dye makers mentioned, and in addition protect the entire class of coal-tar dyes and their respective intermediates and gives the prospective American intermediate maker a protection which has hitherto never enjoyed.

This committee further believes that with this protection on the cheaper dyes, the domestic manufacture of the more expensive varieties of dyes, of pharmaceuticals, of medicines, and of explosives will follow almost as a matter of course.

In order that there may be given as little opportunity as possible of evasion of the duties contemplated to be imposed by the report of this committee, this committee now respectfully suggests to you that House bill 702 further contain a definition of what is to be a coal-tar dye for the purposes of this act, so that such things which under our present adjudications are not coal-tar dyes and are not coal-tar dye intermediates will be obliged to pay the duty of coal-tar dyes.

The materials we have in mind are the dye bases known as magents hase, victoria blue base, Victoria green base, Bismarck brown base, auramine base, crystal violet base, methyl violet base, rhodamine base, chrysoidine base, and the like, which are imported in that condition and merely require the addition of a small amount of murital carid thereto to convert them into the commercial forms of dyes. In the form of bases they are neither dyes nor intermediates, and the pass of the pass in this connection it will be necessary to look into the language employed by the court in the decision reported under Treasury decision 34400, in volume 26, for January to June, 1914, and 5 Customs Court of Appeals.

Furthermore, the language used in the cases cited in Treasury Decision 28003 with regard to bramofluoresic acid should be consuited, so as to prevent evasion along the line of those products which are dye acids and need merely the addition of a small amount of soda ash to convert them into commercial dye forms. It would not do to place these raise upon commercial dye forms. It would not do to place these raise upon commercial dyes and not intermediates under our present adjudications and which merely need the addition of a negligible amount of muristle or other acid or of soda ash or of similar material to convert them into the read dyes of our adjudications. It is obvious that if any such loophole were permitted to stand the result expected of those rates would not take place—i.e., a complete, self-contained, and independent coal-tar, chemical, and dye industry within the borders of the United States.

This committee further suggests that in placing natural indigo on the free list the wording selected be such as positively to exclude indigo not derived from vegetable sources from that free list.

From the point of visw that the protective duty contemplated to be added by these proposed rates will reappear in whole or in part in the form of a direct addition to the normal cost of dyestuffs, it is clear that those users of dyestuffs that have in whole or in part hitherto enjoyed the free list will bear the greater relative proportion of such putative increase. Whether such addition will actually take place or not this committee expresses no opinion; it merely states the maximum that can reasonably be expected in the way of increased cost to the users of dyes in this country. In other words, as we stated in our above report, namely:

It will, therefore, be necessary to determine carefully if the advantages to be gained are equal to the price to be paid.

This committee herewith unanimously reaffirm its belief that the rates

CONCLUSIONS.

As to this schedule of rates proposed—

(1) It is the probable lowest schedule that will induce complete, self-contained, and independent manufacture within the United States.

(2) It meets and very closely duplicates the tariff conditions existing in 1882, when we did have something of an industry of this

(2) It meets and very closely duplicates the tarm country of this kind.

(3) It meets the requirements set forth in 1908 as necessary to maintain a dye industry in this country, which dye industry then operated with foreign-made intermediates.

(4) It provides at the same time a suitable protection to the making of intermediates within the United States.

(5) It puts all dyes of coal-tar origin upon one and the same level for tariff purposes, and also puts all such intermediates upon one and the same level for tariff purposes.

(6) It gives a protection of 53 per cent on the average value of all finished dyes, such average values being average export values out of Germany for 1913.

Mr. KING. The letter contains this statement:

This committee was further dependably informed that in 1914, before the outbreak of hostilities, the fair average import value of the bulk— that is, from two-thirds to three-fourths of all the dyes reaching this country from Europe—is 15 cents.

Let me say, Mr. President, that the average price of the dyes in the United States to-day is reported by the Tariff Commission to be 83 cents—15 cents then; 83 cents now. Of course the people have to pay for this 400 or 500 or 600 per cent advance in price.

If, therefore, the specific duty of 7½ cents be now added to the prevailing ad valorem of 30 per cent, the tariff conditions in 1882, under which we did have something in the way of coal-tar dye industry, would be substantially reproduced, and under those conditions it is not unreasonable to expect that the industry would again flourish in this country. not unreason this country.

That is to say, in 1880 we produced in the United States practically 4,000,000 pounds of coal-tar dyes, and imported only 4,000 pounds plus. We had a coal-tar dye industry in 1880 and were producing approximately 80 per cent of our consumption.

Bear in mind now that with all the experience of the past these men who were interested parties, who wanted a duty and who were giving ex parte testimony, only asked for the establishment of a permanent dye industry a duty of 30 per cent ad valorem and 7½ cents specific; and yet in the bill now before us it is proposed to grant 60 per cent ad valorem to the finished product and 50 per cent ad valorem to the intermediate; double what the industry asked as a basis for a permanent coal-tar industry in the United States.

In the same report this is what is recommended:

That the committee's assumption that 15 cents represents the fair average import value of the bulk of the dyes reaching this country in 1914 is reasonably near the truth is shown further by the average materials and labor costs given in the statement of Messrs. Schoolkopf, Hartford & Hanna Co., and of Messrs. Heller & Merz, of 1908, just referred to. The combined labor and materials costs in Germany of the 3,000,000 pounds of dyes there referred to is 12.62 cents per pound. Our present consumption of dyes is between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 pounds per year.

Here are the conclusions of the committee. They recomend, as I have said, 30 per cent ad valorem and 7½ cents specific. Further-

All the members of the committee signed the letter.

A number of men who were interested in procuring a tariff testified before the committee. Doctor Matthews was asked by Judge Crisp, of the House:

Would you regard the tariff levied in this bill-

The tariff which they had asked forto preclude importation? In other words, would it be prohibitive or would any dyestuffs come in if this tariff were levied?

Doctor Matthews answered:

It would not prohibit importations, because it would take quite a number of years for any industry in this country to arrive at the condition that the German dyestuff industry has arrived at. During that time there would be a good demand for many dyestuffs which would not be made in this country.

I hope Senators appreciate the significance of that. Doctor Matthews contends, in effect, that with that tariff we could build up the dye industry, notwithstanding any possible competition from Germany or elsewhere. Then he was asked this question:

But if this country could produce the dyestuffs, or whenever this country does produce the dyestuffs, would or would not the tariff levied in this bill prohibit importation?

To that question Doctor Matthews replied:

I would not say that it would prohibit importations, but it would give the foreigners a run for their money. It would furnish a good competitive basis to work on.

There is an honest tariff man. He wants a tariff bill that furnishes competition. Those who are back of the bill before us want a tariff law that will prohibit competition. The dyemen who were urging the bill known as the Hill bill in 1916 were willing to have legitimate and reasonable competition, and they were satisfied with a tariff of 30 per cent ad valorement. and 71 cents specific, and contended that they could meet the competition of the world and could build up a dependable, permanent coal-tar dye industry in the United States. Similar testimony was given by other witnesses, Mr. President, but I wish to call attention to the testimony of another of the large dye manufacturers of the United States. Before reading his testimony, however, I direct attention to what Professor Herty He was asked how long it would take with that tariff to enable the United States to occupy a commanding place as a producer of dyes, and he said:

Five or six years will be enough, I think, to get the majority of our manufacturers in good shape where we can not only hold our own but more than hold our own with the Germans. I can not say that for all; some would get in shape earlier and some would take longer.

In other words, one of the ablest representatives of the dye and chemical industry in the United States, if not in the world, was asking for a tariff of but 30 per cent ad valorem and 72 cents specific, declaring that within a short time, as to some of the producers they would be able to compete with Germany and world, but that in the aggregate five years would be all that would be required.

Mr. Schoellkopf, the president of the Schoellkopf Aniline & Chemical Works, Buffalo, N. Y., testified. Let me add that that company has been swallowed up by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, one of the great trusts of the United States, with a capital of nearly $300,000,000, and, of course, that corporation has been here demanding these prohibitive tariffs and embargoes, notwithstanding it has developed by the accretions which have been brought to it until it now comprises within its sweeping grasp scores of corporations, with an aggregate capital of nearly $300,000,000.

Mr. Schoellkopf testified:

Under normal conditions the existing rates are entirely inadequate-

Those were the rates that preceded this bill-to develop a self-contained coal-tar industry.

Then he says:

My own firm has continually been adding new products to its line, but notwithstanding this fact, our output just before the war was continually decilning.

Then he was asked this question:

The CHAIRMAN. You are going to prepare to make about 14,000,000 pounds when you get this plant?

He was then constructing a plant.

Mr. SCHORLLKOPF. Yes.
The CHAIRMAN, If this bill becomes a law, how much larger will you make your plant?
Mr. SCHOBLLKOPF. We will proceed at once to double it, as I first

The CHAIRMAN. Then you would make about 28,000,000 pounds?

Per annum, of course.

The answer was:

Yes.

Let me say that Doctor Beckers, who was connected with another dye plant, had stated that his plant would produce approximately the same amount; so that the two plants, the Beckers plant and the Schoellkopf plant, both of which have been absorbed by the Chemical Trust, would produce approximately fifty to sixty million pounds per annum, which would be the total domestic consumption in the United States at that time and any year prior thereto.

The CHAIRMAN. So, if this bill becomes a law, you would make about 50 per cent of all we need in this country?

Mr. SCHOELLKOPP. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. Then, do you think, being already in the business and having a larger share of it now among the Americans, that if this bill becomes a law you will increase so that you will make at once 50 per cent? Do you think many people will come in and compete with an old-established firm like your own under those conditions?

Mr. SCHOELLKOPP. I think so. There are three in the business now. Why shouldn't they enlarge?

Doctor Beckers testified:

At any rate, there is no doubt that this bill will not create a so-called bothouse industry. We will have a healthy industry.

The contention was that if they gave a rate of 30 per cent ad valorem and 7½ cents specific it might build up a hothouse plant industry. He said, "No; it will be healthy"; and he contended, as did Mr. Schoellkopf—two of the greatest dye producers in the United States—that with that tariff they would build up a permanent, healthy dye industry in the United States.

The chairman asked:

How long have you been in the dyestuff industry in this country, Doctor Beckers?

Doctor Beckers. I have been in this country for 13 years.

The CHAIRMAN. And have you been manufacturing dyestuffs in this country for 13 years?

Doctor Beckers. No. sir. I have been with a German concern eight or nine years, and I have been in business now four years on my own account.

The Chairman. You mean this Beckers Aniline & Chemicals Works have been four years in business?

Doctor Brickers. Yes, sir; the company has been in existence now four years, starting in 1912.

Then, further on, he says:

I have figured that at present I am making about 5 per cent of the hole consumption of dyestuffs in this country with my present plant. He had only been in business four years-

But as soon as I have the assurance of the Government-

With respect to the passage of this bill-that we will be protected against this terrible competition from

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). But is it not a fact that if this bill were passed you would quadruple your plant and output?

Doctor BECKERS (continuing). I expect to make ten times as much Doctor Beckers (continuing). I expect to make ten times as such?

The Chairman. Ten times as much?
Doctor Beckers. Yes, sir; and instead of making 5 per cent I expect to make 50 per cent.
The Chairman. That being so, then you and Mr. Schoellkopf would make the entire consumption—the whole 100 per cent?
Doctor Beckers. Well, I do not know how much he would make.
The Chairman. He said he would make 50 per cent if this bill were

The Chairman. He said he would make 50 per cent if this bill were passed.

Doctor Reckers. I do not know about that, Mr. Chairman. The Chairman. If this bill were passed and became a law, and if you expect to make 50 per cent of the entire consumption, and another large manufacturer expects to make 50 per cent of the entire consumption, are we not justified in being sort of afraid that you two gentiemen would be tempted after the war to get together and have a sort of dinner and make a gentlemen's agreement. Would not you two get together and have a sort of dinner and make a gentlemen's agreement, and establish the prices which these textile fellows will have to pay for your products?

Doctor Beckers. Gentlemen, I tell you—

The CHAIRMAN (interposing). Would you not be tempted to do that?

He does not answer it. He states this:

It is now 5 per cent, and if I increased it ten times it would be 50 per cent of the present entire consumption; but I do not know whether I could make 50 per cent of the entire consumption if this bill were passed, because I feel that as soon as the bill is enacted into law a great many concerns will go into that business, giving our concerns strong competition.

Mr. President, when Congress was legislating for the establishment of a permanent dye industry in the United States, at a time when we were under whip and spur, and the hysterical demand was made that we have a self-contained dye industry, the dye men and the chemical men got together and agreed that a tariff of 30 per cent ad valorem, 7½ cents specific, was all that was required, and two of them said that under that tariff they would make 100 per cent of all the dyes that were consumed in the United States.

Now, when those two corporations have been swallowed up by the great Allied Chemical & Dye Co., with a capital stock of substantially $300,000,000, one branch of which was declared to be a trust several years ago, and is making not less than 40 per cent of the domestic production of the United States, and the Du Pont Co., with a capital of $255,000,000, is making between 15 and 25 per cent of the domestic production, we are asked to give a rate of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents specific. After we have built an industry so strong that it produced 88,000,000 pounds of dyes two years ago and could now manufacture, with the plants already constructed, perhaps double that amount, we are asked to double the ad valorem rates. And this demand is made notwithstanding the industry has been established and is competent to furnish dyes not only for the United States but for the world, and notwithstanding the fact that the United States produces more crudes and intermediates than all other countries in the world put together. We have the resources and we have the capital; we have perhaps the best dye plants in the world, and yet, at the demand of these huge trusts, we propose to increase the rates and grant an embargo.

Mr. President, the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation absorbed the Barrett Co., the Semet-Solvay Co., and a large number of other companies; and one company alone paid sufficient dividends-one of its smaller companies-to constitute in that year a large dividend upon the entire capital stock of this aggregated corporation.

I ask permission to put into the RECORD the names of the constituent companies of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The matter referred to is as follows:

ALLIED CHEMICAL & DYE CORPORATION. Solvay Process Co.: Solvay Colliery Co., By-Products Coke Corporation.

Semet-Solvay Co.: By-products Coke Corporation.

Semet-Solvay Co.: By-products Coke Corporation.

National Aniline & Chemical Co.: Schoellkopf Aniline & Chemical Works, W. Becker's Aniline & Chemical Works, Benzol Products Co., Standard Aniline Products (Inc.), Century Color Corporation.

Barrett Co.: With 40 subsidiary coal-tar chemical plants in 19 States, including large aniline product plant at Shady Side, N. J.

General Chemical Co.: Virginia Mining Co., Western Chemical Co., General Lighterage Co., Nichols Chemical Co., and subsidiary aniline products plants at Marcus Hook and Easton, Pa.

Mr. KING. I also ask permission to put in the Record the corporations constituting the Du Pont de Nemours Corporation, with a capital stock of more than $255,000,000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so

The matter referred to is as follows:

E. I. du Pont De Nemours & Co.: Du Pont Chemical Co., Du Pont Fabrikoid Co., E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Co., Flint Varnish & Color Works, Bridgeport Wood Finishing Co., Du Pont Engineering Co., Cawley, Clark & Co., New England Oli, Paint & Varnish Co., Arlington Co., E. I. du Pont de Nemours Export Co., Harrison Bros. Co., Becton Chemical Co.

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. also has a dominating interest in the General Motors Corporation with assets which in 1921 were reported to be $604,806,868, and which has subsidiary corporations as follows:

reported to be $604,806,808, and which has subsidiary corporations as follows:

Chevrolet Motor Car Co., Buick Motor Car Co., Cadillac Motor Car Co., Oakland Motor Car Co., Oakland Motor Car Co., Scripps-Booth Corporation, Samson Tractor Co., Dayton Wright Co., National Plate Glass Co., Fisher Body Corporation, Dayton Wright Co., Delco Light Co., Hyatt Roller Bearing Co., Champion Ignition Co., General Leather Co., and General Motor Acceptance Corporation.

Mr. KING. That company, by the way, has absorbed some 10 or 15 or 20 corporations which had been paying large dividends. Two of the corporations were adjudged several years ago to constitute a trust and they were dissolved and the stock to be parted with, but the present corporations forming auxiliaries to this parent organization have interests and as sets of a value of more than $255,000,000.

I find in the Commercial and Financial Chronicle of Saturday, May 27, 1922, the following advertisement of stock representation:

E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. Common stock (par value $100)—

And so forth.

(being part of the outstanding $63,378,800 common stock in the hands of the public.)

Business: The company and its predecessors have been engaged in the manufacture of explosives for both commercial and military pur-poses since 1802. Company also manufactures chemicals, paints, var-nishes, dyes, artificial leather, pyralin, and artificial silk.

An examination of the various corporations that are embraced within this huge colossus will show that a great many activities are carried on by this gigantic organization.
Under the head of "General Motors Holdings," it is said:

The Du Pont Co. owns 36.25 per cent, or 7,628,137 shares of the common stock of General Motors Corporation, representing an asset value at present market quotations of over $110,000,000.

That is in addition to the $255,000,000 which constitute a part of the chemical activities of this great corporation. When you are determining whether a corporation exercises monopo-listic control you are permitted to show its connections, its interlocking relations with other corporations, tecause there is a potential power for monopolistic control that will exist, and which may be applied indirectly, if not directly, in the interest of the establishment and the maintenance of a monopoly.

For the past 11 years the company's average annual income applied to the average common stock outstanding has amounted to 54.33 per cent.

The annual income was 54.83 per cent.

Net receipts from commercial business as distinguished from military business for these 11 years have averaged $7,500,000 annually, or nearly 12 per cent on the present outstanding common stock. It should be noted that a large portion of the profits realized from war business has been reinvested in income-producing industries.

I charge, Mr. President, that this great corporation, as well as the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, have amortized the plants which they constructed during the war out of their earnings, in addition to paying the enormous dividends, stock and cash, which Moody's Manual, this paper, and other reputable papers of the United States have disclosed.

Since incorporation in 1915-

That is, the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., which, as I understand, took over many of these companies-the company has paid dividends on the common stock without inter-ruption, averaging 35.86 per cent per share annually, in cash or se-

Net assets: According to the balance sheet of December 31, 1921, net assets (including good will, etc.) applicable to common stock, amounted to $204 per share. Reckoning securities owned at market value instead of cost, these assets would be $243 per share. Company's surplus. December 31, 1921, was $66,080,659. Cash in bank March 31, 1922, was $18,500,000.

These two great corporations, as I have indicated, produce between 55 and 65 per cent of all the dyes that are manufactured in the United States.

Mr. NORRIS. Mr. President, I would like to inquire of the Senator what the object of that advertisement was. What were they trying to sell?

Mr. KING. This is signed by Dominick & Dominick, New York; Laird & Co., Wilmington; Gillespie, Meeds & Co., New York and Wilmington. I am not quite able to answer the question intelligently. It reads:

All of this stock having been sold, this advertisement appears as a matter of record.

Two million shares of stock had been sold, whether out of the treasury or by the stock brokers I am not able to state.

Mr. NORRIS. What was the excuse, then, for the advertisement?

Mr. KING. I am not able to answer the question of the Senator.

Mr. NORRIS. If they did not have anything to sell—
Mr. KING. It says, "all of the stock having been sold, this advertisement appears as a matter of record."
Mr. NORRIS. They are advertising the stock, apparently, after it was sold.

Mr. KING. Under that heading appears this:

Two million dollar E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. common stock (par value $100) (being part of the outstanding $63,378,300 common stock in the hands of the public).

I would deduce from reading that that either the company or these brokers had sold $2,000,000 worth of stock, and there may be some law which requires a recordation or an advertisement of a transaction of that character. I will say to the Senator, however, that Moody's Manual and other reputable books which I have consulted show that the dividends and the capital stock, and so forth, are in harmony with the statements contained in this advertisement.

Mr. NORRIS. I am not questioning the statements. I have no doubt they are true. I do not suppose a company of that kind would set forth those figures if they were not true; but, at the same time, they have not anything for sale, and yet I suppose that is a very large advertisement, is it not, covering a page? Mr. KING.

One-half of a page. Mr. NORRIS. Does the Senator know whether the adver-tisement appeared in other magazines?

Mr. KING. I do not. I read this paper occasionally, and I procured a copy of it this morning.
Mr. NORRIS. What is the title of it?

Mr. NORRIS. What is the title of it?
Mr. KING. The Commercial and Financial Chronicle.
Mr. NORRIS. There have been instances, I think, where some of these great trusts have had so much money that, under the law, a good deal of it could be taken for taxes when it ran up to such a large income, and they utilized a good deal of it to advertise in papers, when they had nothing to sell, because, as a matter of fact, they would have to pay only about a third of the cost of the advertisement. The balance would come out of the Treasury of the United States, or otherwise they would have been compelled to pay it as taxes into the Treasury. is claimed sometimes, I suppose always without foundation, that such advertisements are inserted in magazines and papers for the purpose of perhaps influencing the editorial pages of the magazines or papers.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I do not care to speculate as to the reason for that advertisement, but I am calling attention to the fact that the two great organizations which have been most powerful in urging these rates are the Du Pont Co. and the Allied Chemical Co.-the Du Pont Co., with a capital stock of $255,000,000 plus $110,000,000 constituting its holdings in the General Motors Co., and the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, having a capital stock of substantially $300,000,000. These are the infant industries which are mewling here upon the doorstep of the Capitol asking to be taken in and fed from a bottle by the Republicans upon the other side of the aisle. They are so weak that they can not be protected unless they secure an embargo and the prohibitive tariff rates which appear in paragraphs 25 and 26 of this bill.

I might say, in view of the statement made by the Senator from Nebraska, that there was a suit pending a short time ago in which it was revealed that the income of this organization was very great and efforts were made to avoid paying $5,000,000 of taxes to the Government by a few of the stockholders, upon the ground that the stock dividend, though it was the equivalent of cash, was not subject to Federal taxation. Mr. NORRIS. Would it not be true, under the law, that the

Mr. NORKIS. Would it not be true, under the law, that the very advertisement the Seuator has read would be charged up as expenses, and that the amount of taxes they would have to pay would be reduced just that much? Mr. KING. I think that is true.

NORRIS. So that, as a matter of fact, this glowing advertisement, in effect, is paid for out of the Treasury of the United States. Mr. KING. I repeat, those two corporations, those powerful organizations, have been the great protagonists back of this bill. They and the Dye Institute, which is an organization formed by the dye manufacturers in violation of the law, in violation of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Hardwood Lumber Co. case, have carried on a persistent and subtle campaign for this embargo for years.

The senior Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Moses] rose in his place here some time ago and called attention to the fact that the dye manufacturers formed the Dye Institute, and they spent for legislative work in Washington-that is, lobby--$89,000 in one year, or within a limited period. not be accurate as to the time, but it was from the time the dye embargo bill was introduced in the House until the time the Senator from New Hampshire made his statement,

Mr. SMOOT. Less than a year.
Mr. KING. Less than a year, my colleague advises me.
Mr. Choate received a large sum for his lobbying here. A former Member of Congress received $25,000 for drawing the bill which was introduced in the House of Representa-They have kept their agents and lobbyists here from that time until the present. They have been here by the scores, hounding Representatives and Senators, filling the lobbies of the Capitol, and pursuing members of the Committee on Finance and the Committee on Ways and Means at every hearing, and after the hearings were closed they remained, and are still in Washington intercepting Senators, and trying to thrust themselves into the secret councils of the committee when they were in executive session, in order that they may secure legislation riveting upon the country an embargo, and giving monopolistic control of the dye industry to certain domestic dye producers. I will put into the Recorp, before this debate closes, the names of the lobbyists who have been here and are here now. The hearings are over. We are debating the bill, but the lobbyists will not go home. They like this atmosphere of Washington.

Mr. NORRIS. Until morning?
Mr. KING. No; not to-morrow or day after to-morrow.
They are going to stop here until the committee shall finally report this bill back from conference, and they would hound the conferees, if the conferees would permit it, but of course they will not; but they will dog their footsteps, anyway, for the purpose of coercing them into granting the exactions which these predatory interests demand at the hands of the American people.

Let me call attention to another insidious organization, the Chemical Foundation. Mr. Garvan conceived the idea, so it is said by Mr. Choate, of taking from the Germans more than 4,500 patents and a large number of trade-marks and copyrights which had been registered in the United States. Americans had obtained patents in Germany, but neither during the war nor since did Germany seek to confiscate them. The course of this Government is not so just and honorable in the matter of dealing with patents. We have professed adherence to the highest principles of international comity and justice. days of Washington the United States contended for the sanc-tity of the property of enemy aliens and denied the right of Alexander Hamilton in one of his most brilliant speeches contended for the immunity of private property from seizure by belligerents, and he and Washington, because of their devotion to international morality, compelled the American Government to pay Britishers and Tories for property which had been confiscated during the war by some of the States, or Colonies, as they were called.

I can not approve of the course of the Government in selling these patents and trade-marks, in violation of international law, if not treaties, and the wrongfulness of this course becomes more apparent when it is known that the sale made by officials of the Government to a corporation which they organized and for a wholly inadequate consideration.

Mr. Garvan was Alien Property Custodian and became president of the Chemical Foundation. Mr. Choate and Mr. Ramsay Hoguet were in the Alien Property Custodian's office, dollara-year men, and have received large fees from the Chemical Foundation.

Let me say by way of parenthesis that some of the dollar-ayear men who came down to Washington during the war were not as unselfish as they professed to be, and the facts seem to establish that some of them were not loyal to their trust or fair and honest in their relations to the United States. Some of the dollar-a-year men conceived the idea of confiscating these German patents, so they organized the Chemical Foundathese German patents, so they organized the Chemical Foundation, highly altruistic purposes were announced, and then transferred more than 4,000 patents to themselves or to the corporation which they organized and controlled. Mr. Choate, a dollar-a-year man, is said to have drawn the articles for the Chemical Foundation, receiving $20,000 from the corporation.

Ramsay Hoguet, a dollar-a-year man, working with Mr. Garvan in the Allen Property Custodian's office, got more than $50,000 for examining the patents and performing some legal They formed this corporation, confiscated those patents, and then began their work of propaganda throughout the United States for an embargo. They have expended in this propaganda, I think, between $250,000 and $400,000.

Their propaganda has been nation-wide and it has assumed many forms. Speakers have been sent into various States to argue for the embargo, and the pressure upon Congress for an embargo has been unrelenting. The dyes industry, the Chemical Foundation, the Textife Alliance, and other organizations have had their representatives in Washington for nearly two years, and they are still here lobbying for the dye monopoly. Some of the officers in the Chemical Warfare Service have given some aid in this campaign conducted by the dye interests, and the Chemical Foundation has advanced money to some of the officers of the Chemical Warfare Section for the purpose of making dye exhibits which were used as a part of the lobbying and propagandizing campaign. Every avenue that could be entered, from the women's organizations to the American Chemical Society, has been employed for the purpose of securing an embargo. And the result of this vast campaign, costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, is found in this bill. Not satisfied with a 60 per cent tariff and a specific rate of 7 cents per pound on dyes, they demand an embargo.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President—
Mr. KING. Will the Senator let me offer my motion first, or does he desire to ask me a question?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Yes. I should like to ask the Sena-tor if it is not true that the embargo was inaugurated during the last administration, and did not President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker recommend it and stand for it?

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the first I heard of the demand for an embargo was when Mr. du Pont and others appeared before the committee of the House in support of what was called the Longworth bill. Mr. Wilson, so far as I know, never advocated an embargo. If Mr. Baker did, I never heard of it. But if either of them did, I can only say, as I said a moment ago when the Senator called my attention to the attitude of Mr. Wilson upon another matter, that it would not determine my course. An embargo is un-American and indefensible, no matter by whom offered.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. I am familiar with the Senator's position on this question; but I am simply pointing out that, aside from the activities about which I know nothing except in the course of the general legislation and debate on it, the former administration, and particularly President Wilson, saw the effect on the conflict abroad of the German industrial power in dyes and gases and came back and urged the embargo as a necessary national policy in order to establish the industry in this country and make us independent. Whatever the motives may be of those men, I am not concerned about that. Mr. KING. I do not want the Senator to make a speech in my time.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Very well. I simply ask the ques tion whether it is not true that the policy of the embargo was inaugurated and advocated by the former administration, none other than the President of the United States, Mr. Wilson, and his Secretary of War, Mr. Baker?

Mr. KING. I know nothing of the advocacy of an embargo by Mr. Wilson. I shall be very much surprised if the Senator can put his hand upon any paper indicating he advocated an embargo. I doubt whether he can put his hand upon any an embargo. I doubt whether he can put his hand upon any statement made by Mr. Baker advocating an embargo. Of course, during the war there was an embargo not only upon dyes but upon many commodities. But we are not at war now. I might say in passing that having taken these patents from the Germans and transferred them to the Chemical Foundation, and the dye manufacturers in the United States availing themselves of their provisions, no German dyes covered these patents may be brought into the United States with-by these patents may be brought into the United States without the consent of the men who owned the patents, whether there was an embargo or not.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Is the Senator quite sure of that?

Mr. KING. I am quite sure of this proposition, that all dyes that are covered by the German patents, now claimed to be owned by the Chemical Foundation, could not be brought into the United States and sold here without their consent. Indeed this corporation charges a license fee of 10 per cent for any dyes that are brought into the United States which are not manufactured here, and which are brought in under the provisions of the emergency tariff act.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Does the Senator contend that a German-manufactured dye can not be brought into this country on account of the existence of the Chemical Foundation?

Mr. KING. If the Senator had listened he would have known what I said.

Mr. WADSWORTH. I heard what the Senator said, and I was trying to confirm my understanding.

Mr. KING. I said that any dyes brought into the United States covered by those patents could only be brought here by the consent of the owners of the patents. The Senator knows that every pound of dye that is brought into the United States now covered by those patents has to pay a royalty of 10 per cent, and in addition a license must be procured from the United States to import it.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Is it not true—
Mr. KING. Of course, if the Senator will pardon me a moment, there are some dyes brought in not covered by the moment, there are some dyes brought in not covered by the patents, and some of the patents have expired, but I referred to dyes covered by patents. As I have heretofore stated, not only dye patents and various other patents but also trademarks and copyrights were seized and sold to the Chemical Foundation. Our courts, as I am advised, have held that trademarks are considered with a patential article or commodity do not marks connected with a patented article or commodity do not necessarily expire; that is, their protective power or right is not lost, even though the patent may expire by limitation. That is to say, suppose a certain dye or a formula, for its protection, is patented and the dye is sold under a given name, say, "The Silver Star Dye," and a trade-mark is obtained, based upon that name, for the patented dye; upon the expiration of the patent the trade-mark would not necessarily expire or lose its effectiveness as a means of protection to the company selling such dye. Accordingly, I think, though I have not examined the subject with any care, that if one of these dye patents should expire by limitation and a trade-mark has been obtained in the United States which relates to the dye, the expiration of the patent would not give the right to some firm or individual not owning the trade-mark to bring the dye into the United States and sell it under that particular trademark. It seems to me that the owner of the trade-mark would be entitled to protection of the name and be entitled to bring injunction proceedings to restrain the use of the trade-mark.

Injunction proceedings to restrain the use of the trade-mark.

Mr. McCUMBER. The Senator does not contend that a trade-mark prevents the bringing in of the identical article and selling it in the United States?

Mr. KING. No; I did not mean that.

Mr. McCUMBER. I do not understand what the Senator meant, then, when he said that they could not be brought in if there was a trade-mark

there was a trade-mark.

Mr. KING. I attempted to convey the thought that if one has a trade-mark and has employed it in business and it pos sesses value, he would be protected against any person who attempted to use such trade-mark. Accordingly if a trade-mark was registered in the United States by a German, registered under the law and pursuant to treaty, and it was sold to an American, who continued its use, he would be protected in that use against the efforts of others to employ it in the sale of commodities brought from Germany, where the attempt was made to sell such a commodity or protect it under the same trade-mark, and the courts would grant injunction. For instance, if there is a patent on the formula used in the manufacture of bromo seltzer and a trade-mark has been taken out calling such product the Rising Sun Bromo Seltzer, the owner of such trade-mark would be protected in its use even after the expiration of the patent. And if bromo seltzer were imported and an attempt made to sell it under this trade-mark, it is my and an attempt made to self it under this trade-mark, it is my understanding that the courts would grant relief.

Mr. McCUMBER. Take an illustration like this: Take Bayer's aspirin. We selzed the patents here and sold them, and the trade-mark with them, and yet it is Bayer's aspirin. It was manufactured in Germany as Bayer's aspirin. If the German manufacturer desires to sell his Bayer's aspirin in the United States to-day he can do so, notwithstanding the fact that the trade work has been cald, teacther with the rectary which the trade-mark has been sold, together with the patent, which is now expired.

Mr. KING. May I ask the Senator if he interprets the trademark law as giving no protection?

Mr. McCUMBER. The trade-mark law has nothing to do with the importation

Mr. KING. No; I did not say the importation. I said the sale

Mr. McCUMBER. But let me complete my statement.

Mr. KING. Very well. Mr. McCUMBER. If the same trade-mark is held in Germany, even though it is sold in the United States in connection with the patent, the German, with the identical thing manufactured under this trade-mark and under the name that he has been in the habit of making it and selling it, can not be prewented from importing it and selling it in the United States.

Mr. KING. I think that the Senator would accept a retainer to bring an injunction suit to prevent the sale of articles where the trade-mark had been taken out under our law and the articles were brought in from Germany and sold in the United States. And I think he would win his case if the facts showed that the American trade-mark had a different name than did the German trade-mark.

Mr. McCUMBER. I am going to ask the Senator some time when it is convenient to read the case of Bourgois against Katzel in the Federal Reporter, volume 275, on that very point. Mr. KING. My understanding is that the courts have held that trade-marks do not necessarily expire though patents expire. Patents are obtained, and trade-marks relating to the patented articles or formulas may be taken out. As I understand, the courts will under certain conditions protect the holder of the trade-mark even after the life of the patent. I have a book here published by the Chemical Foundation, showing the four thousand and odd patents which it claims to own.

Mr. McCUMBER, I want to say to the Senator that under this very paragraph 26 he will remember we have introduced a provision to prevent the coming in as against trade-mark, which I am going to move to strike out on the floor of the Senate because I think it is improper. It was inserted for that very purpose. But there is no patent whatever now and nothing but the trade-mark to guard it.

Mr. KING. I am very glad the Senator is going to take that step because even if that were wise and fair legislation, it does not seem to me it has any place in a tariff bill.

Mr. McCUMBER. I think the Senator is right.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. President-

Mr. KING. I vield.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Did the Senator state the importations of dyes from Germany had to pay a royalty to the Chemical Foundation?

Mr. KING. This is what I said, that dyes which were manufactured in Germany and brought into the United States which were covered by patents sold to the Chemical Foundation and now claimed by the Chemical Foundation-

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. You would have to pay a royalty? You would have to pay a royalty or they could Mr. KING. enjoin you from selling them. My contention is that the pat-ent would protect the owner against infringement, and it would be an infringement to sell dyes in the United States which were covered by patent taken out in the United States.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Does the Senator from Utah know what percentage of the importations are covered by these re-

Mr. KING. Does the Senator mean by that to inquire whether I know the number of dyes that are imported into the United States which are covered by patents?

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. No; the percentage of importations that are covered by patents that are compelled to pay a royalty to the Chemical Foundation.

Mr. KING. I gave the percentage in the statement which I made some time ago, but I do not now recall the amount.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Is it not less than one-half of 1 per cent of the total importations?

Mr. KING. No: I do not agree with the Senator there.
Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. That is my information.
Mr. KING. I think the Senator is in error. If that be true, then these patents which the Chemical Foundation is contending for so stoutly would be quite unimportant.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, will the Senator from Utah state what he thinks should have been done with the German patents when we went to war against Germany?

Mr. KING. I think, Mr. President, that we should have pursued the course with respect to the German patents that we did with respect to other property which was seized; we should have held it until the war was over.

Mr. WADSWORTH. And not used them?

Mr. KING. Well, I do not say as to the question of using them; but that is not the question involved. The question of confiscation is what I am talking about.

Mr. WADSWORTH. It seems to me that is the entire ques-

Mr. KING. As I understand the matter, that is not the question. I have not considered the question of the use of the patents after seizure by the United States. I have talked about the confiscation, and the transfer of the patents to the Chemical Foundation. That is what I am complaining of.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Did we not do so with other property?

Mr. KING. Yes, we did. Mr. WADSWORTH. Is not a patent property?

Exactly. Mr. KING.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Does the Senator think we did wrong in taking certain manufacturing plants owned by alien enemies and selling them?

Mr. KING. I do.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Then, the Senator from Utah is opposed to the whole alien property custodian policy as carried out during the war?

Mr. KING. The Senator must divide the question, I was in favor of seizing enemy-owned property and holding it during the war; that I believe was the intention of Senators; but I am opposed to the confiscation of enemy-owned property.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Has it been confiscated?

Mr. KING. Of course, it has been confiscated if it has been sold.

Mr. WADSWORTH. How about the proceeds of the sale? Mr. KING. Let me say to the Senator that the broad statement ought perhaps to be subject to qualification. If the property was sold for full value it might not be technical confiscation. And again, let me add, that if the property was perishable—for instance, if a box of oranges or a case of eggs was seized, I think that they should have been sold and the proceeds held.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Is not that just what happened as to all this property?

Mr. KING. No; that is not just what happened.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Well, what has happened to the pro-

Mr. KING. This is what has happened, Mr. President, if the Senator is talking of confiscation-

Mr. WADSWORTH. I deny the accuracy of the term "confiscation. Mr. KING. Oh, well, it is confiscation, in my opinion, when property is sold without necessity and for an inadequate con-

Mr. WADSWORTH. That may be so, but that does not attack the principle of the thing. Now, I want to know from the Senator whether this Government of ours when it went to war against Germany did a right thing or a wicked thing when it seized property belonging to enemy aliens and sold it and put the proceeds into a fund in the Treasury for future settlement after the war was over?

Mr. KING. The Senator should divide his question. However, I have answered it twice, and I will answer it again. believe that it was proper legislation to provide for seizing the property, to be held in trust during the war, and to be returned to the owners after the war.

Mr. WADSWORTH. And to hold it idle?

Mr. KING. Wait a minute. If some of the property was perishable in character, there was warrant for its sale; but to sell property which was not perishable, and particularly to sell it for a nominal figure, in my judgment, was confiscation, or at least a policy which may not be justified.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Will the Senator from Utah submit to another question?

Mr. KING. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Under the alien property custodian act any sale had to be under an Executive order, had it not?

Mr. KING.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Therefore, when the patents were sold to this private corporation by the Alien Property Custodian-

Mr. KING. They were sold by Executive order. I am familiar with that. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. They were sold by Executive order. President Wilson signed an order confiscating the property, did he not?

Mr. KING. Mr. Wilson, or some one acting for him, signed an order for this sale. Mr. Wilson, of course, could not examine into all the sales and acted, of course, upon the recommendation of others. I regard the order for the sale of the patents as imprudent and improper. The patents were to be held in trust for return to the owners.

I do not believe, Mr. President, in the policy of confiscation, It will be resented not only by patriotic Americans but it will provoke criticism among enlightened nations. The very word "confiscation" is hateful. Of course, there is much to be said in favor of using the property of German nationals which seized by the Alien Property Custodian to liquidate the claims of American citizens against the German Government for its torts, but I have never been able to accept that view and have constantly insisted that property seized was to be held in trust until the end of the war, and then it was to be restored to the German or Austrian owners of the same.

Let me add that Germany made no attempt to confiscate American patents or to sell them. Indeed, her treatment of seized property was quiet and temperate and far less drastic than the course pursued by the United States. Germany has signified her willingness to restore all property owned by American nationals which was seized during the war. My understanding is that much of the property has been restored.

Mr. President, the patents which were seized should be re-stored to the Alien Property Custodian and held by him until Congress shall act in the matter. I think that this subject is of so much importance that Congress should consider it at an early date and pass a comprehensive statute dealing with the entire subject. It is possible that the action of Congress may be influenced, and properly should be influenced, by treaties which may be negotiated between the United States and the German Government. However, the underlying principles should be observed; that private property should be immune from confiscation and that American nationals should have re-stored to them all property which was seized by Germany, and that German nationals should have restored to them all prop-erty which was seized by the United States during or since the war

Mr. President, the question now before the Senate is whether the rates found in paragraphs 25 and 26 shall be maintained. I insist that the rates are inordinately high and will practically amount to an embargo. Later in the consideration of the bill I shall show that these rates, even without the provisions of the bill which permits the President to increase the duties 50 per cent, will act as an embargo against most foreign dyes. other words, notwithstanding the fact that the domestic dyes are several hundred per cent above pre-war prices, the situation in Germany is such that many of the dyes manufactured there, if imported to the United States under the rates imposed in this bill, would be sold at less, though the prices here are far above pre-war levels. The 60 per cent ad valorem and the 7 cents specific on the finished dyes, I repeat, will be an effectual embargo as to most dyes.

This bill without the embargo provision gives the domestic dye manufacturers a monopoly of the domestic market, but influences back of the dye interests are so powerful that I have no doubt they will obtain the rates provided in paragraphs 25 and 26. I desire, however, to enter my protest against the same, and I shall ask the Senate to accept amendments that will reduce the tendered rates to from high to temperate levels. I have stated that I am making no war upon the dye industry. That industry is now well established. It has millions invested. It has mobilized great resources and it constitutes a powerful ally to the chemical interests of the United States. I desire to deal fairly and justly with all industries. The pernicious activities of the dye interests, their persistent lobbying, their misrepresentations of the facts and of the situation—all these things have not aroused any prejudices which would not have influenced me in offering the amendment which I have suggested and further amendments which I shall tender to the Senate.

The Present Status of Adjusted Compensation.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. A. PIATT ANDREW,

OF MASSACHUSETTS,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Tuesday, June 20, 1922.

Mr. ANDREW of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, the decision of the Senate Republican caucus not to adjourn before disposing of both the tariff and the veterans' compensation bills would seem to assure the adoption during the present session of Congress of the much-belated settlement with the soldiers and sailors of the World War. The bill favorably reported by the Senate Finance Committee is virtually the bill that passed the House March 23 last by the overwhelming majority of 333 to 70. It contains a few modifications in details, but only one change that is important. It eliminates completely the extraneous and dubiously expensive reclamation project which had been grafted upon it by the reclamation group in Congress.

It has been one of the misfortunes of the compensation plan which has multiplied opposition to it in the country and has helped to delay its adoption that one group after another has tried to further some particular hobby by tying that hobby to the bonus proposition. "Wets" have sought to alter the Volstead Act by arranging to pay for the bonus by a tax upon wine and beer. Advocates of a sales tax have tried to secure its adoption under the guise of providing money for the soldiers. Opponents of the money market have tried to further their ideas by linking bonus legislation with taxes intended to hinder stock and bond transactions.

These propositions, though presented to Congress in the form of bills or amendments, never got beyond the stage of discussion. Those who had advocated a general and nation-wide plan for reclamation projects, and who had heretofore received little encouragement in Congress, actually succeeded, however, in injecting this project into the veterans' compensation bill as reported by the House Ways and Means Committee, and under the rule preventing amendments by which this bill passed the House project was adopted by the House itself. This feature of the bill, had it been enacted into law, would in all likelihood have cost the Government several hundred millions of dellars, although it would have offered to veterans no commensurate benefits and, in fact, no specific choice of benefits for many years to come. It was an irrelevant, ill-considered, and extravagant proposition, and the Senate committee acted wisely in rejecting it.

PRIMARILY MATTER OF INSURANCE.

Veterans' compensation, as it awaits the vote of the Senate to-day, is primarily a matter of insurance. Speaking in general terms, the bill offers to every veteran of the World War a free insurance policy, proportioned in value to the time he served in the Government's forces during the war, payable to himself at the end of 20 years, or payable to his beneficiary or estate in case he dies during the intervening period. It also offers as alternative for his choice immediate aid in vocational training or in the purchase of a house or farm. The cash bonus, as such, has been eliminated, except for those who served only a few weeks, and to whom not more than $50 would be owing—the maximum aggregate of such payments being estimated at about $16,000,000.

If all the four and a half million veterans were to choose the insurance benefit, the ultimate expense involved, it is estimated, might reach the total of approximately four and a half billion dollars, but this would be distributed over a period of at least 20, and perhaps more than 40, years. If all were to choose the alternative of vocational training, the total might reach a little over $2,000,000,000, most of which would naturally have to be paid during the next three or four years. If all were to choose farm or home aid, the total expense is estimated at somewhat less than $2,000,000,000, distributed over the next seven years.

THREE PER CENT ON ANNUAL BUDGET.

These are the outermost possible limits. The actual ultimate total cost and the actual cost for any one year depend upon the choice of the veterans as between these alternatives. They are not definitely determinable in advance, but are subject to rough estimation. We are doubtless justified in assuming that relatively few veterans at this late day will choose vocational training. The Senate committee thinks that not more than 2½ per cent of them will so choose, and they estimate the cost as about $52,000,000, divided between the next three years. It is believed unlikely that more than one veteran in four will choose farm or home aid, but if such a preportion of veterans apply for this type of benefit, the total expenditure involved would reach about $460,000,000 in the course of seven years, or an average of about $65,000,000 per year. The expense of insurance, it is estimated, will not average more than $20,000,000 annually for the next three years. On the basis of these estimates, the total cost of veterans' compensation in its various forms will average not much above $100,000,000 per year in 1923, 1924, and 1925, which would mean an addition of little more than 3 per cent to the annual budget.

According to the provisions of the bill, beginning with 1926, the veteran will be able to borrow from the Government on the security of his insurance certificates, and on that account the annual expense will be increased thereafter, but each such annual increase involves a more than proportional decrease in the ultimate total cost, because the certificates which are retained intact by veterans until maturity acquire additional value.

WAR DEST GREATLY REDUCED.

The sums involved are unquestionably large, as were, in fact, all the expenses entailed by the World War. But how prepesterous is the claim that the country can not afford to acquit its obligations to its veterans is evidenced by the fact, to which Mr. Mellon points with pardonable pride, that our Government has already in the three years since the war reduced its debt by three and a half billions of dollars, a sum more than twice that which would have been required to pay in cash the entire bonus to the veterans. In three years our Treasury has paid off 14 per cent of its total indebtedness. At the present rate of reduction, the entire Government debt will be extinguished by 1943, when most of the veterans insurance will mature. It is to be remembered in this connection that our allies in the late war still owe us more than eleven billions, and whether or not the greater part of this is ever paid, if only the British Government continues to pay interest upon its indebtedness to us on the scale for which it has provided during the coming year, that interest alone will cover every, expense involved in the proposed adjusted compensation measure.

THE HOUR WAS ARRIVED.

Among the reasons heretofore advanced for delaying the adoption of the compensation bill were the scarcity of money, the high interest rates everywhere prevailing, and the low prices of our Government bonds, all of which made it difficult for the Government to secure funds and meet its obligations. Such arguments, however, have lost much of their force, when Liberty and Victory bonds have risen to par, when bank credits and reserves are at their highest leyels in history, and when American bankers are ready to consider the loan of billions to countries that were so recently our enemies.

President Harding, in writing to Mr. Fordney last February, said: "I am aware of the sentiment in Congress in favor of adjusted compensation. I have spoken approvingly myself, always with the reservation that the bestowal shall be made when it may be done without such injury to the country as will nullify the benefits to the ex-service men themselves which this expression of gratitude is designed to bestow."

One can not but respect the reasons for the President's hesitation at the time when he wrote. But are there not now good grounds for believing that that hour has at last arrived when this expression of gratitude can be safely bestowed upon our veterans for the services they rentered and for which every man, woman, and child in the country really felt grateful, four and more years ago?

Banish Liquor from Ships and Everywhere.

SPEECH

HON. WILLIAM D. UPSHAW, OF GEORGIA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Thursday, June 15, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11872) to amend the Panama Canal act.

Mr. UPSHAW. Mr. Chairman, before addressing myself to the main question in my speech to-day I feel constrained to make a faithful report to this House concerning a trip recently taken in the South, and where, in a large gathering in Georgia attended by many men from different States, I found a kind of universal opinion down there, freely expressed, that if this Congress does not hurry up and accept the sensible Henry Ford offer for Muscle Shoals the people will give him the White House when the time comes around. They have faith in his wonderful business ability—faith in his humanitarian treatment of his employees-and they believe that he, more than any other man, or set of men, will make Muscle Shoals a great national commercial and agricultural asset, and the people demand quick action.

Recent utterances on this floor, Mr. Chairman, by a number of gentlemen, including the vacant vaporings of the genial gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Gallivan], have moved me to reply to their contention and their flagrant effort to discourage the enforcement of our national prohibition law. This theme is always vital to every man who believes in national morals and God-fearing patriotism. But the revelations brought out on the floor of the House and in the papers concerning the sale of liquor on American ships are simply astounding. The position of the Shipping Board is utterly untenable. The eighteenth amendment was put into our organic law after due governmental process to outlaw the manufacture, transportation, and sale of intoxicating liquors. The Volstead Act promptly and imperatively followed it up in compliance with that new constitutional provision to enforce the eighteenth amendment. The question now before the American people is a question of the competency of this Government to make its own laws and execute its own laws. If ships claim the privi-lege, the protection, of the American flag beyord the 3-mile limit, then, God knows, every law of justice and patriotism and national loyalty and salvation will demand that they obey the laws of the flag that protects them everywhere. [Applause.]

Mr. WARD of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question? Mr. UPSHAW. Yes.

Mr. UPSHAW. Yes. Mr. WARD of North Carolina. Have you any views on the question as to what effect it will have on our commerce and to what extent it would affect the subsidy to keep our commerce equal to that with which it is in competition?

Mr. UPSHAW. Answering the gentleman's question in general terms, may I refer to the statement made by Mr. Lasker at a function in Washington last night?

Mr. WARD of North Carolina. That is what I mean.

Mr. UPSHAW. I am told that he declared that our I am told that he declared that our merchant marine would practically have to go out of business if it did not sell liquor on board.

Mr. SMITH of Idaho, Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman vield?

Mr. UPSHAW. I yield to the gentleman from Idaho. Mr. SMITH of Idaho. I happened to be at that function to which the gentleman makes reference, and Mr. Lasker made no such statement.

Mr. UPSHAW. I am delighted to hear it. A man who was there told me he did. May I ask the gentleman from Idaho what was Mr. Lasker's statement?

Mr. SMITH of Idaho. I do not care to discuss that matter, but I wish to say that Mr. Lasker did not make that statement, Mr. LONDON. Assuming that the sale of liquor would be profitable, that would not justify the violation of a law,

Mr. UPSHAW. Not at all. I am just coming to that.
Mr. LONDON. May I make another suggestion? The Constitution does not prohibit the use of liquor for medicinal purposes. That does not necessarily mean that a physician must prescribe the consumption of liquor. If a man feels that the drinking of liquor will cure disease and will be beneficial to him, I think he is strictly within the Constitution if he takes

Mr. UPSHAW. I will say this to the gentleman from New York—and may I say to other interested gentlemen that just now I prefer not to be interrupted until I declare myself on this matter. Mr. Lasker had been quoted in the papers, even before last night's function, as saying that he counts it absolutely legitimate to sell liquor on board the ships, and that it will continue to be sold there until there is a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States to the contrary. He also takes the general position—or the newspaper correspondents so credit him—that the merchant marine ships can not profitably sail without selling liquor; in other words, that they can not successfully compete with foreign ships that do sell liquor. That is the same old groundless argument that we heard all over America when many men were throwing their arms around the saloon and declaring, as they foully hugged it to their bosoms, that if the saloon were outlawed real estate would go down, that hotels could not operate, and that grass would grow in the streets of our great cities. I will answer that with the statement of my brilliant and genial friend, Bob Broyles, a rugged orator and multimerchant, in Atlanta, at the legis-lative hearing in Georgia when he said, "They say that grass will grow in the streets of Atlanta if we abolish the saloon; let it grow; I would rather raise a little more hay and a little less hell." And you know that the spirit that will allow Ameriless hell." can ships to violate the law is fatally unsound. That human debauchery was outlawed in both Houses of Congress with the approval of the President of the United States and with the ratification of 46 States of the American Union, and with the approval of the Supreme Court of the United States. this devilish thing outlawed it is uterly unthinkable and un-American that the United States Government, beneath its own flag, should permit the ships which it protects to trample under foot the spirit of the Constitution, and any man who takes that is trampling the Constitution beneath his feet and position position is training the Constitution beneath his feet and defying the flag above his head. [Applause.]

If we believe in the constitutional righteousness of the action that outlawed the liquor traffic, which was the great, heartless highway robber that took $2,500,000,000 annually over the counter out of the pockets of the American people, and which was the greatest enemy to efficiency and happiness that the workingman ever knew—if we believe in outlawing this devilish thing, it is unthinkable that the American Government can not I want to say frankly that as the friend of American youth and American manhood and the purity and happiness of the American home, I would rather see a whole fleet of ships, without passengers, sunk to the bottom of the sea than to see the moral passengers, such to the bottom of the sea than to see the moral standard of our flag lowcred in the eyes of the American people and of the onlooking world. [Applause.] And I want to say that if it was a right thing and a brave thing—and I think it was—for the President of the United States to call other nations in fellowship to try to stop the waste and horror and hell of war, it would also be a brave, fine, moral inspira-tion for the President of the United States to call into conference the other nations that want to sail liquor ships into our ports, and enter into an agreement not to debauch the people who come to our shores. It is our duty to say to for-eign ships, we have a right to say to foreign ships, "If you want to come into our ports and violate our laws and make it convenient and tempting for our people to debauch themselves and trample upon our Constitution, then you can not come in." That is national common sense. That is international reci-Other nations ought to be ashamed to seek our hand procity. in trade and spit in the face of our law at the same time. To that the shipping business of the world will stop for the lack of booze is an outrage on international morals and the basic stability of international commerce.

Mr. Chairman, if we obey the law that allows no ship to carry liquor, to transport it in any way within the 3-mile limit, then there will be no liquor aboard when that ship gets beyond the 3-mile limit.

I referred in the beginning of my speech to the "vacant vaporings" of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Galli-VAN]. Not only did he recently regale this House with facetious and unprecedented-unprecedented on his part-for law enforcement to be applied to the Shipping Board—for once, wonder of wonders, a "wet" Democrat from Boston and a "dry" Democrat from Georgia are found in accord—but he made on February 8 an elongated argument against our prohibition law in general, which I would have answered at the time but for my absence on account of a family sorrow.

If it was the desire of the Member from Massachusetts to or time and cause it to stand out clear-cut in the annals of the history of the Sixty-seventh Congress, he chose a most effective way of accomplishing his purpose in the presentation of his speech before the congressional hody on February 8, in which he declared the past two years of law enforcement have been hell.

The speech was largely or, it might be said, entirely devoted to an attack on certain prohibition leaders in and out of Congress. The attack was an excertaing statement of the alleged personal financial interests of these, of the averred extravagant sum being expended in the work of law enforcement, and the claim that nothing is being accomplished and that the country is in a far worse condition than ever before. As to the attack on individuals I shall not reply. These gentlemen are all of good standing and they need no defense.

Concerning the statement that nothing is being accomplished we should like to call the attention of the Member from Massachusetts to the statement of the national highest official, the President of the United States, who says:

President of the United States, who says:

In every community men and women have had an opportunity now to know what prohibition means. They know that debts are more promptly paid, that men take home wages that once were wasted in saloons, that families are better clothed and fed, and more money finds its way into the savings banks. The liquor traffic was destructive of much that was most precious in American life.

In the face of so much evidence on that point what conscientious man would want to let his own selfish desires influence him to vote to bring it back? In another generation I believe that liquor will have disappeared not only from our politics but from our memories.

This of fixelf should be sufficient, but, with an abundance of

This of itself should be sufficient, but, with an abundance of evidence to combat the statement that nothing is being accomplished, no benefits derived, that conditions are even worse, that there is more drunkenness than heretofore, we will endeavor to enlighten the Member who has suffered so seriously during the two years of prohibition, the result of his suffering perhaps having been such that it has been impossible for him to advise himself as to true conditions and the phenomenal progress that is being and has been made in freeing the country from the curse of drink.

NOT A GOOD LOSER.

Mr. Gallivan has evidently been so obsessed with the de-plorable conditions, as set forth by him, precipitated by two years of prohibition, that he has failed to inform himself as to the fundamental principle of law enforcement. He seems to think the entire propaganda emanated from the fertile brain of a few active leaders in the movement, as mentioned by him, for their own personal and financial interests.

The matter was put to the vote of the people throughout the United States through the various legislatures, which resulted in a vote of 80 per cent majority in the senates and 86 per cent by the members of the houses for the ratification of the national prohibition amendment.

Prohibition is the lawa part of the fundamental law of the Nation. "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of law enforcement." Mr. Galliyan is not a good loser, aid of law enforcement." Mr. Gallivan is not a good loser, as indicated in his address before the Members of the House on Wednesday, February S. Law enforcement is one of many laws. Abraham Lincoln said, "Let reverence for the laws be the political religion of the Nation." A citizen can not choose what laws he will obey, and it has been cited by the Attorney General of the United States that those who do not believe in our Government and the enforcement of our laws should go to a country which gives them their peculiar liberty.

The organized outlawed liquor dealers, encouraged by the utterances of Mr. Gallivan and other liquor champions, do make it difficult to enforce the law. No one claims that the prohibition law is completely enforced, but all the wet organizations in the world can not galvanize into life the dead body of John Barleycorn.

Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, brought a large audience to its feet at the Lyric, in Baltimore, recently by the declaration:

You know, as I know, that there would be no rum runners and bootleggers if there were no purchasers of bootleg liquor. The man who patronises a bootlegger is as guilty as the worst bootlegger himself.

Chief Justice G. T. Marshall, of the Supreme Court of Ohio, has declared:

Lax enforcement of prohibition laws is causing a general contempt for other criminal statutes and is directly responsible for the crime wave which has been sweeping the country and rendering property and human life insecure.

Bishop Thoburn Nicholson, of the Thoburn Church, Chicago, in his annual sermon a few weeks ago, said:

Europe drunk can never compete with the United States sober. You stand by your guns and make it true that the United States is dry and we shall have a sober England, France, and Germany before our children dia. The same is true of every nation,

We trust these excerpts from leaders and men of deep thought will awaken some new thoughts and ideas in the mind of Mr. GALLIVAN and his associates who may voice his sentiments, and prove to him that his influence is not in keeping with the position he occupies as a Representative to voice the interest of his constituents and bend his energies for the best good for the greatest of people. Law enforcement is "of the people, by the people, and for the people," and has already been proven so and accepted as such by the large majority of the people of the United States.

CONDITIONS GREATLY IMPROVED UNDER PROHIBITION.

Mr. Gallivan has said that there has been no improvements in conditions in the past two years. We beg the attention of the Member from Massachusetts for the consideration of a general résumé of conditions selected at random. It is universally conceded that the holiday trade this year was phenomenal. It has been said—and the explanation is generally accepted—that since the country has quit wasting more than $2,000,000,000 a year on drink there is more money being spent for the comforts and luxuries of home.

In an address on the subject "Two years of prohibition in Philadelphia," the Rev. Clarence E. McCartney, pastor of one of the leading Presbyterian churches of that city, showed that in six banks in the principal labor centers of Philadelphia deposits jumped from $8,965,000 in 1917 to $19,494,000 the first of this year, over double the amount. The Rev. Mr. Mc-Cartney also quoted from the medical director of Philadelphia General Hospital, showing there were 2,326 cases of alcoholism admitted to the hospital in 1918 and only 702 cases in 1921, a decrease of more than half, almost two-thirds, and the city of Philadelphia in 1921 had the lowest mortality rate in its entire history.

From the superintendent of the Philadelphia police, Doctor McCartney secured figures to show that the average arrests for intoxication for two years before prohibition became effec-tive was 29,754 and for 1920 and 1921 the average was 18,081. In 1917 there were 9,456 persons arrested in Philadelphia charged with being drunk and disorderly, while in 1921 the number was reduced to 5,232.

The mayor of Cheyenne, Wyo., Ed. P. Taylor, sends the following report, signed by City Clerk Charles C. Bailey, under date of February 7, 1922:

The death rate in 1921, the first full year of prohibition, was the lowest ever recorded in the United States and Canada. This fact is indicated in the statistical bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., of New York, which numbers 14,000,000 industrial policyholders, approximately one-eighth of the total population of the two countries. The mortality of the insured reached the low rate of 8.5 per thousand lives.

In Akron, Ohio, there were 1,000 fewer arrests in 1921 for violation of the prohibition law.

A recent summary of prohibition results points out-

INCONTESTABLE FACTS.

Facts, not theories, are interesting to hard-headed Americans. Thus far we have had only partially enforced prohibition. The law went into effect during the war, when conditions were unsettled. Immediately thereafter the national political conventions were held and prohibition was made a political foot-ball until the November election. Then a new administration was installed and the old force knew it would be changed and its morale was broken. The new force is being installed and we shall have a better opportunity to find out what prohibition will do in the next two or three years than at any other time. But even facing these handicaps drunkennes has decreased.

In 51 of the largest cities of the United States, having a total population of approximately 20,000,000, including New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia, the official figures show a decrease in arrests for drunkenness from 807,109 in 1917 to 108,835 in Official statistics from the 89 largest cities in Indiana, with a combined population of 994,287, show a decrease in arrests for drunkenness of 70.64 per cent in 1920 as compared with 1917, the last year the State was wet.

Detroit reduced the arrests for drunkenness from 19,309 in the year 1917 to 6,244 in 1920.

The Boston police department reported 5,287 fewer arrests for all causes in 1920 than from drunkenness alone in 1919. For the State of Massachusetts at large the arrests for drunkenness in 1920 were 32,560, as against 77,925 in 1919. The reports of the Massachusetts prison commission give the arrests for drunkenness for the years ending September 30 as

Boston: 1917. 1921. 72, 897 State of Massachusetts: 1917-1921

The total for 1920 and 1921, combined in Boston and the State of Massachusetts, is smaller than for any full single license

In 1917 the arrests for drunkenness in New York City were 14,182; in 1920 the number dropped to 5,813, and deaths from alcoholism decreased from 560 in 1917 to 98 in 1920. In New York State the total arrests for intoxication in 1917 36,724; in 1921 the arrests for that cause numbered 18,112.

In Milwaukee the following figures show the result of pro-hibition in the city which beer made "famous":

Louisville, Ky., reports 3,624 arrests for drunkenness for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, wet; and only 412 arrests for the same cause for the year ending June 30, 1920. The number of cases of intoxication in Cincinnati decreased from 14,070 in 1918 to about 500 in 1921.

The number of arrests in Denver for 1915-the last wet yearfor drunkenness was 3,227; in 1920, 899.

The population of the city of Richmond, Va., has increased 27 per cent in the four years the State has been dry, but the arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct have decreased 75 per cent. The number of arrests for drunkenness the last wet fiscal ear in Grand Rapids, Mich., 1917-18, was 1,734. For the year 1919-20 the number was 421.

St. Louis reduced the number of cases of drunkenness from 2,605 in 1919 to 993 in 1921.

Peoria, former whisky center in Illinois, reduced the total arrests for drunkenness for the year ending July 1, 1920, to 295, as compared with 1,780 for the preceding year.

Baltimore in 1918 had 2,996 arrests for drunkenness; in 1921, 2,258. Concord, N. H., had an average of 41.5 arrests for drunkenness per month from 1903 to 1913; in 1921 the average was 10.5.

The arrests for drunkenness in Washington, D. C., from November to November for the year 1918 were 10,793; for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1921, 5,765.

In Portland, Me., in 1915, under an administration of non-enforcement, there were 4,564 arrests for drunkenness; in 1921,

The effect of prohibition is also marked on crimes related to liquor. Sanford Bates, Massachusetts commissioner of correction, says that in spite of unemployment, increase of population, and after-war conditions the entire penal population of Massa-chusetts shows a decrease of 3,625; in September, 1914, the penal population was 6,877; in September, 1921, it was 3,252. This is an increase over the figures of 1919 and 1920, and yet it is still over 50 per cent less than under the license system.

A survey by the Ohio Institute for Public Efficiency shows that four workhouses have been closed by prohibition, and about 10,000 fewer persons were in the workhouses the first full dry year than in the wet years immediately preceding.

In Washington, D. C., the saloons were limited to 300 in 1914. District prohibition went into effect in 1917 and national pro-District pronoution went into enect in 1911 and national pro-hibition in 1920. Commitments to the workhouse are as follows: 1914, 6,590; 1915, 6,472; 1916, 6,458; 1917, 5,582; 1918, 3,232; 1919, 2,511; 1920, 833.

The report of the Detroit police department just published, giving the record for the first nine months of 1921, is illuminating. It says:

The records of the first nine months of this year show that net-withstanding the fact that the city has passed through the most seri-ous condition of memployment in many years, its crime record for the four major crimes—robbery, breaking and entering business places, breaking and entering dwellings, and larreny from the person—was 61 per cent below that of a year ago, and far below the average of the five years past.

These are but samples of results in nearly every city and town in the country showing the universal effect of prohibition upon drunkenness and its related crimes. Here and there the arrests for drunkenness have increased slightly this year over 1920 where there has been a let down in law enforcement, but in every instance the number of arrests for drunkenness is smaller than under the license system. This showing would be even better were it not for the fact that when the saloons were legalized the policy in nearly all of the large cities was not to arrest a man for drunkenness unless he became a public nuisance.

In cities like Cleveland, Ohio, the golden-rule policy was adopted, urging the saloon keeper to take care of the drunken man until he could get sober enough to go home, or to put him in the hands of his friends and let them take him home. The prohibition has been established, in cities where the police officers are unfriendly, they arrest everyone who shows the slightest sign of intoxication in order to discredit prohibition by making the arrests appear large in number. In places where the officers are alert and active arrests are made of those slightly intoxicated for the purpose of compelling them to tell where they get the liquor. If the same policy were followed with reference to arrests for drunkenness that we had before prohibition, the showing would be even more encouraging. As it is, it stands out in bold contrast with the record in England and Wales and other countries, where convictions for drunkenness are increasing at about the same rate that they are de-creasing in this country. The official report recently presented to Parliament by command of His Majesty the King gives the statistics on convictions for drunkenness in England and Wales for the year 1920. This is the striking fact in this 140-page report.

The total number of convictions for drunkenness in England and Wales in 1920, as compared with 1919, shows an increase of 37,615, or 65.20 per cent.

The people of the United States have the greatest affection for their allies and have no disposition to embarrass any of them unduly in their financial obligations to this country. But if Americans were to be as critical of England's drink policy as many visiting Britons are of American prohibition, we could easily suggest that if England would only stop her enormous drink waste of nearly $2,000,000,000 annually it would not be so very difficult for her to meet the interest payments upon her debt to the United States.

Prohibition has paid Washington and has paid heavily. It is still paying. Practically all of New York's former 9,000 saloons are closed or are being used for legitimate purposes. Prohibi-tion has made only two changes in New York City: First, the city is more prosperous because of it, and, second, the city is less lawless because of it. Maxim's in an advertisement said:
Who said prohibition hurts business? Come to Maxim's and sec.

Regarding Louisville, Ky.:

Louisville is a paradise to-day compared to what it was before prohibition went into effect. There are practically no empty houses in Louisville to-day; there is work for everybody who will go out and get it; prohibition is working wonders. Men are paying their rent, paying their bills, and are looking out for a rainy day.

From Peoria, Ill.:

All of the saloon property in Peorla is used for drink parlors, residences, offices, etc. The Peorla distilleries—13 in number, located in Peorla nan Pexim—are now used for other purposes. I believe there is not an empty building in Peorla and 500 to 1,000 residences are

So much for predicted depression. As for Cincinnati, Ohio, the report is practically all saloon properties have been rented for other purposes and usually at an advanced price; collections are much better and forfeitures about one-fifth the number under liquor rule.

Probibition has had a splendid effect-

Says Warren Richards & Co.

Properties formerly rented for purposes of retailing liquors are now renting for figures 25 to 50 per cent higher-

Say Bofington & Hopkins.

Every director and stockholder in this company-

Writes Nathaniel H. Maxwell-are thinking prohibition the greatest benefit that has ever come to this or any other country, and they would consider a return to former days an unparalleled calamity.

These reports are selected at random, and the same condition prevails throughout the country. The consumption of liquor has decreased not less than 85 per cent and possibly more than 90 per cent. There is a marked decrease in poverty and financial distress. Private distilling and brewing are insignificant factors.

These conclusions Reads the report-are the result of an investigation covering months in which 20,000 pastors and lay members of churches have been consulted. The official figures on crime and increase in financial ability have been obtained from State, city, and rural officials, chiefs of police departments, and from secretaries of chambers of commerce, real estate dealers, and merchants.

We trust these citations of business, financial, domestic, and social conditions under prohibition will relieve the mind of the Member from Massachusetts as to the success and salutary effect of prohibition, and that by a large majority prohibition

And judging the future by the past, we realize it is more than probable the Member who has found the last two years of prohibition spells hell, not only with a capital H but all capitals, will endeavor to combat the statement of Secretary Deets Pickett and relegate him to the class of the alleged oligarchy of money grabbers, the triune law enforcers—Haynes, Wheeler, and Volstead—and swear Deets is the fourth wheel to the golden chariot, we deem it best to give a few scattering instances where there can be no question of personal graft.

Lieut. Col. Emil Marcusson, of the Salvation Army, says: Before prohibition in our big hotel in Chicago, which has 675 beds, not more than 15 guests received bank statements each month. Now we receive no less than 300, and I don't know how many have savings Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, says: The army's social secretary reports that drunkenness among the men frequenting Salvation Army hotels and industrial homes has almost entirely disappeared. Men who formerly could hardly support themselves from day to day now possess savings accounts. In one hotel 25 men who, before prohibition became effective, could only muster a dime among them, now have deposits ranging from $100 to $500.

INDIANA TEACHERS TESTIFY.

At a large public gathering at Indianapolis on February 8, the superintendent of public instruction stated that—

Teachers are unanimous in their opinion that since prohibition pupils are better fed, better clothed, more regular in attendance, more punctual, less anemic, healthier, and happier.

In the opinion of the superintendent, the continuation of the eighteenth amendment means better rising Americans. On the occasion of the celebration of temperance day in the schools the teachers of Columbus said still further that there are now fewer complaints from the home and report of the unhappy conditions resulting from a drunken father or mother. And while it is a matter of gratification and comfort to be well clad and well fed it is also a matter of vital importance that the victims of drunkenness in the home are spared the nervous strain and dread, the cruel blows, the bloody wounds, and broken bones, of which we hear but little to-day.

Even the children realize—if the Member from Massachusetts may not-the absence of blear-eyed, staggering, foul-mouthed victims of drink along the street.

While those opposed to prohibition and law enforcement say there is as much drinking to-day as ever, a child can realize that with the vast number of saloons closed and immense breweries with a 24-hour output of wet goods and the daily confiscation of hundreds of carloads of drink it would be an absolute impossibility to have as much drunkenness as here-tofore, no matter if there are stills in operation in many places.

Everyone should, as a law-loving, law-abiding citizen, point with pride to law enforcement. There are those who would like law enforcement a bit lax in some respects and others might seek a new angle of departure from strict observance of what this law provides. "Personal privilege" noticeably shifts with the viewpoint. The man who carries a gun or other weapon of warfare wants the privilege of carrying his weapon; the slugger wants the personal privilege of putting his victim out of commission with his weapon; the individual so inclined craves the privilege of committing arson when he feels so inclined; the burglar, the murderer, and the horse thief desire personal privileges according to their calling, while the "liberal citizen," who is opposed to the workings of his fellow men along the line of their special calling, would reserve for himself the privilege of breaking the prohibition law at his own pleasure. Because illegal drink is killing people does not change the law any more than the gunman might be excused for using a rifle instead of some other deadly weapon or the yegg for using nitro instead of dynamite. The greatest good for the greatest number is through prohibition until it has been fairly tried, and, if it is then a failure, it can be repealed. Do not sidestep the prohibition law and then expect to bring to justice some one for breaking some other law. The way to have respect for the law is to see that people obey the law. It is not what one does or does not want individually, but what is on the statute books for the enforcement is the question which should be uppermost.

Blackstone, the great authority on fundamental law, says:

Each individual should submit to the law of the community, without which submission of all it is impossible that protection should be extended to any.

From coast to coast throughout the vast expanse of our country men and women who would resent any reflection on their honor, sincerity, and right living are openly violating the law by continuing to indulge themselves in the use of drink which has been outlawed, while others are engaged in the manufac-ture of the same. For some time the domestic ice-cream freezer has been brought into requisition as a receptacle for private brewing, and later several hundred coconuts were discovered at the railway station at Minneapolis, the milk having been removed and the coconut filled with Jamaica rum. Cork plugs becoming loosened in the eye of one of the coconuts led to the discovery of the rum.

The judicial section of the American Bar Association, venturing to speak for all the judges, expressed this warning to the American people:

Reverence for the law and the enforcement of the law depends mainly upon the ideals and customs of those who occupy the vantage ground of life in business and society. The people of the United States, by solemn constitutional and statutory enactment, have under taken to suppress the age-long evil of the liquor traffic.

Attention is called to the further statement of the judicial section of the American Bar Association, and to which we should especially invite the attention of the Member from Massachusetts who has found the past two years of prohibition to be hell:

When, for the gratification of their appetites or the promotion of their interests, lawyers, bankers, great merchants and manufacturers, and social leaders, both men and women, disobey and scoff at this law, or any other law, they are aiding the cause of anarchy and promoting mob violence and homicide; they are sowing dragon's teeth, and they need not be surprised when they find that no judicial or police authority can save our country or humanity from reaping the harvest.

The foregoing is the opinion of those best qualified to know whereof they speak and to speak with authority. Besides the expressed opinion and cooperation of the judicial section of the American Bar Association in the matter of the prohibition amendment and law enforcement, it has the indorsement of Holy Writ, where we read:

Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging. Woe unto him that giveth s neighbor drink. No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of Godeating meat makes thy brother to sin, eat no more meat.

The Attorney General, Harry M. Daugherty, in a widely quoted speech delivered at the meeting of the American Bar Association at Cincinnati, August 31, 1921, said, among other things:

The history of civilization has been one continuous struggle for law and order. Respect for law is the one essential fact of our civilization. Without it life, liberty, and property are insecure. A citizen can not choose what laws he will obey. A good citizen must obey all the laws. Those who do not believe in our Government and the enforcement of our laws should go to a country which gives them their peculiar liberty. My duty is clear. As long as I am the responsible head of the Department of Justice the law will be enforced with all the power possessed by the Government which I am at liberty to call to my command.

William Jennings Bryan says:

I want a Government that will plant a hope in the heart of every child born into the world and give every being something to live for.

The Federal prohibition commissioner, Maj. Roy A. Haynes, has said:

There are 30 paid organizations striving day and night to accomplish the impossible feat of causing the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. No law can be enforced 100 per cent—

He said, declaring that the chief present obstacles in enforcement of the Volstead Act were apathetic citizens and lethargic public officials-public officials—

The "wets" have spread carefully planned propaganda to make it appear that the prohibition law is a failure and can not be enforced. The propagandists put in capital letters the liquor imported into this country. The facts show that the total importation during the past fiscal year were one-half of 1 per cent of the consumption of liquor in the United States the year before prohibition. Propaganda says crime has increased. Facts show that the crime wave is world-wide. Facts show that arrests for drunkenness have decreased 60 per cent in this country. Facts show that ilquor withdrawals from warehouse during October were only 50 per cent of the withdrawals in the previous October. I wish we might have in America a revival of regard for the sanctity of the law. I wish it might be preached by the parent in the home as well as by the teacher in the school; by the preacher in the pulpit; the writer and cartoonist; the actor on the stage; by every good citizen and agency.

The activities of these new "wet" organizations are argument enough that the friends of prohibition must not sleep. Theodore Roosevelt said: "The liquor traffic tends to produce criminality in the populace at large and lawbreaking among the saloon keepers themselves."

INSPIRING REVIEW OF TWO "DRY" YBARS.

Responding to a newspaper request for a resume of the actual results, covering two years of prohibition, Commissioner Haynes authorized the following statement:

Haynes authorized the following statement:

The amendment is being enforced to an even greater extent than many devoted friends anticipated, and predictions of opponents and antagonists that an "army" would be required and rebellion would occur in metropolitan centers, especially among the foreign element, have not been borne out by actualities. Instead of an "army" results which below are enumerated have been accomplished by less than 2,000 agents, operating in 48 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Porto Rico, and Hawaii, among more than 120,000,000 people, results which are nothing short of remarkable. Instead of rebellion or revolution, people generally, foreign and otherwise, have quietly acquiesced in the law—one of the most revolutionary in the world's bristory—and those now engaged in the lilicit traffic constitute a negligible minority.

Results so outstanding that no attempt can successfully be made in denial may be enumerated as follows:

1. Disappearance of the open saloon.

2. Abatement of open drinking in public dining rooms.

3. Passing of the treating evil, which was recognized as the greatest contributing agency in the development of a liquor appetite.

4. Closing of whisky cure and similar institutions.

5. Increased savings accounts.

6. Record-breaking Christmas business.

7. Decreased drunkenness.

8. Prohibitive price of "bonded" liquor for beverage use.

9. Daagerous character of illicit whisky.

10. Surreptitiousness of present-day drinking.

11. Will of howling minority who would go to the length of undermining the Constitution in order to mullify an amendment which their own action demonstrates is in actual effect.

12. Changed attitude of former hostile statesmen, political lenders, and the press.

12. Changed attitude of former hostile statesmen, political inquers, and the press.

In addition to the above, Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, is authority for the statement that many jalls have been converted into dwelling apartments, prisons turned into schools and social centers, health has been improved, mortality reduced, with increase of the privileges and opportunities of life for the boys and girls of the poorer classes.

These are the outstanding results which speak for themselves and offset completely propaganda of a contrary nature, which would apply with equal force to all laws, because none are enforced with 100 per cent effectiveness.

Considering all existing conditions, inherited and developed habits, hostile organizations, and an anti-American foreign element, it is most remarkable and unprecedented that a force of less than 2,000 agents, in a short space of two years, has accomplished such marked results without upheavals, violence, or revolutions, as was prophesied.

It will be a much easier undertaking from now on for various reasons:

It will be a much easier undertaking peasons:

1. Helpful attitude of the patriotic press, which recognizes the danger of lax enforcement to constitutional government, and which stands four-quare for enforcement of all laws.

2. Aroused citizenship.

3. Closer cooperation on the part of all enforcement agencies, headed by the United States Attorney General.

4. Poisonous, death-dealing character of practically all thick liquors are the market.

5. Attitude of Canadian and other foreign officials against border smuggling.

6. More stringent State legislation. 6.78

6. More stringent State legislation.
7. Maximum penulty by courts.
8. Less leniency on the part of juries.
9. Weeding out of enforcement officials not in sympathy with enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.
10. Attitude of physicians and druggists against prescription abuses.
11. Action of indicial section of the American Bar Association.
12. Curtailing of sources of supply.
Every unblased, unprejudiced, observing man and woman in America, if he or she takes the time to do a little investigating and thinking, now admits that remarkable progress is actually being made in the enforcement.

now admits that remarkable progress is actually being made in the enforcement.

No decent American community long tolerates a muisance, nor will a patriotic decent citizen tolerate derision and irreverence for any part of the Constitution, which fact the better class of theaters, stage and screen, are beginning to realize, all of which constitutes a hopeful sign and a response to my appeal in my first public announcement.

Nothing has contributed more to awaking public sentiment than the high-handed, unscriptions methods of those engaging in the referrious traffic, and the fact that some 14 agents have been assassinated and many wounded during the past year in the performance of their duties has had an electrical effect in crystallizing the sentiment of citizens of all classes to support the Government in enforcement work. The secret of this progress is easily found. It is the spirit of America, it is our American dealism. It is our American militant righteousness. It is our progressive civilization and there is something emanating from this invisible power to the hearts of all true Americans. It may be like the mystic cords of which Mr. Lincoln so eloquently spoke, at least there is an invisible influence that reaches each citizen and makes him a defender of all those laws which have to do with the welfare of our country and the well-being of our countrymen.

The chief cause of nonenforcement was the appointment of wet officials and smuggling. This is being corrected by the appointment of officials who are in sympathy with the law and by serving notice on our neighboring countries that their flags are being used to protect smug-

In reply to the charge that prohibition enforcement is costly, as well as a failure, I submit the following:

Number of indictments in Federal courts for period July 1, 1921, to December 31, 1921, as shown by incomplete reports re ceived by legal division, 12,702, which further reports will greatly increase.

Fines for liquor violations imposed by Federal courts for period July 1, 1921, to December 31, 1921, as shown by incomplete reports received by legal division, $787,885.47. Reports from all Federal districts will undoubtedly increase the amount of fines to approximately $1,000,000.

This, of course, does not include convictions and fines under State codes. For instance, in Ohio, under the State code, during the year 1921, incomplete reports, with many municipalities missing, show $833,570.20 liquor fines, most of which was collected.

With most States, Territories, and insular possessions having concurrent laws governing liquor violations a conservative estimate makes the total fines approximately $40,000,000.

Estimated amount of Federal assessments and penalties, $50,000,000; $1,000 special tax, $500,000; taxes on spirits, wines, and so forth, $7,000,000; estimated total, $57,500,000.

Estimated seizures: Gallons of distilled spirits and wine,

$50,000; estimated value of property seized during the year, not including property levied for payment of taxes, nor distillery apparatus or other property destroyed, $12,907,693.40. Number of Federal indictments, estimated, 30,000; pleas of guilty, 17,000; number of convictions, 21,000.

During the year 1921 withdrawals of whisky in the United States amounted to less than 3,000,000 gallons, while official records reveal that before the eighteenth amendment became effective the average American yearly consumption of whisky was approximately 133,000,000.

The first six months of present fiscal year there were withdrawn, tax paid, 11,962,322 gallons of nonbeverage spirits. The quantity withdrawn during the first six months of last fiscal year amounted to 22,271,180 gallons, a decrease during this fiscal year of 86 per cent.

The quantity of nonbeverage spirits withdrawn during the month of December, 1921, on which the tax was paid, amounted to 1,329,206 gallons, as compared with 2,625,285 gallons with drawn in December, 1920, a decrease of approximately 100 per cent. The quantity withdrawn in December, 1921, when com-pared with the quantity withdrawn in October, 1920, 4,372.127 gallons, shows a decrease of nearly 229 per cent.

During the year 1921 whisky brought into this country from all foreign sources was valued at $1,541,388, while during 1920 whisky from all sources was valued at $1,013,091, representing value of whisky brought into the country and entered into warehouse.

During the year 1921 whisky to the value of $628,600 was withdrawn for consumption, while during the previous year whisky valued at $485,190 was withdrawn for consumption, an increase of about 80,000 gallons, insignificant, and more than accounted for by the forging of permits.

At the end of the year 1921 the amount of 267.962 proof salons of whisky, valued at $1,211,222, was remaining in the custom warehouses.

The actual amount of whisky withdrawn tax paid from eustom warehouses—or consumed—during the year 1921 amounted to 139,689 proof gallons. The value of such whisky, computed at $4.50 per gallon, amounts to $628,600.50.

In addition to the above "facts and figures," the following may also be emphasized as indicating results of enforce-

Disappearance of the open saloon; abatement of open drinking places in public dining rooms; passing of the treating evil, which was recognized as the greatest contributing agency in the development of a liquor appetite; closing of whisky cure and similar institutions; increased savings accounts; record-breaking Christmas business; decreased drunkenness.

Wholesale drug companies must now have as a minimum a $25,000 drug stock, must be bona fide dealers, and sales of liquor must not exceed 10 per cent of the amount of their gross sales as a drug concern.

All liquor permits authorized for legitimate uses must now bear the signature of the director of the State in which the distillery from which withdrawal is to be made is located.

Last year's importation was one-half of 1 per cent of the total consumption of liquor in America the year before prohibi-tion, arrests for drunkenness were decreased 60 per cent, and liquor withdrawals were reduced 50 per cent.

Only 2 per cent of all liquor seized and examined to-day is fit to drink.

PRIEST GOES AFTER GALLIVAN.

The foregoing avalanche of facts would seem enough to "mash out flat" not only that festive apostle of "wetness," the Hon. James A. Gallivan, but to put to a stammering hush that radiant and roaring son of Republican thunder, the Hon. George Holden Tinkham. Anyway, it is highly interesting George Holden Tinkham. Anyway, it is highly interesting to read the following annihilating letter from a "dry" Catholic priest to a "wet" Catholic Congressman. While it is sadly true that Roman Catholic centers like Boston, New York, and Baltimore are terribly and deflantly "wet" it is refreshing to find a long-time Catholic priest like the Rev. George Burcher, president of the Catholic Clergy Prohibition League, flaying Hon. Jimmy Gallivan's "wetness" in such satisfactory fashion. The following letter has been placed in my hands for publication here: for publication here:

COLUMBUS, IND., February 15, 1922.

Columbus, Ind., February 18, 1922.

To Congressman James A. Gallavan:

Honorable and Daar Sir: Your passionate and partisan tirade against prohibition evinces your sudden fear that a sufficient number of real prohibition evinces your sudden fear that a sufficient number of real prohibition evinces your sudden fear that a sufficient number of real prohibition enforcement units may crown the Voistead Act with lasting success. Your silly claim that the ten millions asked for prohibition enforcement "is to support a pension, roll for the most persistent and presumptious grafters that ever appeared before Congress," your assurance that "Mr. Nelson is ready to vote with his colleague, Mr. Voistead, for any appropriation that will take care of the Anti-Saloon Leaguers who are still waiting to get on the pay roll of the prohibition unit," and your accusing Congress of "appropriating tax money to an array of political pap suckers" are quite consistent with your erstwhile serene complacency while the prohibition unit was largely composed of political heelers, ex-bartenders, and 'suckers," as they were known in the palmy days of the saloon. This large "sucker," clement in the prohibition unit buoyed you up with the Illusion that prohibition would soon break down. You announce the clearing of the Augean—I beg pardon, the Anti-Saloon League—stable into which this House has been converted." The clearing has begun; and if you have the Irishman's ready wisdom you will heed the warning of some of Napoleon's men at Waterloo: "Rauve qui peut."

Your whining about ten millions being given to the prohibition "monster" shows that you have made the discovery that prohibition as the onward sweep of a monster. Was not the idleness and inefficiency of the former saloon frequenters—" suckers," you would call them-in and out of political office causing the country an annual loss of $200,000,000?

Were not $$150,000,000 annually spent in saloons to bribe voters? And were not the bribe givers, elected to office, gagged and hound from and out of political office causing the country an annual loss of $200,000,000,000?

Were not $150,000,000 annually spent in saloons to bribe voters? And were not the bribe givers, elected to office, gagged and bound from head to foot to protect the most persistent, arrogant, defiant, and organized army of lawbreakers that ever infested a nation?

Were not $75,000,000 wasted every year in well-meant but futile efforts to aid town, village, city, county, State, and Federal officials to enforce liquor and Sunday laws?

Did not the saloons, as festering plague spots and brawling nuisances, depreciate neighboring property by hundreds of millions of dollars? What about the billions of dollars' worth of damage inflicted in a thousand ways by the liquor traffic upon the American people, regardless of racial origin, that of your own not in the least excepted?

Are you consciously in earnest when you say "The prople, regardless of racial origin, that of your traffic upon the American people, regardless of racial origin, that of your own not in the least excepted?

Are you consciously in earnest when you say, "The records of the courts, etc., deny that prohibition is or can be caforced upon all the people"? Do not the same records deny that the laws prohibiting murder, adultery, theft, blasphemy, gambling, smuggling, "are or can be enforced upon all the people"? Do you mean, perhaps, that our foreigners, who figure so largely in bootlegging, will never submit to prohibition? In this case an effective remedy is available: The Volstead Act should provide that any foreigner convicted of bootlegging should be desported to his own country, and any citizen so convicted should be disfranchised for 10 years. The former is not fit to become an American citizen, and the latter should not be entrusted with civic or political responsibilities.

You have, we believe, publicly defended the Catholic Church against some of her opponents, but do you know that the unutterable corruption of certain Catholic liquor politicians has filled with angry mistrust millions of our non-Catholic fellow citizens, who did not know that the unscrupulous politician never had the sanction of his church while he prostituted his religion to his selfish designs by appealing to Catholic voter: on upport?

Do you know that predilection for alcohol has been the source of a great deal of poverty, degradation, and crime among our coreligionists, who, when thoroughly sober, are known to be remarkably Industrious, trustworthy, and virtuous?

Do you know that Catholic children, pauperized and orphaned through Boston and other eastern saloons, and dopted in so many non-Catholic homes in the far West, are getting scarce under prohibition?

Do you know that the would have been almost impossible for the Catholic homes in the far West, are getting scarce under prohibition.

dreas of salous in that the Catholic Church laid one of the corner men's clubs?

Can you not realise that the Catholic Church laid one of the corner stones of the prohibition edifice when she urged through the third council of Baltimore in 1884, "all Catholics engaged in the sale of alcoholic drinks to quit that dangerous traffic as soon as possible, and to make their living in some more honorable way"? Had we Catholics then heeded the appeals of our highest spiritual guides the blessings of prohibition would have come 30 years sooner.

Yours truly,

(Rev.) George Zurcher,

President of the Catholic Clergy Prohibition League, and Pastor of St. Vincent's Church, North Evans, N. Y.

(Rev.) C. P. BARON,
Secretary Catholic Clergy Prohibition League, and Pastor
St. Bartholomew's Church, Columbus, Ind.

The enforcement of our national prohibition law that touches the happiness of so many millions of American homes should call for the combined efforts of Protestants, Catholics, and Hebrews alike—everybody who loves the American home better than the outlawed American saloon.

The eyes of the world are on America. I feel desperately on this question, and the pathos of the appeal of 38 nations whose representatives recently met here is a challenge to us in this high and ardent hour. They said, in effect, "America, the eyes of the world are upon you. You are the first great nation that has ever attempted a great moral law like this. If you fail, in your have you loosened the sheakles that hind resident fail, in vain have you loosened the shackles that bind us to military autocracy, for we stagger on to our graves, the slaves of rum and ruin. But if you win, America, we gird up our loins and strike our barps of hope anew. And we will follow the path of America's stainless flag to the glory, thank God, of a sober world." Let America lead the way to the glory of a sober world. [Applause.]

HON. ROYAL C. JOHNSON, OF SOUTH DAKOTA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Saturday, August 5, 1922.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with permission granted by unanimous consent of the House to extend my remarks in the Record and print the so-called "slacker list," I desire to call attention to a letter from the Adjutant General's Office, dated July 29, 1922.

It is my intention to insert these lists on the 5th day of each month until all of the names are printed. No good soldier will be injured by the publication of his name in these lists; but, on the contrary, if his military record is one to be proud of, the publication will only serve to call attention to that record. If by mistake the names of good soldiers have not been eliminated from the record, it will be my pleasure and duty to insert in the RECORD the facts in each individual case and to see that the facts are brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, who is as anxious as any soldier of the late war with Germany to have the records correct. Mistakes ought to be corrected while the men are living and while there is evidence to substantiate any valid claim as to service.

The letter is as follows:

WAS DEPARTMENT,
THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

There is also transmitted herewith for insertion in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a list of the names of registrants which have been restonal RECORD, the reasons for such removals being set forth in the second paragraph of the statement which is to precede the lists in the RECORD.

Very respectfully,

ROBERT C. DAVIS,

The men whose names appear below and who were under the jurisdiction of the local boards named were, according to the public draft records, classified and reported by the draft authorities as deserters from the military service of the United States. The lists in which these names were originally included have been given at least one month's publicity.

The name of any man who since the publication of the lists has been found to have actually rendered service in either our own forces or in those of the Allies during the period between May 18, 1917, and November 11, 1918, is not included; nor is that of any man who, though he rendered no service during the period mentioned, has, since the publication of his name, been found to have been erroneously inducted or to have been erroneously certified as a deserter, nor that of any man who is known to be no longer living.

Every reasonable effort has been made by the War Department to eliminate from these lists names which, for any of the aforementioned reasons, should not appear thereon. Should it develop, however, that certain of the names listed below should, for any of these reasons, likewise be removed, notice to that effect will be published in each such case in a later issue of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

SPEECH

HON. JOSEPH W. BYRNS. OF TENNESSEE,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, June 21, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 12073) to provide additional compensation for certain civilian employees of the Governments of the United States and the District of Columbia during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923.

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, since the fiscal year 1918 the Government has been paying a bonus to certain civilian employees; in fact, all civilian employees who draw less than $2,500 a year. The bonus for 1918 provided for 10 per cent to those who were drawing a salary of less than $1,200 and 5 per cent for those whose salaries were more than $1,200 and less than $2,500. In 1919 a bonus of $120 was paid. That was increased to $240 in 1920, and was paid during the fiscal year 1921 and during the present year of 1922. As we all know, that bonus was provided on account of admittedly great increase in the cost of living and in order, in some measure, to take care of those who were drawing the smaller salaries. It was understood, I think, at the time the first bonus was passed, and later on as each successive bonus was provided, that when conditions became more normal the bonus would be cut off and that some permanent provision would be made for the civilian employees. Such a provision was made for the Post Office and the postal employees, and they are not carried in this bill. But for some reason there has been no permanent classification of the particular employees who are included in Gentlemen will remember that for a year promises have been made, and statements have been made and published in the newspapers, that there was going to be a reclassification of the paid in the departments, in order that those receiving the smaller amounts would be put upon a more equitable and a fairer basis and would be paid in accordance with the value of the work that was being rendered. For several months that bill remained in the Committee of the House. It was finally reported out and it passed the House December 15, but for more than six months that bill has been at the other end of the Capitol, and, so far as I know, no action has been taken upon it except a mere reference to a committee.

As has been stated repeatedly, if that reclassification bill had been passed and a reclassification of the civil employees of the departments had taken place, this bonus bill would not be nec-Those employees who are drawing the smaller salaries would be provided for in an equitable manner, and all em-ployees would have been put upon a permanent basis and would not have to depend upon an unscientific and unbusinesslike manner of increasing their salaries by way of a bonus to those who were getting under $2,500 a year.

I do not know why that bill has not become a law, but certain it is that we are confronted now with a bonus bill because this Congress has failed to keep its promise, has failed to enact a measure which the civil-service employees of the Government were led to expect. As I have said, for six months that bill has been at the other end of the Capitol and no action taken upon it. For months it was here in the committee before action was taken upon it by the House, and if the Senate had acted promptly when that bill was sent over, even as late as last December, and it had passed, the reclassification would have taken place and we would not now be called upon to vote more than $37,000,000 out of the Treasury by way of a bonus, and the civil-service employees of the departments would have been properly and satisfactorily taken care of under that reclassifi-cation. I favored the first bonus. In fact, it was reported to this House upon a bill which I happened at that time to have in charge, the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation

But in my judgment we have come to a time when Congress should guit voting bonus for any class of employees in the Government, and for that reason, much as I appreciate the force and logic of what is said in regard to the necessity for this bonus, I can not give my support to this particular bill. It has been nearly four years since the war closed. The tax-payers are receiving no bonus but are being burdened to pay these sums which Congress is voting out of their Treasury, and, as I say, I think the time has come when a halt must be made, much as I would like personally to support this bill.

I agree with the gentleman from Illinois and the gentleman from Texas that it would be for the best interest of the civilservice employees for this bill to be defeated, for it would undoubtedly force the Senate to act upon the reclassification bill, for the civil-service employees would thus obtain a modicum of the consideration they are asking for sooner than they will if we pass this piecemeal bonus, which is admittedly unscientific and unbusinesslike. For that reason, and because we are confronted with a deficit now overwhelming in its proportion, and because I have taken the position during all of this session against every kind of bonus for any class of citizens I do not feel, in justice to myself and my views in regard to the condition of the Treasury, and in justice to the taxpayers of this country, I can continue to vote for a bonus.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman referred to the recessification bill. Is it not a fact that under the reclassification bill, if enacted into law, that would not affect the salaries of the employees of the Government for the next fiscal year?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. That is true of the bill as it passed the House. I think as it passed the House it had a provision that salaries should go into effect during the fiscal year succeeding the time in which they were submitted in the

Mr. MANN. This bill refers only to the salaries for the next fiscal year, does it not?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. That is true.

Mr. MANN. And this would not in any way be affected by the passage of the reclassification bill?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. That is true, unless the Senate should change that provision.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman said they had not acted upon it. It was hardly fair to assume it is going to be changed in the

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. If the bill becomes a law after July it could be changed so as to go into effect at once.

Mr. MANN. In any case, if it became a law after July 1, would it affect the salaries during the next fiscal year?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee, I submit to the gentleman the Senate has been known to amend these bills.

Mr. MANN. It is a matter of pure imagination as to what the Senate may do. The gentleman considers the bill as it passed the House, and it has not been changed by the Senate. If there is any reason for the bonus for the next fiscal year, that would not be affected by the passage of the reclassification

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. Not as it passed the House. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. LEHLBACH. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield right in that connection?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. In a moment. The reclassification bill, as I said, passed the House on December 15 last. There is no reason why the Senate can not amend that provision and make it effective earlier than the succeeding fiscal year, and the point I am making is that if it had been passed promptly after it was sent to the other end of the Capitol and a proper provision put upon it with respect to the time at which it would go into effect, we would not be confronted with this bonus provision here and be called upon to vote possibly

Mr. LEHLBACH. Even if the Senate should eliminate section 13, which disposes of salaries for the fiscal year 1924, nevertheless the putting into effect of the revised schedule and the allocating of the various positions of employees to their respective grades and classes would physically be the work of months, and your classification could not be made effective for those months, even if your bill went into effect at once, and therefore the need of a bonus as proposed here does not depend on the reclassification bill.

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. Well, if it takes the commission as long to reclassify salaries as it has taken Congress to pass and dispose of the reclassification bill, I admit that this bonus proposition would not be affected by the enactment of the reclassification bill. But I can see no reason why, if the reclassification bill is passed promptly and a reclassification commission took up the work promptly, there should be any need for the enactment of this bonus bill. Mr. LEHLBACH. It is simply because there are over 600,000 positions to be considered.

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. We could do that, because we are told that the urgent reason for passing this bonus bill is the demand for increased compensation of the lower-saturied employees in the classified service. They ought to be first considered in any reclassification.

Mr. LEHLBACH. The reclassification, it should be remembered, applies to the field as well as to the departments in

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. Yes. It applies to all except the postal employees.

Mr. BEGG. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. Yes.

Mr. BEGG. The gentleman from Tennessee seems to be complaining because the reclassification bill has not been enacted into law. I would like to inquire of the gentleman if he voted for that bill?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. I did not, and I will tell the gentleman why I did not. I regarded it as a bill which chiefly took care of those who were already in receipt of the higher grades of salaries, and because it did not, in my judgment, properly take care of the employees who received the lower grades of salaries.

Mr. BEGG. But the gentleman says he is not going to vote for this bonus bill, and this bonus bill gives the best end of it to the fellow drawing the lower grade of salary. This bonus to the fellow drawing the lower grade of salary. This bonus bill does that. Why is not the gentleman in favor of it?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. This is not the scientific or businesslike way to do it. The point I make is that we have come to the time when, in the interest of the taxpayers and in the interest of the Treasury, which is now threatened with a deficit of many hundreds of millions of dollars, we should stop the voting of bonuses, and if this Congress had carried out its promise and complied with its pledge we would not now be called upon to pass this bonus hill because there not now be called upon to pass this boaus bill, because there would have been a permanent reclassification, without many of the injustices and inequalities that arise from legislation of this kind.

Mr. BEGG. I do not see how that statement will let the gentleman out. The gentleman says in one breath that he is in favor of an increase of compensation for the lower salaried employee, and then he says in the next breath that he is opposed to this bonus bill when it is in favor of the lower salaried men.

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. I have taken a consistent position in this Congress that I will not vote for a bonus for any class of employees or for any class of our citizenship. Proper salaries should be provided, and if increases are necessary they should be granted by permanent legislation and not in this slipshod, temporary way. I am opposed to it for the additional reason that the farmers back home do not get the bonus that the gentleman from Ohio is going to vote for those who are in the civil service here.

The laborer in the district which the gentleman from Ohio represents does not get the bonus, which, I presume, the gentleman proposes to vote out of their pockets into the pockets of those on the salary roll here, and yet I dare say that many of those laborers, many of those farmers whom the gentleman so ably represents, would like very much to have one of these posidorsement for appointment to it.

Mr. BEGG. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield further?

DVDNS of Tennessee. Yes.

since the Republican Party has been in power for a year, the farmers are in a much better condition than they were the year before, under the administration of the gentleman's party, and they do not need a bonus now.

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. We will not discuss that now. I have always understood that the gentleman was a very optimistic Member of the House.

Mr. LINTHICUM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee, Yes.
Mr. LINTHICUM. The gentleman stated that this bill would involve an expenditure of $37,000,000. Suppose that the reclassification bill had been passed; how much money would have had to be appropriated to meet the plans of that reclassification?

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. I can not say, but the theory of the reclassification bill, as I recall, was that it was going to reduce the number of positions. It was going to raise the salaries of a number of the lower-salaried employees to a higher salary, but at the same time it would serve to cut out and eliminate many useless positions in the departments, and, if I recall aright, those who favored it insisted that it would not involve any particular extra expense to the Government.

Mr. LINTHICUM. I understood it would involve a very considerable additional expense.

Mr. BYRNS of Tennessee. I realize that the Government employees are not responsible for the inaction of Congress. I realize the injustice that has come to some of them because of the failure of Congress to take the action that it ought to have taken; but I repeat, I do not believe that this Congress, judging by its past action, will pass that reclassifica-tion bill and put it upon the statute books at any early date unless we cut off this bonus and put pressure upon the members of the committee at the other end of the Capitol so that they will take it up.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. ROYAL C. JOHNSON.

Tuesday, September 5, 1922.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with permission granted by unanimous consent of the House to extend my remarks in the RECORD and print the so-called "slacker lists," I desire to call attention to a letter from The Adjutant General's office, dated August 30, 1922.

It is my intention to insert these lists on the 5th day of each month until all of the names are printed. No good soldier will be injured by the publication of his name in these lists; but, on the contrary, if his military record is one to be proud of, the publication will only serve to call attention to that record. If by mistake the names of good soldiers have not been eliminated from the record, it will be my pleasure and duty to insert in the Record the facts in each individual case and to see that the facts are brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, who is as anxious as any soldier of the late war with Germany to have the records correct. Mistakes ought to be corrected while the men are living and while there is evidence to substantiate any valid claim as to service.

The letter is as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
THE ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, August 50, 1922.

Hon. Royal C. Johnson.

House of Representatives.

My Dear Mr. Johnson: I have the honor to transmit herewith for publication in the Conductional Record of September 5, 1922, lists of alleged draft deserters, which lists were released by the War Dopartment for publication between July 5 and August 4, 1922, both dates inclusive. A copy of the statement to be printed at the head of the lists is also herewith.

There is also transmitted herewith, for insertion in the Congressional Record, a list of the names of registrants which have been removed from the lists of alleged draft deserters heretofore published in the Record, the reasons for such removals being set forth in the second paragraph of the statement which is to precede the lists in the Record.

in the name second paragraph RECORD.

Very respectfully,

ROBERT C. DAVIS, Acting The Adjutant General.

The men whose names appear below, and who were under the jurisdiction of the local boards named, were, according to the public draft records, classified and reported by the draft authorities as deserters from the military service of the United States. The lists in which these names were originally included have been given at least one month's publicity.

The name of any man who, since the publication of the lists, has been found to have actually rendered service in either our own forces or in those of the Allies during the period between May 18, 1917, and November 11, 1918, is not included; nor is that of any man who, though he rendered no service during the period mentioned, has, since the publication of his name, been found to have been erroneously inducted or to have been erroneously certified as a deserter, nor that of any man who is known to be no longer living.

Every reasonable effort has been made by the War Department to eliminate from these lists names which, for any of the aforementioned reasons, should not appear thereon. Should it develop, however, that certain of the names listed below should, for any of these reasons, likewise be removed, notice to the effect will be published in each such case in a later issue of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The Tariff-Dye Embargo.

SPEECH

HON. WILLIAM H. KING, OF UTAH,

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,

Friday, July 14 (legislative day of April 20), 1922.

The Senate had under consideration the bill (H. R. 7456) to provide revenue, to regulate commerce with foreign countries, to encourage the industries of the United States, and for other purposes.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the able Senator from New Jersey

[Mr. Freinghuysen] has eloquently presented his views of the provision of the pending bill, which places an embargo upon all dyes as well as upon various chemicals, drugs, medicines and pharmaceuticals, and synthetic organic chemical compounds. The Senator is not satisfied with the high tariff rates which are found in the bill under consideration and which will give to the dye producers of the United States a practical monopoly of dyestuffs; but he and those who are advocating the embargo provisions of the bill demand legislation which will prohibit the importation of dyes, so important in our textile industry, also various chemical products, and thousands of drugs, medicines, pharmaceuticals, and synthetic organic chemical compounds. I doubt whether there can be found in the history of tariff legislation from the beginning of our history until the present time a situation analogous to the one before us. have had high tariff men in the United States and representatives of corporations and trusts who sought legislation that would give them absolute control of the domestic market, but they have never had the temerity or audacity to demand embargoes in order that they might more effectually rob and plunder the American people. An embargo is a hateful thing. It is un-American. It means the triumph of greed and the adoption of a policy of spoliation and robbery. It means that those in whose behalf embargoes are secured are not satisfied with legitimate profits in business but demand unrestricted license to plunder their unfortunate victims.

It has often been charged that schedules in many of the tariff bills were written by trusts and predatory interests. These charges in many instances have been sustained. It has been established that many of the most oppressive and ugly provisions of tariff bills have been the result of propaganda, lobbying, and sinister, if not corrupt, methods, but I there has ever been such a protracted, persistent, sinister, malign, audacious, indecent, if not corrupt, propaganda to secure legislation as that which has been carried on by certain corporations and interests for more than two years for the purpose of securing an embargo upon dyes and various drugs, inedicines, and chemical products.

Immediately following the war the Du Pont Co. and other corporations and various interests and organizations and individuals began a campaign to secure an embargo which would prohibit the importation of dyes and all forms of synthetic organic chemical compounds. I have not time to detail the sinuous and intriguing methods employed to accomplish this end. They succeeded in attaching to the emergency tariff bill an embargo provision which is still in force.

I have stated heretofore, and have no reason to doubt the accuracy of the statement made, that many Senators and Representatives were not aware of the comprehensive character of the embargo provisions contained in the emergency tariff bill, They supposed that the embargo related solely to dyes, did not know that it embraced thousands of drugs, medicines, and chemical compounds and products. They did not realize that they were putting it into the power of corporations and organizations, some of which are trusts, to exploit the people and to compel them to pay for dyes and for thousands of drugs and medicines prices three or four hundred per cent, and, indeed, in some instances more than 1,000 per cent, above those which obtained prior to the war. Before concluding my remarks I shall call attention to some of these corporations and to the vast sums which they control and assets which they s, which have been active in promoting this un-American, dangerous, and vicious legislation.

The propaganda to which I have referred has continued undiminished in force and with increased effrontery and brazenness. It has penetrated every State, attempted to influence every community, and corrupt every avenue of public thought. It has found lodgment in schools and colleges and has influenced various organizations of a civic, eleemosynary, philanthropic, patriotic, and educational character. It has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in this propaganda and in lobbying before Congress to secure and perpetuate prohibitory tariffs and embargoes behind which corporations, trusts, and com-binations in restraint of trade might take refuge and without restriction rob and plunder the American people. So powerful have been the influences of these corporations and so adroit and subtle have been their operations that they have succeeded in developing considerable sentiment in favor of their iniqui-tous scheme. They have been powerful enough to have inserted in the pending bill a provision to perpetuate for a con-siderable period the embargo provisions of the emergency tariff I had thought, when the indefensibly high tariff rates that will enable the domestic manufacturers of dyes and various other chemical and medicinal compounds to charge extortionate prices for their products were written into this bill, that the lobbyists and representatives of the manufacturing interests who demanded the embargo provisions found in the emergency tariff bill, would call off their legions and emissaries and be satisfied with the monopoly which those rates provide.

But I discover that I credited the dye monopolists with a little more mercy and humanity than it is evident they pos-sess. So arrogant have they become and so flushed with pride because of the victory won that they are pressing forward with greater vigor and with a truculence that finds no parallel.

By common consent it is agreed that the pending tariff bill is the most oppressive of any that was ever presented to an American Congress. Its rates are so high as to shock the conscience even of "hard-boiled" and reactionary Republicans. But had hard-boiled" and reactionary Republicans. But bad as the bill is, indefensible as its schedules are, the most revolting and shocking provisions of the bill are those dealing with dyes, chemicals, and their allied products, medicines, drugs, and pharmaceuticals, particularly as those provisions are embodied in the embargo features of the bill.

I have been astounded at the bold and defiant attitude of the lobbyists and representatives of these interests who are pushing this embargo legislation. I have been surprised to find the number of supporters that this legislation has secured. I have been amazed to find patriotic and able Senators defend-ing legislation which will give to corporations such as the Du Pont Co., the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, and others possessing hundreds of millions of capital power to exploit the American people and to compel them to pay for dyes, drugs, and medicines prices that all will concede are extortionate. I have been unable to comprehend how fair-minded men could be won over to the support of an embargo upon the multitudinous products covered by the provisions of this bill upon the hysterical and altogether groundless contention that in the in-terests of "national defense" the demands of the dye monopoly and certain chemical interests for prohibitive tariff legislation should be enacted.

The Senator from New Jersey, in the speech which he has just delivered, as well as in other speeches upon the embargo question, has justified this legislation upon the ground of "national defense." He has to-day in eloquent and graphic language directed attention to the use of poisonous gases by Germany and has sought to convey the idea that unless an embargo is granted, in some way and in some manner not indicated by the Senator, the safety of our Nation and its people is imperiled. An appeal to the patriotism of the people will always find a ready response in this Republic. The lobbyists for the dye monopoly and the many representatives sent by the organizations back of this embargo proposition understand this phase of American character, and they have sung the same song in all parts of the United States in their addresses before colleges and civic clubs and medical and chemical and other organizations, as well as before patriotic associations, and they have attempted to arouse the American people in behalf of the embargo by calling attention to the military successes of Germany and to the use of poisonous gases in her military operations.

The propaganda to which I have referred disparaged American chemists and the achievements of Americans in the fields of organic chemistry. Germany was given the crown of primacy and pictured as a devouring Frankenstein. Every possible was made to frighten the American people into the belief that the United States was wholly incompetent to meet Germany in the chemical field or to cope with her in inventions and in the application of the discoveries and inventions of this remarkable age of scientific development. The fact is that we have chemists in the United States of equal if not superior ability to those found in Germany or in any other country, and that with our inexhaustible resources it is impossible for Germany to compete with the United States in any of the fields of applied chemistry or applied physical science.

campaign conducted by these selfish and greedy corporations and their tools and allies has been willfully misleading and has been pernicious in its effects.

Earlier in the discussion of the chemical schedule the Senator from New Jersey made practically the same speech as that just delivered by him dealing with the question of "preparedness" and the importance of an embargo in order that our Nation may be put in a position of "military preparedness." He has added nothing new to-day. However, in view of the fact that he has stressed this point, I feel constrained to refer to some matters to which I directed the Senate's attention when I replied to the speech of the Senator. I referred to an address made by Doctor Reese, who was at the time, and still is so far as I am advised, a director in the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.

Senators will recall that before the United States entered the war there was considerable discussion as to the advantage which Germany was supposed to have because of her develop-ment along chemical lines. Doctor Reese, in the address re-ferred to, which was delivered by him at a convention in May, 1918, considered this point in the following language, which, without reading, I ask permission to insert in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it will be so ordered.

Following is the matter referred to:

Following is the matter referred to:

There has also been much talk in the papers with regard to the wonderful advantage Germany had on account of her extensive dye industry, in that she could immediately turn all the great dye plants into munition factories.

I do not consider that the presence of the factories themselves was a matter of very great importance to the Germans. It might have been an important factor in a small war, but the requirements for this great war have been such that their mere existence must have been a very small factor.

However, the real assistance that Germany obtained from the existence of these factories came from the chemical organizations which they maintained. As this war has become, in a sense, a chemical war, these chemical organizations in the German factories have been able to assist the Government very materially in its prosecution.

Now, what were the conditions in this country? There was no dye industry of any great magnitude, but there was a well-organized explosive industry with a well-organized chemical organization. I might say that at the beginning of the war the Du Pont Co. had in the neighborhood of 400 chemists in their employ, many of whom were functioning along the lines above indicated.

The first effect of the Great War was to call upon this organization to meet problems which seemed to be almost as unsolvable as those presented by the dye situation, since many of the raw materials necessary for the manufacture of munitions had been secured from Europe, just as the dyes had been.

This organization, however, was able to meet the situation in such a short time that the want of these materials did not occasion a day's delay in the production of powder. One of these materials, diphenylamine, which is an intermediate in the manufacture of dyestuffs, was produced on a large scale, and three separate and distinct processes were developed for its production. Dimethylanline, another dye intermediate, was necessary for the production of tetrantromethylanline, commonly c

With the return of peace it is evident that whatever the demand for dyes made in Germany may be, that country will never regain its lost supremacy in the world trade in dyestuffs. * * * The United States has abundant coal to supply the raw materials for making anlline dyes. Private capital has been supplied as fast as it could be utilized in establishing scores of factories and in training skilled operatives and chemists for actual and experimental work on a large scale. There has been an increasing tendency since 1916 to centralize or consolidate the domestic enterprises in order to cut overhead expense, utilize all by-products, and reduce the price of finished dyes. This has not only increased production but has developed the foreign trade, as shown by the wide distribution of American aniline dyes exported in the calendar years of 1918 and 1919. * The world-wide shortage of dyestuffs and the growing demand for both quality and variety of such materials offer every opportunity to extend the foreign market for American colors. * Germany, it is now conceded, will not be the strenuous competitor she was formerly in the foreign trade. Switzerland is the only country, other than the United States, now making anliline colors sufficient to meet its own requirements and able to export on a large scale, and the Swiss are dependent on other countries for the raw materials.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I offer for the RECORD a statement made by Dr. B. C. Hesse, an eminent American chemist who was chairman of a committee of the American Chemical Society in 1916, before the Franklin Institute on November 6, 1919. Doctor Hesse states that-

The discovery of new synthetic remedies is properly the function of the many medical institutes—

Senators will see that he emphasizes that medical institutes and not dye factories are the establishments that will be pro-

and schools of research in this country. They can be manufactured by our organic and fine chemical industry, helped out by our large pharmaceutical factories, and distributed by the latter. Synthetic flavors and perfumes have for years been successfully made here at a number of establishments, and they have also conducted much of the research in this field. There is no reason, compelling or otherwise, why the atruggling dye makers should share their work. In the manufacture of toxic and like gases for military purposes, whose invention and development belong to the Chemical Warfare Service, the largest single material involved, and at the same time the one most different factories in this country and in an amount approximating 65,000 tons on toxic-gas war materials. Their manufacture, therefore, should be linked up with our going chlorine industry.

The coal-tar materials needed in any or all of these arts of peace are and have been obtainable, if we only wanted them, in any needful quantity and quality, without in any way calling upon the dye maker for them, their total requirement being under 300 tons per year. For each of these important collateral developments we have domestic industrial points of attachment and growth of long and firmly-established competitive ability. Would it not be the very height of folly to ignore them and to stake our entire future in these fields wholly upon the dye industry, whose future with us is by no means established? I am thoroughly convinced that no one can seriously or for long take any other vice with an the foregoing. We can surely have all of these other industries in the highest possible state of efficiency if we only will whether we have a dye industry or not. That we should have our own supply of dyes is the only reason for having a domestic dye industry. The war itself proved that conclusively and beyond question.

As I have indicated, the argument made by the Senator from New Jersey is that it is imperative that dye-manufacturing plants be established in the United States in order that poisonous gases may be produced for the defense of the Nation, and that these plants can not be successfully operated without an embargo. The fact is, so all know who investigate the matter, that dye plants are not indispensable in the production of noxious gases, and it is also a fact that the quantity of poisonous gases employed in extensive military operations would not require elaborate dye manufacturing plants. As stated by Doctor Hesse, the toxic gases employed in military operations were known in the United States before the war, and chlorine, "the largest single material involved in the production of poisonous gases," was manufactured in 23 different factories in the United States in an amount approximating 65,000 tons an-And yet during the war when we were producing "enormous quantities of toxic gas and war materials, we only required 12,000 tons." As Doctor Hesse says, the manufacture of toxic gases should be "linked up with our going chlorine in-

Lieut, Col. Earl J. W. Ragsdale, who was for 10 years in the Regular Army and in the Ordnance Department, testified before the Finance Committee in August of last year. His testimony appears in the hearings of that committee under the head of Dyes Embargo, beginning on page 750. I shall not take the time to read all of his testimony, but will call attention to a few sentences which I think are pertinent to the question under consideration. Mr. President, I ask leave to insert certain parts of his testimony in the RECORD without reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection it will be sò ordered.

Mr. KING. Colonel Ragsdale stated that in 1915 General Crozler, Chief of Ordnance, made him an assistant, and one of his first duties was to study new weapons developed during the war, including poison gases. He further stated that he had made a study of chemicals employed and made a tentative sur-vey of the chemical industry of the United States. He also testified that the War Department utilized various Government agencies, including the Bureau of Mines, and added that-ment agencies, including the Bureau of Mines, and added that—

One thing which impressed me was that we did have a chemical industry in which we could take pride and upon which the War Department could rely. * * * I found upon slight investigation that reference was made to the dyestuffs industry. There were very few plants in this country which were equipped to make dyestuffs. On the other hand, our general chemical industry was very capable. I found at Niagara Falls a chlorine capacity which surely was greater than that of England; I found one plant there, the Hooker plant, with a capacity of 40 tons of chlorine a day. There were two other chlorine plants operating. I also found a process there which, to my mind, now equals or is better than any other process of manufacturing chlorine in existence. So my original apprehension about the manufacture of chlorine was not borne out by the evidence brought in. It is interesting also to note that we did not use any of this capacity.

This officer testified that the reason was transportation and

This officer testified that the reason was transportation and it was considered better policy to concentrate the manufacture of polson gas in one location, where it would be under military control. He further testified that the advantage of this was borne out during the war when a centralized plant was built at Edgewood under his direction. Senators will perceive that the military authorities of our own Government did not resort to the dye plants of the United States for aid or for the production of poisonous gases, but consulted with the chemical industry generally and with the chemists of the United States, and then built a plant and manufactured all the poisonous gases required by the United States, and also supplied various kinds to some of the allied nations.

We are all familiar with the fact that within a very short time after the United States entered the war we were producing toxic gases for use upon the battle fields of Europe in quantities in excess of that required by the American troops, and we were supplying large quantities to our allies. The Edgewood plant was speedily completed and the poisonous gases manufac-tured by the Government were prepared at that plant. Speaking of the Edgewood plant, Lieutenant Colonel Ragsdale says:

It is interesting to note what our plans were at Edgewood Arsenal and how they compared to the capacities of the other nations. My original plan was for 300 tons of chlorine a day. The Secretary of War cut this to 125 tons of chlorine a day. This plant was built for that carecity.

Another plant had a capacity of 40 tons of phosgene. The complete pacity was never realized, although I understand that 25 tons could produced.

This officers further proceeds:

This officers further proceeds:

As I look back over my organisation of those chemists who were personally in charge of the producing units and under whose direction the various materials were manufactured. I do not recall the name of a single one who was associated with the dyestuff industry in this country. The chemists who had the greatest responsibility were recruited from the educational institutions and from the large chemical manufacturers, such as the Du Ponts, Semet-Solvay, and a number at Niagara Falls.

I have been noting in the newspapers the comments which the facts before this committee have provoked and contrasting some of the statements with the conditions I found.

The chemical plant at Miagara Falls which produced phospene did so under compulsion, true, not physical but moral.

If chemical warfare had opened up to our young dyestuff industry such a wonderful vision as now appears, I should have expected a more willing cooperation.

such a wonderful vision as now appears, I should have expected a more willing cooperation.

As for the dyeatuff industry being regarded as a potential military strength, it unquestionably is. No more so, however, than the entire chemical industry of the United States. This industry has thriven in the past and was very strong when we entered the war.

This officer further testified that the program for toxic gases contemplated the production of gases that would equal Germany, plus that of France and England. He further stated that his section of the War Department prepared plans for the manufacture of chloropicrin and that the majority of the control of the state and the second that the majority of the state of the second that the majority of the second that the majority of the second that the majority of the second that technical information employed in the production of toxic gases came from officers associated with the chemical industry and educational institutions of the United States. Further testifying, this officer said:

I would not assume that the inventor of the keynote of chemical warfare would come from the dye industry any more than he would come from—well, the tannery interests or something else. I think the chances are more likely that he would come from an educational institution, which, of course, is again dependent upon the general chemical needs of the country, because if we have no needs for chemists we will have no chemical institutions.

Speaking of pre-war existence of potential gas plants, he stated that-

The Hooker plant at Niagara was built a good many years before e went into the war.

The witness stated that the chemical forces "engaged in the dye industry would probably be valuable in time of warfare, but there is no reason to suppose that they will be more valuable than chemical organizations engaged in other lines."

The witness further proceeds:

If there were given to my control funds to subsidize industries for their potential military strength, I would certainly be subjected to severe criticism if I placed it in any one phase of the chemical industry, be it dyestuff, be it sugar, be it any other thing. It is quite conceivable that the by-product of sugar manufacturing or some other manufacture may be the raw material from which this key gas is ultimately derived.

Speaking of the formulæ for the poisonous gases used by America in the war, the witness stated that-

The two gases used most largely, being phosgene and chloropicrin, were used by the Germans, and phosgene and chloropicrin were known, although sparingly known, in this country; and then it devolved upon us to work out a process for the manufacture of these in the United States.

During the course of the witness's examination, Senator LA FOLLETTE asked this question:

May I ask your opinion of this statement? Doctor Reese, director of the E. I. du Pont Co., said before the annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association, May, 1918:

"There has also been much talk in the papers with regard to the wonderful advantage Germany had on account of her extensive dye industry, in that she could immediately turn all the great dye plants into munition factories.

"I do not consider that the presence of the factories themselves was a matter of very great importance to the Germans. It might have been an important factor in a small war, but the requirements for this great war have been such that their mere existence have been a very small factor."

What do you think of that statement?

Mr. Ragsball. I could not very well contradict it, because it was practically the argument on which I based my request to have funds appropriated for the Edgewood Arsenal, that even the chemical industries of this country were not adequate to take care of the enormous needs for chemicals as I then foresaw them; and I think that was unquestionably true of Germany, slithough Germany did more intensive developing in an industrial way than we did. What I mean is, with the capacity for minuteness that the Germany unquestionably have, they could go into a garage and make munitions. We are not paychologically so situated; when we want to make munitions we have to have the proper plant and appliances, and we have to do it right. So that in Germany I think they utilized their small plants to far greater advantage than we did.

The effect of the testimony of this able officer is that while

The effect of the testimony of this able officer is that while the chemists employed in the dye industry, as all other chemists in the country, might be of service in the production of poisonous gases in the event of war, the dye industry per se is wholly unimportant as a means of national defense, and that the future development of the chemical industry, so far as that industry relates to the national defense, rests with educational institutions rather than with the dye industry.

Notwithstanding the fact that there were a number of dye plants in the United States when we entered the war, they were not utilized in the production of toxic gases; nor for that matter were the various chemical plants, some of which compared in size and in efficiency of production with the greatest chemical plants of Germany, used for national defense or for the production of poisonous gases. The Government quickly constructed its own plant and manufactured not only all gases needed by its own plant and manufactured not only all gases needed by the armies of the United States but also supplied large quan-tities to the allied nations. The attempt to connect the dye industry with national preparedness is not only absurd and hypocritical and shows the desperate straits to which the dye monopolists and their lobbyists are driven in their frenzied efforts to put into the hands of a few corporations the absolute control of the manufacture and sale of dyes in the United States as well as thousands of medicines and drugs and synthetic organic compounds.

One of the ablest as well as one of the fairest witnesses who testified before the Finance Committee of the Senate in relation to dyes and embargo legislation was Mr. Grenville S. MacFarland, of Boston, Mass. His testimony appears in the record of the hearings, pages 451 to 459. Speaking of the arguments that the dye industry is important as a means of national defense, Mr. MacFarland stated that the steel industry and all other products of iron were far more necessary; that the textile mills producing blankets and uniforms, including the production of cotton and wool, were more necessary. He further stated that the three or four thousand mills and plants and machine shops that were employed in the production of military equipment were more necessary than the dye plants. The following appears in his testimony:

I believe you will find if you read Crowell's book on the history of the production of munitions, that at least 1,000 or 1,500 of the plants of this country have no relation whatsoever to dyes in their ordinary peace functioning; are better equipped, are nearer the ability to be altered for the purpose of producing war equipment than the dyestum industry.

peace functioning; are better equipped, are nearer the ability to be altered for the purpose of producing war equipment than the dyestum industry.

One of the reasons that the Assistant Secretary of War said that the dyestum industry.

One of the reasons that the Assistant Secretary of War said that the dyestum industry was not able, was not willing, to produce the gases was that the alteration was necessarily so great that they could not be in use after the war. Another reason given by one of the military gentlemen and confirmed by Mr. Crowell was that the gases and the explosives were so dangerous to make in their last process—that is, the process which went beyond the step taken in the commercial development of dyes—that they were not willing to undertake it. That is confirmed by Doctor Reese. Doctor Reese was, and, in fact, I think is now, the chief chemist of the Du Pont company. The Du Pont company, the chief chemist of the Du Pont company, the Du Pont company in a public address in 1918 Doctor Reese said that the idea that the German dye plants—mind you, dee plants; he did not use the words dye and chemical interchangeably—were the kingboit of the German military enterprise was ridiculous. He said the German dye plants might have helped in a little war, but in a big war such as this they were utterly insignificant. It is a fact that a German dye plant, the higgest they have, could not produce gas enough to sustain one gas attack for a single day.

Doctor Hesse—I think I pronounce the name correctly—is or was the chief chemist of one of the largest chemical concerns in this country, the Allied Chemish & Dye Co. In 1919, and a year after Doctor Reese made his startling confession, as it must have been to the Du Pont company, it a public address before the Franklin Institute, he said that the commercial companies could not afford and would not do the testing, that the commercial companies could not afford and would not do the testing, the refined investigations and experiments necessary to produce these gas

In answer to a question propounded by Senator McCumber, Mr. MacFarland stated that his position was that the influence of that feature of chemistry dealing with gases, is but little related to the production of dyes and that gases are manufactured for the most part from other chemicals than those employed in the manufacture of dyes. Further testifying, Mr. MacFarland stated:

The importance of gas has been very much exaggerated. That is perhaps an immodest thing for a layman to say, but I submit to you the facts will show in your lay minds, also, that I am not speaking in an exaggerated way.

Only 786 men were killed on our side out of the 70,000 who fell and died by gas; only 736. The gas mask is so perfect a defense that Mr. Crowell, in his book, and I think General Sibert, also, said that death or even injury by gas is inexcusable if the men are properly trained and are careful in the habit of putting their gas masks on at the right time.

Senators will also recall the action of the Conference on the Limitation of Armament, at which a treaty between the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan was negotiated which declared that the object of the treaty was to make more effective the rules adopted by civilized nations for the protection of the lives of neutrals and noncombatants at sea in time of war and to prevent the use in war of noxious gases and chemicals. Section 5 of this treaty reads as fol-

The use in war of asphyxiating, poisonous, or other gases, and all analogous liquids, materials, or devices, having been justiy condemned by the general opinion of the civilized world and a prohibition of such use having been declared in treatles to which a majority of the civilized powers are parties.

The signatory powers, to the end that this prohibition shall be universally accepted as a part of international law, binding alike the conscience and practice of nations, declare their assent to such prohibition, agree to be bound thereby as between themselves, and invite all other civilized nations to adhere thereto.

By the provisions of Article VII of the treaty the United States was required to transmit to all nonsignatory powers a copy of the treaty and invite their adherence thereto. Undoubtedly the countries belonging to the League of Nations will adhere to these provisions respecting poisonous gases, and it is not too much to say that the use of poisonous gases in military operations will soon end.

It seems manifest that all this patriotic ebullition about national preparedness and the imperative necessity of the dye industry, in order to prepare the Nation for war, is a miserable pretense and a smoke screen, behind which the dye lobbylsts are conducting a "poison gas" campaign. Mr President, I now proceed to another phase of the subject

Mr President, I now proceed to another phase of the subject before us. I hope that Senators will keep before them the fact that several weeks ago, when the chemical schedule was directly before the Senate, paragraphs 25 and 26 were adopted. The tariff rates provided in these paragraphs are so high as to afford domestic producers of dyes, coal-tar products, and synthetic-organic products a monopoly in the domestic market. In other words, the dye interests were successful in writing into the bill rates so high as to prevent any foreign competition, thus enabling the American manufacturer to exploit the textile interests of the United States and the American people who are compelled to buy medicines and drugs and thousands of articles produced by the combinations and trusts integrated with and constituting a part of the interests controlling the dye business of the United States.

The proposition before the Senate now is to supplement the provisions granting almost prohibitive tariff rates by an emprovisions granting almost prombitive tarin rates by an embargo against all foreign dyes as well as medicines, drugs, and thousands of chemical compounds. There is no justification for the plea that the dye industry needs an embargo in view of the provisions found in paragraphs 25 and 26; and even if the manufacturers of dyes in the United States needed an embargo against the importation of dyestuffs, there can be no reason for the demand that camphor and phenacetine and thousands of drugs and medicines needed by the people, and various kinds of synthetic-chemical compounds, should be demand thousands of drugs and medicines needed by the people, and various kinds of synthetic-chemical compounds, should be demand in the compounds of the demand nied importation and the American consumer be placed at the mercy of a greedy and oppressive monopoly.

The American dye industry is not an Infant industry; it is not an experimental enterprise. We have the largest and most modern dye-manufacturing plants in the world. The industry is permanently established in this country. It has a productive capacity which in quantity is double the current requirements of the American market, and the American market for dree is the best market in the world.

The American dye industry, with respect to the American market, enjoys a preferential position, both because of proximity to the market and of protective duties against the competition of foreign dyes in the market, so that we may know with certainty that the American dye makers will retain their privileged position in the American market against all possible foreign competition.

The growth of the dye industry in the United States since 1914 has been nothing less than phenomenal. In 1914 the do-mestic dye production was 6,619,729 pounds. In 1920 the domestic dye production was 88,263,776 pounds. The value of the domestic dye production in 1914 was $2,470,096. In 1920 the value of the domestic dye production was $95,613,749. In 1914 the value of our dye exports was $356,919. In 1920 the value of our dye exports was $29,823,591.

I ought to say in passing, however, that prices were perhaps between three and four hundred per cent higher in 1920 than they were in 1914, but the poundage increased from approximately 8,000,000 to in the neighborhood of 65,000,000 to 88. 000,000 pounds. Our imports of foreign dyes in 1914 were 42,229,736 pounds. In 1920 our imports of foreign dyes were 3,402,582 pounds.

The American dye manfacturer now has a market for his dyes which is wider than the American market. The time will never come again when we will have a balance of imports of dyes into this country. We will always have a balance of dye exports. The tariff can only assure the American dye maker the great preponderance of the domestic dye trade, and this the deprection does not be always have a balance of the domestic dye trade, and this the domestic dye maker already enjoys. No tariff legislation and, indeed, no legislation whatever which Congress can enact can give the American dye maker a wider market than he now enjoys. There is no reason for apprehension or anxiety, and especially not for the emotional hysteria which is being so freely displayed by the great dye trusts, combinations, and corporations as to the future of the industry in this country.

A great deal of this is mere affectation, and is assumed by cold-blooded manipulators to affect public opinion, upon the assumption that the people, in a great democratic country will respond to these affected, hysterical appeals. One of the stock methods of appealing to the emotions of the people is to hold up the specter of another German war, as if the importation of a few German dyes would prostrate the country as far as our national defenses are concerned. German dyes are the most innocuous things that ever came out of Germany. Our current imports of dyes amount to only about 9 per cent of our domestic requirements, and of these only about half of the total importations, or less than 5 per cent of our requirements are of German dyes. The other half is imported from Switzerland, with some contributions from England and France.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Will the Senator repeat the proportionate amount of the dyes we use which are imported from Germany?

Mr. KING. Now, the Senator means? I was alluding to the present time.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Yes.

Mr. KING. Our current imports of dyes amount to only about 9 per cent of our domestic requirements, and of these only about half of the total importations, or less than 5 per cent of our consumption, are of the German dyes.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Has not the embargo something to do with that small percentage?

Mr. KING. Undoubtedly the embargo affects imports. deed, the selective embargo now in force operates to restrict imports.

Mr. WADSWORTH. It could not help having something to do with it.

Mr. KING. I have no doubt that the embargo has something to do with it; but if we pass this bill with 60 per cent ad to do with it; but if we pass this bill with 60 per cent advalorem and 7 cents per pound upon finished dyes, and 50 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents a pound upon intermediates, there will be but little need of an embargo—if the exclusion of dyes and intermediates is the great desideratum—because such extreme rates will assure the domestic market to American manufacturers, and an embargo would be superfluent. to American manufacturers, and an embargo would be super-fluous. If time permits I shall show that under these high-tariff rates Germany will be unable to compete with the United States in the domestic market. Indeed, she is now unable to compete with American dye manufacturers in many of the dyes. The Senator will bear in mind that we have already approved of rates of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents a pound upon the finished dyes and 50 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents a pound upon the intermediates. It is contended by those entirely familiar with the dye industry that these rates are equivalent to an embargo, and that so far as the practical effect of the embargo provision of this bill is concerned, it will prove of but little importance to the dye consumers in the United States.

The Tariff Commission, in the Census of Coal Tar Chemicals and Dyes for 1920, made this comment upon the remarkable growth of the industry in this country:

One of the outstanding features of 1920 was the production of 18,178,231 pounds of indigo, valued at $13,497,981. This quantity exceeds by 105 per cent the production of 1919 and is 116 per cent greater than the importation of this dye for 1914. Sulphur black, which had previously been the first color in quantity produced, ranks second in 1920 with an output of 16,305,037 pounds. These two colors were exported in large quantity in that year.

The growth and extension of the American dye industry from 1920, inclusive, is demonstrated in the following table, which shows production in pounds and value, value of exports and imports, and poundage of imports for each of the years for this period:

Domestic production and exports of dues from 1914 to 1920, inclusive.

No data available; Tariff Commission came into existence in 1917 and began compiling data.

The most dependable figures obtainable indicate that about 60 per cent of this enormous production of dyes is the product of two large corporations, the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation and E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., of Wilmington, The Du Pont Co. has the largest and most modern indigo plant in the Western Hemisphere and, indeed, so far as I am able to determine from information which I have, the largest in the world.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Is indigo a coal-tar product?

Mr. KING. It may be and is made from coal tar. Formerly, as the Senator knows, it was a natural dye.

The president of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation admits that his company makes about 40 per cent of the dyes produced in the United States, and the president of the Du Pont Co. admits that his company makes at least 20 per cent of all the dyes produced in the United States. The capitalization of these two companies alone approximates $600,

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, does that include the capitalization of the Du Pont Co. devoted to other matters than the manufacture of dyes?

Mr. KING. I think it includes all except that which it has invested in the General Motors Co.

Mr. WADSWORTH. The figure of $600,000,000 includes the capitalization, of course, of businesses which have no relation whatever to dyes

Mr. KING. I do not admit that they have no relation what-soever, but I do not claim that all of that capitalization is used in the manufacturing of dyes. I am calling attention to this for the reason that stress has been laid so frequently upon what is denominated the German capital. I will show later that the capitalization of one of these companies exceeds the capitalization of all of the dye corporations in Germany; and of course the Senator knows—he is a man of broad experience and of great wisdom—that if a corporation with a capitaliza-tion of three or four hundred millions of dollars is engaged in an industry or in a number of industries, one or two or more of which may be in competition with other industries, it has behind it a potential power that would not be possessed by a small corporation limiting its activities entirely to the dye business. To illustrate: If the Du Pont Co. has three hundred millions of capital—and it has more—and it uses fifty millions for dye purposes and two hundred and fifty millions in other enterprises, and it encounters competition in the dye industry, it has the potential power of a $300,000,000 corporation, and is unquestionably more powerful in the market as a competitor than if it had a capital of $50,000,000 only. So I call attention to these corporations and their enormous capital to show not only the actual but the potential possibility for monopolistic

When we add to this great capitalization the capital of other corporations engaged in the manufacture of dyes and chemicals, such as the Sherwin-Williams Co., the Monsanto Chemical Co., the Dow Chemical Co., the Newport Chemical Co., the Calco Chemical Co., the Grasselli Chemical Co., Heller & Merz, and also that of corporations engaged in making other synthetic organic chemicals or coal-tar products, such as Powers, Weightman & Co., Parke, Davis & Co., and other concerns, the capital invested by corporations which are engaged in the dye and chemical trades must approach if it does not exceed

There are seven great corporations which occupy a dominating position in the dye and chemical trade in the United States. These corporations control at least 90 per cent of the annual production of the synthetic dyes and intermediates in this country. These companies are the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del.; the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, New York City; the Grasselli Chemical Co., Cleveland, Ohlo; the Sherwin-Williams Co., Cleveland, Ohlo; the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich.; the Monsanto Chemical Works, St. Louis, Mo.; and the Newport Chemical Works, Milway Co., Chemical Works, Milway Co., Chemical Works, Milway Chemical Co., Chemical Co., Milway Chemical Co., Chemical waukee, Wis. The combined capital assets of these corporations exceeds $600,000,000. Not only do they control the great preponderance of chemical production in the United States but they also carry on an international business of large proportion. The Du Pont corporation has become so powerful that it now reaches over the seas and enters into trade combinations and agreements with foreign corporations. In the last session of Congress attention was called to the contract between the Du Pont Co. and Levinstein's (Ltd.), of England, by which the dye trade in the United States, Mexico, the West Indies, and South and Central America was allocated to the Du Pont Co. and the dye trade in the British Isles, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, Portugal, and Finland, Switzerland, Czechoslovakla, Poland, Austria, Hungary, Serbia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Greece, and the British Dominions beyond the seas was allocated to Levinstein's (Ltd.), and the two conspiring corporations reserved for themselves common rights in the dye trade in Canada, Japan, China, and Russia. It is also reported that the Du Pont company has an agreement with a French corporation with regard to the production and sale of artificial silk. The bulletin of the Republic of China, under date of June 24, 1921, reported that Dr. C. T. Wang and C. C. Nieh were preparing to form in combination with the Heng Sing Dye Co. to make dyes in China. The Heng Sing Co. is a Du Pont corporation operating in China.

Heng Sing Co. is a Du Pont corporation operating in China. The Sherwin-Williams Co. has numerous subsidiaries and is the largest producer of paints and varnishes in the United States, in Canada, and in Great Britain. Indeed, this company is recognized as the largest corporation in the paint business in the whole world. Its plants in the United States are located in Cleveland, Chicago, Newark, Boundbrook, N. J., Detroit, San Francisco, Boston, Dallas, and Lincoln. There are plants in Canada in Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg, and abroad at London, England, and Sydney, Australia. Waco. The company also operates a zinc and lead mine at Magdalena, N. Mex., and a zinc oxide smelter at Coffeyville, Kans. The president of the company, Walter H. Cottingham, states in a letter dated February 11, 1920:

Our field is not confined to any locality, any State, any country, or any continent—it is world-wide. Our goods are known as well on the Atlantic as on the Pacific coast. They are as popular in all of Canada as in the United States. They are sold and used with as much satisfaction in England, Ireland, continental Europe, India, the Austro-Asian colonies, South Africa, and on the continent of South America as they are at home.

It must be said that the Sherwin-Williams Co. covers consid-They also make synthetic dyes both for their erable territory. own uses and for the trade. Indeed, Mr. Cottingham, president of the Sherwin-Williams Co., was the first president of the American Dyes Institute, which was organized as one of these notorious open-price associations and was really a conspiracy to control the dye business of the country. Since these organizations were outlawed by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Hardwood Lumber case, it is reported that the Dyes Institute, this child of Mr. Cottingham, has become moribund. But the institute, during the short period of its activity, expended over a quarter of a million dollars, largely in propaganda and lobbying for an embargo against the importation of dyes. These expenditures on the books of the institute are euphoneously called "legislative expenses." In any prudently managed business such illegitimate use of money would be regarded as an unwarranted vaste, but these dye manufac-turers have become so prosperous in their new-found profits that I am sure they will not miss the quarter of a million dol-lars of their money which has been wasted by the institute in an endeavor to consolidate the monopoly which they aim to establish with respect to the dye trade of the United States. The Sherwin-Williams Co. in the five years from 1916 to 1920, inclusive, reported net earnings in the aggregate amount of The Monsanto Chemical Works has plants in Missouri and Hilmois and also operates a plant in North Wales. In the six years from 1916 to 1920, inclusive, this company carned $6,661,-972 on common stock of the par value of $3,100,000. The Monsanto Co. in addition thereto has earned interest on its funded debt of $1,798,000.

Pursuing this question of the annual earnings of the corpora-tions engaged in the dye trade in the United States, the firm of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. carned in the seven years from 1914 to 1920, inclusive, aggregate profits in the sum of $202,188,790, which means average earnings of over $30,000,000 a year. The assets of this company are admitted to be $258, 000,000, and this tremendous property and these unprecedented earnings have been practically a war fortune to this company. But the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. is only a combination of a few or the corporations controlled by the Du Pont interests. These multifarious interests aggregate approximately $1,000,-000:000

At the beginning of the war the interests commonly known as the Du Pont interests were limited to a few corporations, the aggregate value of the capital stock of which was reputed to be less than $100,000,000. At the present time these same Du Pont interests have assets of more than $1,000,000,000, as I have just stated, and they own or have a controlling interest in a large number of corporations, some of which are as follows: The Du Pont Building Corporation; the Du Pont Nitrate Co.; the Du Pont American Industries Co.; and E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., having the Becton Chemical Co., Harrison Bros. & Co., the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Export Co., the Arlington Co., the New England Oil, Paint & Varnish Co., Cawley Clark & Co., the Du Pont Engineering Co., the Bridge-port Wood Finishing Co., the Flint Varnish & Color Works, the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Co., the Du Pont Fabrikoid Co., and the Du Pont Chemical Co. as subsidiaries.

The Du Pont company has a dominating interest in the General Motors Co., which is reputed to have assets of over $600,000,000.

The Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation in 1921 had assets of more than $325,000,000. It owns various corporations such as the Solvay Process Co., the Semet Solvay Co., the National Anlline & Chemical Co., the Barrett Co., and the General Chemical Co., all of which, excepting the Barrett Co., absorbed various corporations. This great allied chemical company is the greatest chemical combination in the world. The terrible German cartel, or I. G., as it is called, which is being continually paraded as a scarecrow before Congress, is not a corporation but an association or syndicate of 12 corporations, comprising the entire German dye industry.

We do not realize the magnitude of the interests that are controlled by the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation. This corporation has outstanding $100,000,000 of preferred stock which is readily sold at 110, and 3,143,000 shares of common stock with no indicated par but which is selling in the market at $69 per share, making an aggregate value of the shares of this corporation $326,867,000. According to authentic financial reports, the Barrett Co., one of the subsidiaries of the allied chemical combination which makes intermediates, in the first three months of 1921 realized sufficient profits to pay the annual dividends upon both the preferred and common stock of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation. Against this, for purposes of comparison, let us place the corporations which constitute the German cartel, or the so-called Interessen Gemeinschaft, which is being constantly exhibited to frighten Congress into the belief that such concerns as the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation will be destroyed by German dye interests even if duties be imposed under which the prices for dyes in the American market may be maintained in many cases at 100 per cent above the price levels in the open world market, and in every case at levels which are a great deal more than 60 per cent above the open price in the world market, all of which would be the result of imposing duties of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound upon dyes, as is proposed in the pending bill. The German corporations which are associated in the so-called German cartel had, according to the report of the standing committee on trusts of the House of Commons, issued May 18, 1921, an aggregate capital of 1,221,600,000 marks. In 1916 the capital of these same companies was reported at 242,000,000 marks. Upon the basis of the British parliamentary report, the capital of 1,221,500,000 marks, converted by the value of the gold mark at 23.8 cents, would represent a total capitalization of $290,740,000, as against the capitalization of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation of $326,-867.000. Of course, I know it is claimed that there has been a great inflation of the capital of these German concerns, but it the war has been upon the basis of the value of the German paper mark, which of course brings factors into the problem of valuation in gold which make a gold valuation difficult if not impossible of determination. But in any view of the matter the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation is a combination whose capital greatly exceeds the combined capital of the German cartel. It is a greater trust than the so-called German trust; and to say that this gigantic corporation can not hold its own in the American dye market with prices that may be maintained without an embargo at double the prices at which the German cartel must sell its dyes is so incredible as to be unworthy of the serious consideration or attention of the Senate. It is, moreover, believed that the assets of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., which are reported at $253,000,000, are in fact of greater value in gold than the assets of the German cartel, and besides these we have 80 other corporations in this country which are engaged in the manufacture of synthetic dyes and whose aggregate capital will go into very large figures.

I-may add by way of parenthesis at this point that the German companies have suffered great losses during and following the war and their assets have been materially reduced. It is worthy of note that these German companies in their attempts to compete with the American dye producers are handicapped by heavy export taxes in Germany, by the charges for packing, freight, insurance, and brokerage fees, as well as the very high duties, indeed almost prohibitive, which in the absence of an embargo are imposed upon the importation of dyes and chemicals under the provisions of this bill which compete in the American market with the chemical products of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, its subsidiary companies, and the other large chemical corporations engaged in the trade in this country.

Senators are familiar with some of these huge companies. which have been absorbed by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation. The Solvay Process Co., which is now owned by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, absorbed the Solvay Collieries Co. and the By-Products Coke Corporation. The Semet lieries Co. and the By-Products Coke Corporation. The Semet Solvay Co., which was a very large concern, acquired the Kentucky Solvay Coke Co. The National Anlline & Chemical Co., whose assets aggregated millions, and which is owned by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, took over the Schoellkopf Aniline & Chemical Works (Inc.); the W. Beckers Aniline & Chemical Works (Inc.); the Benzol Products Co.; the Standard Anlline Products Co.; the Century Color Corporation; the Aniline Products Plant, General Chemical Co., Easton, Pa.; the Aniline Products Plant, General Chemical Co., Marcus Hook, Pa.; and the Aniline Products Plant, Barrett Co., Shadyside, N. J.

The Barrett Co., which was incorporated in 1903, for many years was a large producer of dyes and chemical products. absorbed 40 coal-tar and chemical plants found in 19 States. Proceedings were instituted against it for a violation of the Sherman antitrust law, and my recollection is that the issues were found against it. We now find that this company, with all of its subsidiary organizations, has been swallowed up by this great giant, the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation. The General Chemical Co., which was incorporated in 1890 and had millions of capital and assets, absorbed the Virginia Mining Co., the Western Chemical Co., the General Lighterage Mining Co., the Western Chemical Co., the General Lighterage Co., and the Nichols Chemical Co., and it in turn has been acquired by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation.

Senators will perceive the power of these two great companies controlled by the Du Ponts and by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation. These corporations constitute a trust and dominate the domestic dye market, and, indeed, it is claimed by many that they dominate the chemical industry of the United States.

The Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation has already become one of the largest, if not the largest, single producer of synthetic dyes in the world. In 1920 the production of the Allied was greater than that of the Badische Anilin Soda Fabrik, the largest of the German dye companies. In 1916 it was represented to the Ways and Means Committee by William Beckers, president of the William Beckers Anlline & Chemical Works (Inc.), Brooklyn, N. Y., and by J. F. Schoellkopf, president of the Schoellkopf Aniline & Chemical Works, Buffalo, N. Y., that with the imposition of an import duty of 30 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound on coal-tar dyes that each of these con-cerns would severally be able to and would produce dyes sufficient to supply one-half of the total American domestic consumption. These were the two largest dye-making concerns in the country. They were conducted by men who knew the business and have spent years in building up their two establishments. The effect of this testimony was that these two must be remembered that new capital added since and during companies would be equipped and prepared to turn out dyes equal to the total annual consumption of the country. These two large concerns have both been absorbed and taken over by the All ed Chemical & Dye Corporation. Mr. Beckers is now mominally a director of the National Aniline & Chemical Co., a subsidiary of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, but is not active in the business. For all practical purposes he has retired from the dye business, and Mr. Schoellkopf has retired entirely from the dye business, his works having been purchased, as noted above, by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation. The dye business in this country has been taken over for commercial and financial exploitation by one of the largest financial combines in the country, and the men who really were the ploneers in the business and who knew the business and were primarily engaged in the making of dyes have been supplanted by new men and new interests who desire to exploit the industry and the consuming public to the limit, and who are more concerned with propaganda and embargoes for the prohibition of imports than they are with the establishment of sound and permanent conditions in the industry and of stable relations with the textile and other trades which consume dyes as one of the leading raw materials of their respective trades.

so forth, were reported at $16,179,920.

The Grasselli Chemical Co. has plants at Cleveland, Cincinnati, Bayonne, N. J., Rensselaer, N. Y., and other places in the country. It controls or owns the following subsidiary corporations: The American High Explosive Co., Burton Powder Co., Cameron Powder Co., and Bayer Co. In 1918 the Grasselli Chemical Co. purchased from the Alien Property Custodian, chrough the Sterling Products Co., the plant and business of the Bayer Co. in the United States, including patents for the manufacture of dyes owned by the Bayer Co. The Grasselli Co. has not used the Bayer patents for production in this country, but has been content to use its patent monopoly for the purpose of collecting royalties upon the importation of dyes from Germany, which are brought into the country under the license of the Dye and Chemical Control Section of the Treasury.

In the seven years from 1914 to 1920, inclusive, the net earnings of the Grasselli Co. were reported at $32,001,818.

The Dow Chemical Co. has extensive plants for the making of heavy chemicals, dyes, and pharmaceuticals at Midland, Mich. The par value of its stock issues is $3.000,000, and the corporation has no funded debt. Dividends on the preferred and common stock have been paid with regularity, and a number of special or extra dividends ranging from 25 per cent to 75 per cent have been made. Figures are not available showing the aggregate earnings of the corporation.

The Newport Co., with its head office at Milwaukee, Wis., has plants for the mak ng of heavy chemicals, dyes, rosin, turpentine, and pine oil at Carrollville, Wis.; Pensacola, Fla.; Bay Minette, Ala.; and control through stock ownership the Milwaukee Coke & Gas Co. The financial situation of this company is a typical example of the inordinate prosperity of corporations engaged in the dye and chemical industry of this country. The company's outstanding securities at par are common stock, $312,198; preferred stock, $2,962,600; bonds, $2,500,000. The earnings of the corporation for 1917, 1918, and 1919 and for the first five months of 1920 were of the aggregate amount of $5,042,075. The earnings for the first five months in 1920 were at the rate of $3,040,000 per annum on outstanding common and preferred stock of $3,274,798. The productive capacity of the Newport Co., both in dollars and pounds of products, has been doubled since the company entered upon the manufacture of dyestuffs.

At this point I desire to digress for a moment and say something about the costs of production, as a number of Senators have asked me to submit some observations upon this point. In January, 1916, a committee for the American Chemical

In January, 1916, a committee for the American Chemical Society, acting on behalf of the chemical and dye industries, appeared before the Committee on Ways and Means in support of House bill 702, entitled "A bill to provide revenue for the Government and to establish and maintain the manufacture of dyestuffs." This committee advised Congress that it was their deliberate and mature opinion that duties of 30 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound imposed upon the importation of dyes from abroad would be adequate to establish and maintain the dye industry in the United States. It was also stated by this committee that the duties on intermediates should be 15 per cent ad valorem and 3½ cents per pound. There were on this committee men who were thoroughly conversant with the manufacture of dyes in this country and abroad and who were in fact the most experienced and best informed men in America on this subject. The committee based its representations and recommendations to Congress upon careful examination of cost accounts both as to labor and materials in the dye plants of Schoellkopf, Hartford & Hanna Co., now a part of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, and of Heller & Metz. This was supplemented by a table prepared by Mr. Schoellkopf showing the relative costs in the United States and Germany for the operation of dye plants having an annual capacity of $,000,000 pounds of synthetic dyes. These calculations are based upon the use of dutiable intermediates, and the conclusion of Mr. Schoellkopf is that the cost of producing $,000,000 pounds of coal-tar dyes in the United States would be $645,784.32 and in Germany $480,-299.64, which means that the American cost would be 134.4 per cent of the German cost, from which it follows that an ad valorem duty of 34.4 per cent, not to speak of specific duties, would cover the difference in the cost of producing dyes between Germany and the United States. Of course, the foreign dyes would have added charges for packing, freight, insurance, brokerage, and so forth, to pay, all of which increases the handicap against the foreign dyes in the American market.

There is nothing to indicate to Congress that the differential in cost of dye production in Germany and the United States as found by Mr. Schoellkopf and presented to the Ways and Means Committee does not hold good at the present time. In other words, those who have come to Congress asking for increased rates of duty on the importation of dyestuffs have not seen fit to bring forward any proof or even statements as to their costs of production either for materials or labor at the present time.

In June and July, 1919, hearings were had before the Ways and Means Committee on the so-called Longworth bill providing for an embargo on foreign dyes, but no costs of production in the American industry were forthcoming. In December, 1919, and in January, 1920, hearings were had upon the Long-worth bill before the Finance Committee of the Senate, but no proofs of cost production in the domestic dye industry were forthcoming. In August, 1921, hearings were had before the Senate Finance Committee on the proposed dye embargo in connection with the pending Fordney tariff bill, but again no costs of production in the domestic dye industry were forthcoming for the information of the committee or of Congress. Only one manufacturer of dyes in this country, namely, Mr. H. A. Metz, New York, who, by the way, was opposed to the embargo, was willing to disclose to the committee his costs of production. In fact, Mr. Metz did advise two of the leading members of the committee of the particulars of his costs both as to labor and materials covering a period of five years in one of his dye plants in Newark, N. J. Inasmuch, however, as the other manufacturers of dyes were unwilling to have as the other manufacturers of dyes were unwining to have their costs made public, it was deemed unfair to Mr. Metz to have a publication of his costs of production, and accordingly the information which he placed at the disposal of the committee was not published.

In 1920 the tariff commission issued a statement on "costs an 1920 the tariit commission issued a statement on "costs of production in the dye industry, 1918 and 1919." The statement, however, actually covers six months of 1918 and 9 months of 1919, making the total period covered of one year and three months. This statement is confined to data on 16 intermediates and 15 dyes and is accordingly so meager as to be of no utility as a basis for the determination of protective duties. When it is considered that there were over 600 intermediates and dyes reported in the dye census prepared by the tariff commission for 1921, the inadequacy of these so-called costs is so obvious as to require no further demonstration.

Referring to the cost data over a period of five years for the making of over 100 dyes in the plant of the Consolidated Color & Chemical Co., it was found that the average labor cost was less than 10 per cent of the total cost of producing lyes.

Since February 20 last, a special committee of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate has been investigating the dye industry in the United States with a view, among other things, to recommending legislation to Congress affecting the industry, and although the responsible officials of the dominating dye corporations of the country have appeared before the committee and urged the recommendation of an embargo against the importation of foreign dyes upon the assumption that they could not compete with imported dyes, none of these gentlemen have seen proper to advise the committee or Congress of their costs of production. On April 5 last, Dr. Eugene R. Pickrell brought this matter specifically to the attention of the chairman of the committee conducting the investigation, but no steps have been taken to procure cost data and information.

Authentic information received from Germany indicates that for the year 1921 the labor costs in the dye plants ran from 15 to 30 per cent of the total cost, varying according to the character of the dyes being produced, and that the costs of raw materials ranged from 30 to 50 per cent of the total costs of the dves.

The Senator from New Jersey [Mr. Frelinghuysen] referred to the question of wages as related to the dye industry. I have heretofore called attention to the fact that the reports from, the Department of Commerce and the Census Bureau estab lished that the wages paid in the chemical industry of the United States for the production of three and one-half billions of dollars of products aggregated only 8 per cent. This is less than the wages paid in this industry before the war, when 8½ per cent of the value of the product was absorbed in wages. As the value of the product has increased the relative amount of wages has gone down. In 1914 the ratio of wages to production in the chemical industry is greater than it has been since or is now.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Does the Senator intend to state that the daily wage has gone down?

Mr. KING. I made no such statement. I said the ratio of wages paid to the value of the product.

Mr. WADSWORTH. I can understand that very well, of Mr. KING. That is what I stated. These gentlemen who are arguing for this embargo know what they want,

Mr. President, these gigantic corporations and interests of which I spoke a few moments ago determined to control the domestic market and to secure legislation that would perpetuate the monopoly which they enjoyed during the war. They entered upon their extensive and effective, not to say malign conspiracy, if not during the war at least soon after the armistice. I shall show later that they utilized the Alien Property Custodian and agencies of the Government and various instrumentalities and organizations to accomplish their end. With the utmost audacity they approached Congress and made a demand not only for prohibitive tariffs but for an embargo.

In the hearings before the Finance Committee, Sixty-sixth Congress, second session, Mr. Irenè du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., told Congress precisely what he wanted. On page 166 of the report of these hearings, Mr. du Pont said :

In a preliminary hearing we had in Senator Penrose's office he asked a number of us to come down here and give our ideas, and asked ns:

"What do you want?"
I say an embargo, with a permit to bring in these things we do not make for a 10-year period. I say we want, second, a tariff in addition to the embargo may miscarry; put as high a duty as you can get behind the embargo wall. If the embargo works it don't make any difference what the duties are. But if the embargo leaks, put in the second wall, a high tariff, behind; put as high a tariff as you can get.

you can get.
I want further, then, at the risk of seeming to get a monopoly-

He knew what the effect of the demand which he was making would be, that it would establish a monopoly, or create a potential monopoly in the United States. He proceeded:

potential monopoly in the United States. He proceeded:

I want further, then, at the risk of seeming to get a monopoly, to urge that you should provide that the Sherman law does not apply to the dye industry, if it is thought necessary in the opinion of some Government official. I say that not because we want a monopoly; we do not want it. If we have anybody competing for the prises, that is the ideal way. But suppose some unexpected situation happens requiring that we get dye makers together on short notice to exchange information, some Government officer ought to be designated to say the Sherman Act does not apply to the dye industry, because it is in the Interest of the public need, if that time ever comes. The importance of the matter has not been exaggerated by what these gentlemen have told you. I am not going on to that question, though I feel strongly about it, because you are satisfied. That phase should be considered.
It is a good deal to ask, but the situation is not without precedence.

The dye makers have gotten together. The effect of their getting together is seen in the maintenance of prices in the do-mestic market at practically stationary levels for 1918, 1919, and The average price of domestic dyes in 1918 was $1.08 per 1920. The average price of domestic dyes in 1918 was $1.08 per pound, in 1919 $1.07 per pound, in 1918 $1.08 per pound, as compared to 25 cents per pound before the war. The present situation in the domestic dye market is indicated by a comparison of present prices with pre-war prices as to 25 principal dyes the production of which constitutes 75 per cent of the total production of dyes in the United States.

I have here a table covering 25 dyes, the production in 1920, the names, the present domestic prices—that is, of February 3, 1922—and the pre-war prices. Without reading the same, I ask that it may be inserted in the RECORD as a part of my remarks. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the request will be granted.

Mr. KING. Let me call attention to a few of these dyes. Let us take direct yellow R.

Mr. WADSWORTH. May I interrupt the Senator once more? crave his pardon.

Mr. KING. I shall be glad to yield.
Mr. WADSWORTH. Did the Senator give the average price of dyes for 1920?

Mr. KING. No; but I shall do so,

WADSWORTH. I thought I heard the Senator say it was $1.08 a pound.

Mr. KING. I said that the average price of domestic dyes in 1918 was $1.08 per pound; in 1919, $1.07 per pound. Mr. WADSWORTH. Does the Senator give it for 1921?

Mr. KING. I have not given that. I shall come to that a little later

Mr. WADSWORTH. I think the Senator will find that it is 83 cents.

Mr. KING. I know there has been a reduction, because the domestic dye manufacturers produced such a surplus that they could not find sufficient markets abroad, and some grades of dyes came back upon them like the flowing tide. Nevertheless, they kept prices 300 per cent or more above the pre-war prices.

I was directing attention to the dye known as direct yellow R. The price on February 3, 1922, was $2 a pound. The pre-war price was 27 cents.

Mr. POMERENE. Mr. President, if I understood the Senator from New Jersey correctly, he made a statement in his speech to the effect that both France and Great Britain have an embargo.

Mr. KING. I will discuss that a little later, if the Senator will pardon me. I will show just what they have done,

The domestic price of tartrazine on February 3, 1922, was $1 a pound, and the pre-war price was 28 cents.

The domestic price of metanil yellow on February 3, 1922, was $1 a pound, and the pre-war price was 24 cents.

The domestic price on oxamine black, B. H. N., on February 3, 1922, was $1.20. The pre-war price was 22 cents.

The domestic price of oxamine green, B. X., on February 3, 1922, was $1.25 a pound. The pre-war price was 35 cents.

The price on February 3, 1922, of malachite green was $1.35 a pound, and the pre-war price was 40 cents.

The price of methylene blue on February 3, 1922, was $1.50 a pound, and the pre-war price was 50 cents.

It may not be quite pertinent to the discussion at this point, but I desire to inform the Senate that in addition to the enormous production of dyes in the United States—a production greater than that of any country in the world—the United States produces greater quantities of coal-tar products and more of the by-products of the coke oven than any country in the world. Indeed, my information is that we produce more than all the rest of the world combined. With the enormous increase in the production of bituminous coal, followed by the great increase in the number of coke ovens and in the output of coke ovens, the United States produces more intermediates than all other countries combined, and is in a position to outstrip the world in the production of intermediates and the by-products of coke ovens. There is no reason why the United States should not lead the world in the production of dyes and intermediates, as well as in the production of all forms of chemi-With our great mineral resources and the inexhaustible treasure houses which nature has blessed this Republic, the United States can lead the world in the chemical industry, as she is leading it in the production of steel and in many other industries. But in the chemical industry, particularly that branch of it known as the dye industry, there has developed a selfish and greedy spirit which demands the legislation found in this bill and which, as I have repeatedly said, can not be defended in morals or upon any just or rational grounds.

Speaking of intermediates, let me add that a number of the treatment of the control of the c great corporations whose names I have mentioned control, if they are not supreme, in the production of intermediates. The control of intermediates, or of the production and sale of intermediates, always makes for potential control of the dyestuff industry itself. The making of intermediates requires large investment of capital, and the great majority of the dye makers of this country are compelled to purchase their intermediates. There is much greater concentration in the domestic production of intermediates than there is in the domestic production of dyes.

The control of the intermediates is perhaps more easily accomplished than is the control or monopoly of the finished dye products. In other words, it is perhaps a less difficult task, where corporations have great capital, to control or monopolize the intermediates than it is the finished products, and accordingly we find that two great corporations, with capital approximating $600,000,000, namely, the American Chemical & Dye Corporation and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., have together a practical control of the production of intermediates in this country, from which it follows that any manufacturer of dyes and dyestuffs who is outside the dye combination is at the mercy of these corporations when he must purchase intermediates as the raw materials of his business. The control of intermediates is one of the reasons for the present high prices of dyes. This condition is exemplified by the following table, which compares the pre-war domestic price of intermediates with the prices obtained in 1920 in the controlled market in this country:

The average of these prices on intermediates, which represent over 70 per cent of the 1920 production in this country, is four and one-tenth times higher than the pre-war average price of these same intermediates in the domestic market. have here one of the fertile causes for the maintenance of dye prices at unprecedented levels years after the war inflation has subsided as to the prices of all other articles of general consumption. While the average price for dyes is now three and eight-tenths times higher than the average pre-war price, and the average price of intermediates is four and one-tenth times the average pre-war price, no inflation comparable to this exists with regard to the prices of other commodities, many of which have reached pre-war levels, and the great majority of which are approaching pre-war price levels. I have prepared a table which exemplifies the deflation of prices which has been accomplished and which is in progress in the general commodity markets of the country. This table demonstrates that whereas the average present prices on the above-enumerated 52 essential commodities of wide general use have reached levels which are not above 119 per cent of the pre-war prices, the average price for dyes at the present time is more than 300 per cent of the average price obtaining before the war.

Mr. POMERENE. Mr. President, may I ask the source of the information which the Senator has just given?

Mr. KING. I obtained it from a Department of Commerce report, from the Tariff Commission, and from market reports. I have all the data here if anyone cares to examine the matter. Mr. POMERENE. I merely wanted the Record to show the source of the Senator's information.

Mr. KING. At this point I desire to briefly refer to some of the tariff legislation dealing with dyes,

The first tariff law which laid a tariff upon dyes was enacted January 30, 1864. This was only a year or two after the first coal-tar dyes appeared on the market. Coal-tar dyes and dyestuffs have been either dutiable or free in every tariff since the act of 1864 up to and including the special legislation enacted as a part of the general revenue act of September 3, 1916. Special legislation was incorporated in that general revenue act whereby dyes and intermediates received protection in conformity to the request of the domestic dye manufacturers. Dyes were assessed at either 30 per cent ad valorem or 30 per cent ad valorem and 5 cents a pound. Intermediates were made dutiable at 15 per cent ad valorem and 24 cents per The protection afforded to dyes and dyestuffs under this special legislation was approximately equal to the protection afforded the dye industry from 1864 to 1883, during which time a very substantial dye industry was created in this

The pending bill as passed by the House of Representatives last July gives a greater protection to dyes and dyestuffs than either the general revenue act of September 8, 1916, which is in effect to-day, or the protection in existence from 1864 to 1883. The rates in the Fordney bill, as it passed the House, for dyes, are 35 per cent ad valorem, based on American valuation, and 7 cents per pound; and for intermediates 30 per cent ad valorem, based on American valuation, and 7 cents a pound.

The following shows the provisions for coal-tar dyes and the rates of duty in all of the tariff acts, beginning with the act of June 30, 1864, and concluding with the present act, Title V, September 8, 1916:

June 30, 1864: Anilin dyes, 35 per cent ad valorem and $1 per

June 30, 1804: Anilin dyes, 35 per cent ad valorem and 50 cents per pound; allin oil, crude, free, picric and nitro-picric acid, free. February 6, 1875: Same as 1870, with addition of nitrobenzol, 10 cents per pound, alizarine, free.

March 3, 1883: Coal-tar dyes, 35 per cent, alizarine, natural and artificial, free; indigo and artificial indigo, free; anilin oil and saits, free.

October 1, 1890: Same as 1883, with dyes known commercially as alizarine yellow, alizarine orange, alizarine green, alizarine blue, alizarine bewom and alizarine black added to the free list.

August 27, 1894: Coal-tar dyes, 25 per cent, alizarine and indigo, free; alizarine dyes free; anilin oil and saits, free.

July 24, 1897: Coal-tar dyes, 30 per cent, alizarine and alizarine dyes, free; anthracene dyes, free; indigo, free; anilin oil and saits, free.

August 5, 1909: Same as 1897.
October 3, 1913: Coal-tar dyes, 30 per cent, alizarine and alizarine dyes, free; anthracene dyes, free; indigo and indigo dyes, free; carbasol dyes, free; anilin oil and saits, toluidin, xylidin, etc., 10 per cent. September 8 1916: Coal-tar dyes, 30 per cent and 5 cents per pound, indigo and indigo dyes, 30 per cent; alizarine and alizarine dyes, 30 per cent; anthracene dyes, 30 per cent; carbazol dyes, 30 per cent; anlih oil and salts and amidonaphthol, amidophenol, etc., 15 per cent and 2½ cents per pound.

Notwithstanding the fact that the embargo upon dyestuffs is without precedent in the fiscal policy of the country, is confessedly inimical to the public interest, is detrimental to the great textile industry, and is an insuperable impediment to the development of independent dye manufacture, the existing dye combine has conspired to perpetuate the existing temporary embargo and would make the same the permanent policy of the

A few moments ago I referred to the two representatives of the dye interests of the United States, Doctor Becker and Mr. Schoellkopf, who appeared before the Ways and Means Committee of the House in 1916 and there testified that with the rates which were then fixed and which are in the existing law they could produce within a limited period practically all of the dyes needed in the United States. The chairman of the committee, Mr. Kitchin, suggested the possibility of their forming a monopoly, but was assured that they would not establish a monopoly, and that if they could have rates of 30 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents specific, they would within such limited period be able to compete with the world in the domestic market and would be able to satisfy all demands of the domestic market.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, has the Senator made any calculation as to which is actually the higher rate, the House rate ad valorem on the American valuation or the Senate committee rate on the foreign valuation?

Mr. KING. I have attempted that, but it is very difficult because of the fluctuation in foreign prices. Before I get through I think I shall be able to show the Senator that the foreign prices now are so much higher than they were a few months ago that the figures which I could have prepared then would be of no avail now. In other words, the foreign valuation is more nearly approaching the American valuation, not because of the reductions here, but because of the augmentation of prices there. Prices have gone up tremendously on dye products in Germany during the past few months, caused by scarcity of raw materials and the great increase in the price of the labor and other industrial causes. However, generally speaking, the Senate rates are higher.

Mr. President, at the risk of wearying the Senate, I purpose discussing some of the means employed by the domestic dye producers to obtain an embargo and some of the agencies, instrumentalities, and corporations employed to further their schemes. Among the agencies controlled and directed by those interested in the manufacture of dyes and chemical products were the Chemical Foundation, the American Dyes Institute, the Textile Alliance, the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, the Alien Property Custodian and persons connected therewith, individuals connected with the Treasury Department and other executive and administrative organizations, as well as numerous individuals, lobbyists, attorneys, associations, and so forth. Like all propagandists, the dye monopoly has sought to conduct its agitation under the guise of pretended public, not to say eleemosynary, corporations and societies.

It is through these agencies that the propaganda for the dye embargo has been carried on, and it is through some of these agencies that large sums of money have been distributed for this purpose. The three institutions, euphoniously called foun-dations, institutions, and alliances, which have been the most active are the Chemical Foundation, the American Dyes Institute, and the Textile Alliance. They have been made the creatures of the dye combination. Indeed, it is through these agencies that the combination has been effective. Through these Chemical Foundation the dye combine controls the use of all the German patents and formulæ for dyes and chemicals which have been taken out in the United States. Through the Textile Alliance the dye combine has controlled the selection, collection, and distribution of all the dyes from Germany which are purchased from the Reparation Commission for importation into the United States. Through the American Dyes Institute the members of the dye combine have met and arranged the prices to be charged in this country for dyes, have distributed territory among the members both as to the domestic trade and foreign trade, and have limited, restricted, and regulated production, and have arranged that there is never any excessive quantity of domestic dyestuffs on the American market to force prices down to a lower level.

This remarkable condition of affairs is all the more intolerable and inexcusable when the fact is known and considered that neither in the charter nor the avowed purposes of either the Chemical Foundation or the Textile Alliance is there a word or a clause justifying, directing, or authorizing these institutions and corporations to engage in any such work and activities.

The Textile Alliance has no more authority to engage in this traffic in reparation dyes than it has to operate railroads. The alliance has no authority to engage in business of any kind. The only reasonable explanation that can be offered for what it has done is that it is absolutely under the domination of officials, directors, friends, and agents of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, and other dye and chemical companies.

On the advisory committee of the Chemical Foundation, as well as on the executive committee of the Textile Alliance, are directors and officials of both the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. and the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation. For instance, the dye advisory committee of the War Trade Board, which controlled the dye imports to the United States during the war, were Morris R. Poucher, Du Pont de Nemours & Co.; Robert T. Baldwin, Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation; Charles H. Herty, Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association; Henry B. Thompson, United States Finishing Co.; August Merz, Heller & Merz; Franklin W. Hobbs, Arlington Mills; Louis B. Timm, Manhattan Shirt Co.; and Edward F. Lotte.

Those were the members of the dye advisory committee of the War Trade Board, and they controlled the importation of dyes and practically the dye business of the United States. When the War Trade Board went out of existence that work was transferred bodily to the State Department, and they or-ganized there the dye advisory committee, War Trade Board Section of the State Department, to control the dye situation, and the same individuals constituted the advisory committee of the State Department. Then, when the State Department transferred it or, rather, when by law it was transferred to the Treasury Department, there was organized the dye advisory committee, Dye and Chemical Control Section of the Treasury Department, and these same gentlemen constituted the advisory committee of the Treasury Department. And we have the Textile Alliance and we have these same gentlemen constituting the dye advisory committee of the Textile Alliance.

So, Mr. President, wherever we touch any phase of the dye industry in the United States, whether it is Du Pont or the Allied Chemical Co. or the Textile Alliance or the Chemical Foundation or the dye advisory committee of the War Trade Board, or that agency of the State Department or that agency of the Trensury Department, we touch Mr. Poucher and the other individuals who have represented to a greater or less degree the domestic dye interests of the United States.

THE CHEMICAL FOUNDATION.

One of the most delectable institutions which has been created to further the interests of the dye combination of this country is the Chemical Foundation, a corporation of Delaware, organized February 16, 1919. This corporation was said by Mr. Joseph H. Choate, jr., one of our newly arrived authorities on chemicals and dyes, to have been conceived in the fertile brain of Mr. Francis P. Garvan. Mr. Garvan was Alien Property Custodian and by virtue of his office was trustee of some 4,800 patents covering chemical processes for the manufacture of dyes and other synthetic organic products from coal tar and coal-tar intermediates, which had been seized as alien enemy property, pursuant to the trading with the enemy act.

Mr. Joseph H. Choate, jr., was a dollar-a-year man in the office of the Alien Property Custodian. Mr. Ramsey Houget was also a dollar-a-year man in the office of the Alien Property Custodian, and Messrs. Otto H. Bannard, Cleveland H. Dodge, George L. Ingraham, Benjamin Griswold, jr., and Ralph Stone constituted the so-called advisory sales committee of the Alien Property Custodian's office, which committee, as I am informed, assumed to pass upon the propriety and reasonableness of the sales of property held in trust by the Alien Property Custodian. It is assumed that these gentleman served without pay or for the nominal compensation of $1 per year. I am not advised whether they had any actual functions to perform or whether their names are merely used for the sake of appearances, as are the names of prominent persons frequently used by corporations and others who desire to trade upon the good reputation of public men.

Returning to the Chemical Foundation, Congress, in section 10 of the trading with the enemy act, had authorized the President to grant licenses for the use of the patents to be selzed by the Alien Property Custodian. The President delegated this authority by Executive order to the Federal Trade Commission, and the Federal Trade Commission under this authority has granted a large number of licenses to American citizens for the use of these German patents in the manufacture of both dyestuffs and drugs and medicines and other synthetic organic chemicals.

and drugs and medicines and other synthetic organic chemicals. Let me state at this point that there has been considerable turmoil since President Harding directed the Attorney General to institute proceedings against the Chemical Foundation to set aside the sale of these patents by Mr. Garvan as Alien Property Custodian to himself as the president of the Chemical Foundation. I congratulate President Harding for having done his duty

I regard the pretended sale as passing no title or, at least, a voidable one. It was a high-handed, indefensible proceeding upon the part of Mr. Garvan to dispose of property worth millions to an organization which he had contrived, and of which he was the head, for a sum which was not only grossly inadequate but was insignificant, measured by the value of the property. If the American people want to take away from the German owners their patents, their patent rights, their trademarks, their copyrights, and other property in the United States let them do it with some decent regard for international treatles and law, but to seize property under the strong hand of the law and then sell it to ourselves for a grossly inadequate sum is confiscation, though we may have done it under the guise of law. No honest nation can afford, in dealing even with the nationals of an enemy country, to be guilty of injustice of that character. I would treat German nationals the same as I would treat the nationals of any other country; the same as I expect Germany to treat the nationals of the United States. We have not yet become pirates or robbers or looters, having no regard for international comity or for the rights of aliens who may come into the United States.

Mr. President, we have to-day, perhaps, $20,000,000,000 of American capital invested either in bonds or in property, personal, real, or mixed, in foreign countries. Supposing we announce a policy of confiscation of the property of the nationals of other countries in the event of war, we would suffer the most from that policy, because we are a creditor Nation; we have more to lose than would any other country.

The United States has always contended for the sanctity of private property and insisted that it be immune from seizure by belligerent nations. Our statemen have prided themselves upon their devotion to international morality and to the highest and noblest precepts that should govern international relations.

We can not afford to tarnish the honor of our country or bring its good name into question by advocating or adopting a policy, which leads to the confiscation of the property of aliens.

Germans, Austrians, and the nationals of many countries invested millions, indeed hundreds of millions, of dollars in the United States under the protection of treaties and in reliance upon the accepted standards of international ethics for which the United States contended and to the adherence of which it had pledged its honor. It is proposed by some that because the German Government committed torts against our Government, and against American citizens, that reprisals be made by the United States against German nationals who had investments in the United States when we entered the war in April, 1917. They insist that we had the legal and the moral right to the property of enemy aliens which was found in the United States at the beginning of or during the war, and to dispose of it in any manner that we saw fit. They justify the sale of property worth hundreds of milions of dollars by the Alien Property Custodian, some of which was sold, or rather disposed of, without adequate consideration, indeed, in some instances at a grossly inadequate consideration. There are those who insist that all of this allen property should be confiscated by the United States and that it should be turned over to Americans who have claims against the German Government. There are those who demand that the more than 4,800 patents seized by the Alien Property Custodian under the trading with the enemy act be confiscated and the German owners absolutely deprived of their property therein. They ignore in-ternational morality and the terms of the trading with the enemy act, which in effect declares that such patents shall be held in trust and the proceeds derived from the use or licensing of the same shall be paid to the German owners. They ignore the repeated declarations made when the trading with the enemy act was under consideration in Congress, to the effect that the property, the sequestration of which was authorized, be held by the United States or the Alien Property Custodian as a trustee for the use and benefit of the alien owners.

There are some Americans who seem to glory in the fact that patents worth millions of dollars were seized by the Alien Property Custodian and sold by him to himself as president of the corporation which he caused to be organized, for a mere pittance—a sum wholly insignificant measured by the value of the patents. I have insisted for more than a year that the Attorney General institute proceedings to set aside the fraudulent sale of these patents and I am glad to know that the President of the United States has directed such an action and that the Attorney General is preparing to bring suit pursuant to the directions of the President.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, will the Senator from Utah yield to me?

Utah yield to me? Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. WADSWORTH. The Senator's observations bring up a cry interesting question.

Mr. KING. I apologize for digressing, but will hasten along.
Mr. WADSWORTH. I gather from the Senator's observations that he believes that these patents should be returned to their original owners?

Mr. KING. I made no statement with reference to that matter.

Mr. WADSWORTH. But that is the unavoidable inference from the Senator's remarks, is it not?

Mr. KING. Will the Senator please renew his question?
Mr. WADSWORTH. Does the Senator from Utah believe that the patents should be returned to their original owners?

Mr. KING. I do not believe that these patents or any other property seized by the Alien Property Custodian and belonging to German or Austrian nationals should be confiscated. There is some doubt as to the right of our Government to even sequester the property of German nationals under the terms of the treaty that was in force when the United States entered the war. But waiving that question, it is my contention that the property seized should have been held in trust, to be returned to the owners of the same at the termination of the war. I do not intend to say that the United States had no technical right to sell property which was sequestered. It had the power, and under international law it had the technical right to convert to its own use any property seized which was required by the Government in its military operations. It had the right to seize patents, and if those patents were necessary to the United States in the prosecution of the war it had the right to appropriate the same, but only upon condition of paying to the owners thereof or to the Alien Property Custodian, to be held by him in trust for the owners, the fair market value of the same. The Government had the right to appropriate for its own use the patents or property of American citizens, but only upon condition that just compensation be paid to the owners of the same. There could be no objection to the course of the Executive after the seizure of these patents in placing them under the power of the Federal Trade Commission, in order that licenses might be issued for their use, providing the royalties or fees resulting therefrom were to be retained by the Federal Trade Commission for the owners of the patents. Congress made express provision for this in the trading with the enemy act. That was entirely proper, and if the policy were continued it would be unobjectionable, because if the German owners receive reasonable royalties for the use of their patents they are not injured or deprived of their property, but effectually enjoy the use of the same.

When the war was over, however, this Government should have appointed a commission to deal with the general subject of alien property, such as was appointed following the Spanish-American War. That commission, as did the Spanish-American commission, could have determined the ownership of the property selzed and ordered restoration to those entitled to the same whether the property was valuable or of but little worth. With reference to the patents sold by the Alien Property Custodian to himself, or to a corporation which he organized,

With reference to the patents sold by the Alien Property Custodian to himself, or to a corporation which he organized, it has been my contention that the sale was fraudulent and liegal and should be set aside and the patents, together with all the royalties and proceeds derived from the use of the same, placed in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian to be held by him until Congress took such action as it deemed Senators will recall that these patents were not sold by Mr. Garvan as Alien Property Custodian until after the armistice. They were sold, as I recall, in April, 1919. The transaction had every appearance of being in furtherance of a scheme or design to deprive the German owners of these patents, regardless of their rights or of the provisions of the trading with the enemy act or of the principles of international law which should obtain between civilized and enlightened nations. Of course there was some property seized by the Alien Property Custodian of a perishable nature which ought to have been sold, and perhaps some classes of property which were so peculiar or unique or the circumstances concerning the same of such a character as to warrant the sale of the same in order that loss might not result to the owners of the same. But no sale in my opinion should have been made except the interests of the owners of the same were to be subserved.

The Alien Property Custodian held the property as a trustee.

The Alien Property Custodian held the property as a trustee. He owed to the cestui que trust the highest duty, and it was his soiemn duty to handle the property with an eye single to the welfare and advantage of the owners of the property.

the welfare and advantage of the owners of the property.

I repeat, Mr. President, that as to the patents sold by Mr. Garvan to the Chemical Foundation, the sale should be set aside and the control of the patents placed with the Alien Property Custodian. Congress then, by appropriate legislation, should make provision to restore these patents to the owners, together with the royalties which have been received.

In determining whether property should be restored to the

In determining whether property should be restored to the owners from whom it was taken, the important question is not its value. It is wholly unimportant whether the patents taken are valuable or of but little worth. They belong to German nationals. They were obtained in a proper way under laws of our own making and pursuant to treaties negotiated between the United States and the German Government. German nationals took out patents within the United States, and American citizens took out patents under the German laws. The German Government did not confiscate or attempt to confiscate patents owned by Americans and taken out in Germany. There are some whose vision is so clouded as to perceive no immorality in a policy which robs German nationals of their patents obtained in the United States, providing the patents are of great value. Apparently those entertaining this view regard the theft of valuable property as violative of no principle of morality and justice. Perhaps they would regard the confiscation of property of but little value as an atroclous crime. However, if these patents are of such imperative need to the American people as to demand the assertion of the power of might, then it would seem that the only decent thing for the United States to do would be to pay to the German owners of these patents are so indispensable to the welfare and prosperity of the American people, they should be willing to compensate those who are the owners of the same.

I may not have answered the question of the Senator from New York very clearly. I should be glad to get his views as to what ought to be done,

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, I have been puzzled as to the solution the Senator has to offer. Of course, these patents are not the only ones. We have been talking about dye patents all day, but there are other patents which the Government took.

Government took.

Mr. KING. The Beyer patents,
Mr. WADSWORTH. I refer to patents on some exceedingly important instruments which the War and Navy Departments

Mr. KING. The Senator states that the Government has taken over valuable patents from Germany. I am not advised as to the method adopted by the Government in obtaining possession of the patents or in making use of the same. In my opinion the Government, if it has taken over patents belonging to German citizens, should restore the patents or take proper steps to purchase the same if it regards the patents as of great or vital importance for the welfare of the Nation. Of course, it is difficult to determine the value of a patent. The seized patents will expire within a few years, so that perhaps the only practical way of making compensation to the owners would be to pay just and fair royalties for the use of the same. The trading with the enemy act expressly provided not only that the owners of the patents should have the royalties but that the owners of the patents might go into the American courts to hastisfied with royalties as fixed by the Federal Trade Comsatisfied with royalties as fixed by the Federal Trade Com-

I presume our Government acquired patents from American citizens prior to and during and since the war. I have not learned that our Government forcibly deprived American citizens of their property in patents or their rights in any other form of property. If it acquired private property, it paid for the same. It seems to me that in principle the same course should be pursued by the Government with respect to patents owned by Germans or other aliens.

I repeat that it is the duty of Congress to immediately deal with the question of sequestered property and provide for its restoration to those to whom it belongs. Even if the position be taken that the Alien Property Custodian was authorized to sell the property for the Government, then its sale for an inadequate or unfair price was a fraud against the United States. And if he held their seized property in trust for the owners, then its sale for an inadequate or unfair price would be a fraud against the owners. His act would amount to a de facto and unauthorized confiscation.

Mr. President, I am afraid that the Alien Property Custodian and some associated with him misconceived the law and failed to understand their duty. They seemed to proceed upon the theory that they were authorized to carry on war in the United States against Germany by confiscating the property of Germans.

Senators will remember that at the beginning of our Government we were called upon to announce a policy with respect to the private property of foreign citizens, not only in peace time but when war existed. Our Nation then declared in favor of the immunity of private property from confiscation by belligerent nations. It was declared in the Buena Ventura case, found in 175 U. S., that our Government has always been among the most advanced of the governments of the world in mitigating, as to all noncombatants, the hardships and horrors of war. In 1784 when a treaty was negotiated with Prussia it was declared in effect that in the event of war between the contracting parties the merchants of the respective countries residing in the other country were to be allowed to remain for nine months and to depart freely, taking all their effects; and it was further provided that various persons might remain without molestation and carry on their employments and that their property should not be destroyed. But if anything was taken by the belligerent nation which was necessary in its military operations the same should be paid for at a reasonable price. A treaty having similar terms was in force between the United States and Germany when we entered the war.

price. A treaty having similar terms was in force between the United States and Germany when we entered the war. In the Jay treaty the policy of our Nation toward private property of aliens was again declared. It was in substance stated that the private property of enemy aliens, in the event of war or national differences, should not be sequestered or confiscated. It was also declared to be unjust and impolitic to pursue a course of confiscation, Mr. Hamilton condemned in the strongest language the policy of confiscation of private property. He stated that no language enabled him—to express his abborrence at the idea of violating the property of individuals, which, in an authorized intercourse in time of peace has been confided to the faith of our Government and laws, on account of controversies between nation and nation. In my view every moral and every political sense unite to consign it to execration.

He declared that such a policy is contrary in principle to the provision of the Constitution, which declares that State shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts.

Our Nation from the beginning, as I have stated, has contended that it was a rule of international law to exempt private property of alien enemies from confiscation. Indeed we have contended for the rule that not only private property upon land, but also private property upon the ocean should be ex-empt from seizure. I recall that Mr. Justice Peckham said that this policy was one that was supported as a matter of humanity and morals and that it was anachronistic when private property is respected on land and not respected on sea. In other words, took the position that it was firmly embedded in international law that private property on land was immune from selzure, and pointed to the inconsistency of denying this doctrine to private property upon the sea.

Mr. President, I return after this rather lengthy digression, for which I apologize, to a consideration of the activities of the Chemical Foundation.

Congress had made effective and adequate provision for the equal use upon reasonable fees of these German patents by citizens of the United States. But Mr. Garvan was clearly of the opinion that Congress was incompetent to deal with this question of the ultimate disposition of the German patents and of their intermediate use in the industries of the United States, and took it upon himself to become a voluntary and self-constituted irresponsible "trustee" to take over these patents and control the same as he might conceive to be for the permanent interest of the dye industry in the United States. and the dye interests, including the Du Ponts, Morris Poucher, and Mr. Choate, therefore procured the incorporation of the Chemical Foundation, which was incorporated under the laws of Delaware February 16, 1919. Its capital stock is $500,000, of which $400,000 is preferred and $100,000 common stock. The common stock is placed in the hands of the following trustees:

Otto P. Bannard, New York City. Cleveland H. Dodge, New York City. George L. Ingraham, New York City. Benjamin Griswold, ir. Baltimore, Md. Raiph Stone, Detroit, Mich.

These gentlemen then constituted the so-called advisory sales committee of the Alien Property Custodian. I have been advised that Mr. Stone has retired as one of the trustees of the Chemical Foundation, and in his place has been appointed Mr. Bradley W. Palmer, of Boston, Mass,

Mr. Francis P. Garvan, Alien Property Custodian, became the president of the Chemical Foundation, the incorporation of which he conceived and procured. Mr. Joseph H. Choate, jr., dollar-a-year man in the office of the Alien Property Custodian, became counsel for the Chemical Foundation, and at last reports had received $20,000 in fees as such counsel. Mr. Ramsey Houget, another dollar-a-year man in the office of the Allen Property Custodian, became the patent attorney of the Chemical Foundation, and has received fees on this account which at last reports amounted to $50,319.50.

The Chemical Foundation has collected royalties for the use of patents and upon the importation of patented articles, which at last reports amounted to $429,640.95. Pursuant to this conwhich was hatched in the office of the Alien Property Custodian, an executive order was procured from Hon. Frank Polk, Acting Secretary of State, dated February 26, 1919, authorizing the Alien Property Custodian to sell and transfer the patents which had been seized by the Alten Property Custodian to the Chemical Foundation. At this time A. Mitchell Palmer was Allen Property Custodian and Francis P. Garvan was president of the Chemical Foundation and chief of the Bureau of Investigation in the Allen Property Custodian's office. Mr. Garvan himself became Alien Property Custodian on March 4, 1919, and on April 10, 1919, Francis P. Garvan, Alien Property Custodian, sold and transferred to Francis P. Garvan, president of the Chemical Foundation, 4,802 German patents for the nominal sum of $250,000. The reasonableness of the price obtained from the Chemical Foundation for these patents was presumably passed upon by Messrs. Otto P. Bannard, Cleveland H. Dodge, passed upon by Messrs. Otto F. Bannard, Cleveland H. Dodge, George L. Ingraham, Benjamin Griswold, jr., and Ralph Stone, who were then members of the so-called advisory sales committee of the Alien Property Custodian's office and also constituted the board of trustees of the Chemical Foundation, to which the sale was made. The President of the United States, in a letter to the Alien Property Custodian, dated July 1, 1922, officially declared this price to be merely nominal and to have constituted an abuse of the trust under which the patents were held by the Alien Property Custodian. The merely nominal character of the price obtained for the patents, to wit, $250,000, is indicated by the fact that royalties alone received by the Chemical Foundation for the use of these patents have already amounted to nearly double the sum paid for the patents, and this does not include the sum of $491,000 received as royalties for the use of these same patents by the Federal Trade Com-mission. The patent on salvarsan alone was worth more than a million dollars, and it is positively known that the value of these patents went up into many millions of dollars, all of which were sold for the relatively inconsiderable sum of $250,000.

The President of the United States has instructed the Alien Property Custodian to demand the return of these patents to the Government and also to demand an account of the issues, rents, and profits for the use of such patents while in the hands of the Chemical Foundation. These profits have already been expended in propaganda to procure the enactment of the dye embargo which is contained in the pending bill. Indeed, not only have these profits been expended but the capital of the Chemical Foundation itself has been dissipated and a large deficit created in the prosecution of this vicious propaganda. The chemical combine has thus made itself the beneficiary of this illegal and fraudulent transaction between officers of the Government in their official capacity and the same persons in their private capacity, by which they have converted and appropriated to the use of the dye and chemical combine properties held in trust by themselves as responsible officials of the

But the Chemical Foundation is merely another name for the dye combination. Every dye-making concern in the United States holds stock in the Chemical Foundation. The board of trustees, whose names are used to give an air of respectability to the combine of dye manufacturers which was organized to confiscate for their own uses the patents in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian, are mere figureheads and have neither functions nor powers which are actually performed for the control of the Chemical Foundation.

The real power in this corporation is the so-called advisory committee, whose names, as far as I am advised, have not before been published. This committee consists of Henry Howard, who is controlled by the Grasselli Co., dye manufacturers; R. C. Jeffcott, who is controlled by the Calco Chemical Co., dye manufacturers; Henry L. Blum, who is supposed to have been nominated by the Du Pont interests and is controlled by the Caure Park degrees when the controlled by the Additional Controlled by them; George P. Adamson, who is controlled by the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, dye manufacturers; James T. Pardee, who is controlled by the Dow Chemical Co., dye manufacturers; William J. Schieffelin, of Schieffelin Co., chemical manufacturers; E. A. Colby, of Baker & Co., chemical manufacturers; and F. S. Norton, of the Permutiti Co., chemical manufacturers. These are the men and the interests which control the Chemical Foundation, collect royalties on the patents which this corporation appropriated and converted to its private uses, and which expends these royalties in propaganda for a dye embargo. Not only has this corporation expended its capital stock and royalties in embargo propaganda but it has also created a deficit against the corporation of $123,465.50 in the same vicious activity.

The President of the United States on July 1, 1922, as I have already noted, instructed Col. Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian, to make demand upon the Chemical Foundation for the immediate return and transfer to the Allen Property Custodian of all patents, trade-marks, copyrights, contracts which the Chemical Foundation claims to have obtained from the Alien Property Custodian, and further to demand an accounting of all the rents, profits, and license fees realized by said Chemical Foundation from licenses for the use of such patents. It has been announced by the president of the Chemical Foundation that he will not comply with the demand of the President of the United States.

Mr. Garvan stated, and I think Mr. Palmer did at the outset, that the Alien Property Custodian held this property as a mon-law trustee." Since the passage in England of the statute of uses, with which lawyers are familiar, there is some question as to whether he was a common-law trustee in the true sense. At any rate, he was an equitable, or a statutory, trustee; and the United States did hold the property as trustee for the owners, and we ought to enforce the trust in a legitimate and in a proper way. It is now stated that this property has been transferred to the Chemical Foundation in trust for the American people. I should like to know how that trust is to be en-The stock is divided into two classes-preferred and common. The preferred stock has no voting power. The common stock is to be voted by certain trustees, who hold for a number of years. They can vote as they please. It is a serious question whether any court can determine what they shall do, how they shall vote, whom they shall put at their head.

Who has the power to control the Chemical Foundation? The United States? I doubt it. Who can enforce this nebulous trust which has been spoken of?

There is no express trust created by contract which any court of the land could enforce at the suit of any aggrieved person. Indeed, the beneficiaries of this alleged trust are not determined. If this trust is for the benefit of the industries of the United States, as is professed by the Chemical Foundation, the Congress of the United States and the Government of the United States would be concerned with the enforcement of the trust, and if it were the intention of the Government to subject these patents to a trust for the benefit of the industries of the country it is not to be supposed that Congress would make a mere private corporation, having articles which may be amended at will and which should be otherwise irresponsible to God, the people, or the Government, the agency of the Government for the administration of such trust. If there is any trust which is attached to the holding of these patents by the Chemical Foundation, the Government of the United States was the creatern of the United States was the create tor of the trust; and if there is any trust attached to the holding of these patents by the Chemical Foundation, that trust is in favor of the people of the United States, for whom the Gov-ernment of the United States alone can speak and act. Mr. OVERMAN. Mr. President, I should like to inquire, if the Senator has examined into it, whether or not they are acting under a charter?

Mr. KING.

Mr. OVERMAN. In what State was it granted?

Mr. KING. Delaware. Mr. OVERMAN. Has the charter been put in the Record? Mr. KING. It is in the hearings before the committees, not here

Mr. OVERMAN. I remember that a committee was appointed. following a resolution which the Senator offered, to investigate this whole matter. Does the Senator know whether or not that committee have reported?

Mr. KING. No: they have not.

So, whether this trust is to be enforced by the crentor of the trust or by the beneficiaries of the trust, it is the Government of the United States which is concerned with the enforce-It remains to be seen whether Otto T. Bannard, Cleveland H. Dodge, George L. Ingraham, Benjamin Griswold, jr., and Bradley W. Palmer, who have the voting shares of the Chemical Foundation in their hands, will recognize the sovereign and the equitable rights of the Government of the United States in this matter and will exercise their powers to bring about a compliance with the demands of the President of the United States in the premises. It remains to be seen as to whether or not these men have a personal allegiance to the president of the Chemical Foundation which is higher in their consciences and estimation than is their allegiance to the Government of the United States. These men, these trustees of the Chemical Foundation, have a right and have the power to elect a man as president of the Chemical Foundation who will represent their views and wishes in this matter and who will comply with the demand of the President of the United States if it be the will of the board of trustees that the demand of the President of the United States be complied with. These men profess to have no personal interest in the shares of stock they hold in trust. They claim to have no personal interest in profits or royalties or in any of the benefits which may arise from the holding of these patents. If these men are true to their professions and have no concern, except with the public interest and the public rights, they will respond to the demand of the Government of the United States that these public rights be again reposed in the Government from which they were derived by private and questionable methods—methods that no one will justify, except from the standpoint of personal interest. If the men who control the Chemical Foundation have no personal interest to serve, and yet refuse to recognize the public rights in this matter, their professions are mere pre-tense and they are dominated by personal interests and are invoking the protection of the courts not for the protection of any trust but for the retention of mere personal property and property interests. The board of trustees must act in this matter. They are the only persons who are free to act. The advisory committee is appointed by the president of the Chemical Foun-dation and is absolutely under his personal domination. AMERICAN DYES INSTITUTE.

It was the American Dyes Institute which raised the initial capital for the Chemical Foundation and which advanced money to search the records of the Patent Office in order to compile the list of German patents which were to be selzed and transferred to the Chemical Foundation. To be more precise, it was the Du Pont Co., a member of the Dyes Institute, which advanced this money and which offered to underwrite the capital of the Chemical Foundation which was not subscribed by other chemical and dye-making concerns. And it is reported that the Du Pont Co. actually did underwrite one-fourth of the capital of the Chemical Foundation.

The American Dyes Institute is a combination of the greater part of the dye-manufacturing concerns in this country. It is one of these illegal open-price associations such as was declared to be a conspiracy in violation of the antitrust act in the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the American Column & Lumber Co. et al. against the United

Prior to the organization of the American Dyes Institute in the spring of 1918 the dye trade was organized under a trade association called the American Dyestuff Manufacturers' Assoclation. This was the ordinary trade association. It had no so-called "open-price policy." It did not concern itself with prices or with the allocation of trade territory or the restriction of production or the control of markets or with other practices in contravention of law and public policy. But this was before the arrival of these parvenues in the dye business, who can think only in terms of embargoes, monopoly, and arbitrary control of prices. This old association did not serve their pur-They therefore organized the American Dyes Institute and brought within the new organization practically all the dyemaking concerns in the country. The contributions of money to the institute are based upon the current production of the members, and as the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. control 60 per cent at least of the current production their contributions to the American Dyes Institute furnish the larger part of its funds and give these great corporations a dominance in its affairs.

Let me say, Mr. President, that I have examined the report which has been submitted, and it shows that the Du Pont Co. and the Allied Chemical Co. paid in assessments to the Dyes Institute, and the assessments have been used for propaganda purposes, as I recall, in the neighborhood of $25,000 in one year in the case of the first company, and in the case of the latter some twelve or fifteen thousand dollars.

The executive committee of the American Dyes Institute consists of the following persons:

Morris R. Poucher, chairman, representative of the Du Pont interests.
R. T. Baldwin, of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation.
A. C. Burrage, ir., of the Atlantic Dyestuff Corporation.
E. H. Killheffer, of the Newport Chemical Works.
J. M. Matthewa, of the Grasselli Chemical Co.
August Merz, of Heller & Merz.
Charles H. Hert, president of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manacturers' Association of America.

In the investigations of these various companies, and the activities of the dye monopolies, Mr. Charles H. Herty always appears. He is one of the go-betweens, one of the connecting links, binding these organizations and conspirators together.

Since the activities of the American Dye Institute have been made known to the public and the nature of the organization has become the subject of investigation, an effort has been made to abandon it, or at any rate it has become more or less morbund. It was an illegal organization and was organized in the interest of the conspiracy to create a dye monopoly. However, as I shall show, another organization has taken its place, seeking to bring about the same objects.

Mr. Morris R. Poucher, representing the Du Pont interests, and Mr. R. T. Baldwin, representing the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, dominating members of the executive committee of the American Dyes Institute, together with August Merz and Charles H. Herty, whom they control and who are also members of the executive committee of the American Dyes Institute, are members of the dyes advisory committee of the Textile Alliance, and are members of the advisory committee of the Dye and Chemical Control Section of the Treasury Department, which administers the dye and chemical embargo under the emergency tariff act. These same gentlemen were members of the advisory committee of the War Trade Board Section of the State Department, and before that they were members of the advisory committee of the War Trade Board, which had control of imports and exports under the trading with the enemy act. We have here a perfect exemplification of community and combination of interests, of private interests to control the policy of the Government.

So, Mr. President, an examination shows that these individuals and associations and organizations are all tied to-gether. The Chemical Foundation, the Dyes Institute and the agencies in the War Trade Board when it was functioning and the Treasury Department which deal with licenses and the importation of dyes-all these forces are arrayed together to promote the interests of the dye monopoly to control the importation of dyes, if any shall be permitted, and to place in the hands of the local dye producers the absolute control of the domestic market.

The work of inaugurating the American Dyes Institute was delegated to Mr. Arthur J. Eddy, the inventor of the now notorious Open Price Policy Associations which have been declared illegal by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Everybody is familiar with the so-called Eddy plan; it has been investigated by the Federal Trade Commission, which recently submitted, as I am advised, 62 reports to the Attorney General showing flagrant violations of the Sherman antitrust law by corporations which have been organized under this Eddy plan. Mr. Eddy organized numerous associations of this character but he was particularly interested in the American Dyes Institute, because he became the active secretary and counsel of the open price section of the institute at a salary of $10,000 per annum.

The illegal character of the American Dyes Institute, of which over 90 per cent of the dye-making concerns of the country were members, is revealed in the constitution and by-laws of the institute. The institute was verily born in sin and conceived in iniquity. It was inherently an illegal asso-clation under the very articles which constituted its organiza-tion. I desire to direct the attention of the Senate to some of the articles of the constitution of the American Dyes Insti-tute which bring into bold relief the illegality and iniquity in which this organization was conceived.

Mr. President, I have the articles of incorporation of the Dyes Institute, and ask, without reading, that they may be inserted

The matter referred to is as follows:

Sections C. D. E. F. and G of article 2 of the constitution of the American Dyes Institute define the objects of the institute as follows:

"C. To collect and disseminate accurate information relating to the manufacture and sale of dyes and chemicals and kindred products, to the end that each manufacturer, whatever his output, may be on equal footing with other manufacturers with respect to the date necessary for the intelligent conduct of his business, on the belief that a policy of publicity in trade is better than one of secrecy, and in the hope that through the distribution of authentic and statistical information manufacturers may be enabled more accurately to gauge the flow of supply and demand, and thereby keep their works in more constant operation and give labor more steady employment.

"E. To devise a scientific system of cost accounting to the end that everyone engaged in the industry may accurately know the cost of his output. In this connection it is not the purpose of the institute to impose upon any member any cost items or to use in any manner the cost system as a means for controlling prices.

"F. The bringing out into the open of all competition conditions and the introduction of the open-price policy, to the end that whatever price information is distributed will be absolutely accurate and confined to sales and prices that have been actually made. Nothing herein stated permits any member of the institute to file any information regarding any price he expects to make or would like to obtain.

"G. The standardisation so far as practical of dyes, to the end that wasteful duplications and wasteful production of many shades differing very slightly one from the other may be eliminated or minimized and also to the end that the manufacturer best situated and best equipped to produce certain dyes may confine his attention as far as possible to the dyes he can most economically produce.

"It is a fact at the present time that

Mr. KING. The mechanics of the open-price scheme, designed to eliminate competitive prices in the trade and to bring about an effectual agreement as to prices, and thus pursue a price-fixing policy, are set out in the by-laws of the American Dyes Institute under the titles "Reporting plan," "Production statistics," and "Daily bulletin." I have the by-laws and certain bulletins which I ask, without reading, to have inserted in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so

The matter referred to is as follows:

Reporting plan: The following plan is suggested for the gathering distribution of accurate production and price information: "For the time being the reporting plan covers only dyes and indiates.

"This information will be interchanged among members—"(a) Who file orders from the same customer for substantially the same materials are same structured, as a marker of sound business practice, to construct the same of the same of PRODUCTION STATISTICS.

The following are suggestions for future consideration. At the start these reports will not be called for:

1. Each member will file on blanks to be specially prepared a weekly report of his production of each dye and intermediate.

This information the secretary will combine in a statistical summary which will show the total production of each dye and each intermediate without disclosing the date filed by each member. This weekly summary will be sent to each member.

2. A weekly report of work ahead expressed in days, weeks, or months on each class of products.

The object of this report is to show in a general way, but also as accurately as possible, about how many days', weeks', or months' work shead each member has for a particular dye or intermediates as may be most convenient. Suitable blanks will be worked out and distributed to the members.

This information the secretary will compile on a sheet which will give the name of each member, with the work ahead such member has for each particular class of dyes and intermediates, and copies of said sheets will be mailed to all members.

At the outset it can not be too often repeated that members may or may not file the information covered by the reporting plan, and all arguments agalast filing information are best answered by the simple statement, "If you do not wish to file, there is no obligation to do so." But each member will state of record on the minutes to what extent he does or does not file, so there may be no misapprehension regarding the attitude of his company.

DAILT BULLBTIN.

When the daily bulletin will commence will be decided at a future

When the daily bulletin will commence will be decided at a future meeting.

The secretary will compile at the close of each day a brief bulletin, which will show all quotations, orders, and contracts filed in his office during the 24 hours previous, and a copy of this bulletin will be sent to each member, whether such member is filing any information or not. The bulletin will not give the name of either the members who file the price information or customers to whom prices are made. It will simply show under the head of "Quotations" all the different quotations made during the 24 hours previous on all the dyes and intermediates covered, and under the head of "Closed business" all prices obtained in orders and contracts filed.

If all manufacturers contribute to the reporting plan, it is obvious that this bulletin will be very much like the reports of the New York Stock Exchange, showing simply so many closed transactions, with the amounts and the prices but without the names of either sellers or buyers. It would go one step further than the stock exchange report in that it would also show all quotations—offers to sell—without the name of the manufacturer quoting or the customer to whom the quotation is made.

In short, the builetin is a daily price current made up from actual prices.

Mr. KING. It is perfectly obvious that the foregoing attractions.

Mr. KING. It is perfectly obvious that the foregoing stipulations in the articles and by-laws of the American Dyes Institute embody a scheme to circumvent the antitrust laws. The open-price policy, so called, is indeed the latest invention for this purpose, a situation which has not escaped the attention of the courts to which such contracts have been brought for the purpose of determining whether or not they constitute a violation of law. The fine phrases in which objects of the institute are set forth in article 2 are but a patent camouflage to cover plans for the fixing and maintenance of the price of dyes, of restricting and controlling production, of assigning different branches of manufacture to different companies and plants, and for allocating territory to the different members of the institute engaged in the trade. In other words, we are to have a private agency here regulating and controlling the dye trade; not in the public interest, but against the public interest. The whole scheme, in my opinion, is a conspiracy against the public.

For the purpose of exemplifying the methods of operation of the open-price section of the institute I will insert in the RECORD the Daily Bulletin of Prices, No. 92, for the date of February 4, 1919, showing the sales, quantity sold, and prices obtained for that day. It was sent to members of the American Dyes Institute from the offices of the institute, 320 Broadway, New AMERICAN DYES INSTITUTE, New York.

MINUTES OF MEETING, BETA NAPHTHOL GROUP, AMERICAN DYES INSTI-TUTE, OPEN PRICE SECTION, MARCH 12, 1920.

A meeting of the members producing beta naphthol, known as the beta naphthol group, was called at the Hotel Biltmore, New York City, on Friday, March 12, 1920, at 11 a.m. Inasmuch as no members of this group were present, it was impossible to hold a meeting.

However, for the purpose of record, the secretary herewith transmits his monthly report, which he had ready to submit to the meeting.

Products included: Beta naphthol, parantiraniline.
(As there was no meeting in February, below find secretary's report for the months of February and January combined.)
For the months of January and February the following member has reported:

Mr. KING. The condition of affairs in the dye market, particularly the high, artificial level of prices, is due largely to the fact that the dye market is a closed and a controlled market, which prevents dye prices finding their proper economic exchange level, as in the case of other commodities of wide general use in the country, which I have referred to in the list which I have put in the RECORD.

To be more specific, this is all the result of the existing embargo, of the dye licensing law, of the machinations of the Tex-tile Alliance and the Chemical Foundation, and particularly of the open-price scheme of the American Dyes Institute, which is the agency of the dye combination. Of course, the public pays the bill. As monopoly grows by what it feeds on, it is expending its surplus of illegal gains in lobbying and propaganda to further expand and perpetuate its illegal gains and its control of the domestic dye trade.

In the early part of 1919 the American Dyes Institute commenced an active campaign for the enactment by Congress of an embargo or licensing system on dyestuffs. In this campaign counsel and persons to lobby in Washington were employed, Bills for a dyestuffs embargo or licensing system were drafted, and persistent efforts were put forth in Washington and elsewhere to effect the passage by Congress of this new and untried, un-American policy. Resolutions declaring for an embargo or licensing system were prepared and their adoption secured. Addresses on the subject of embargo or licensing system were made before clubs, societies, trade associations, and so forth, by public speakers secured by the American Dyes Institute, and a general propaganda, consisting of pamphlets, books, and circulars, articles and statements in newspapers and periodicals, was carried on throughout the United States, the object of which was to create a public interest in and demand for an embargo or licensing system.

In my opinion the chief and practically the only purpose of the institute, aside from the price-fixing policy, as was indicated by the articles which I have referred to, was to expend large sums of money in such endeavor. As I have shown, a daily bulletin was published which indicated to every member of the organization the sales made, the amount received, to whom sold, and the amount that each dye man had on hand—just exactly the scheme that was pursued in the Hardwood Lumber Co. case that came under the denouncement of the Supreme Court of the United States. So that the dye manufacturers of the United States did have a monopoly, and the Dyes Institute bound them together in monopolistic control of the dye interests of the United States, the same as the Hardwood Lumber Co. of the South controlled, as held by the Supreme Court of the United States, the lumber interests of the South.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. President, may I interrupt the Senator just for this observation and a question? I have not Senator just for this observation and a question? I have not read the hearings before the so-called Shortridge Committee; but is it not a fact—at least, I have been told that it is so—that Mr. Herman Metz, who certainly is not in favor of the bear out the existence of a multiding up of a great dye industry in the United States, and if you can not control prices?

who certainly, as I understand, is against the embargo, testified that the competition between American manufacturers of dyes in this country was very fierce?

Mr. KING. I am told that Mr. Metz so testified. I did not hear it. I am told, too, that the Dyes Institute, because of the expose, and the fact that the Supreme Court of the United States hald that a kindred cognition to the way Illegal, had processed. States held that a kindred organization was illegal, had practically dissolved, and, as I have stated, organized another association, of which Mr. Herty is the president. Notwithstanding the so-called competition of which the Senator speaks, as I have shown, the prices now are from 300 to 400 per cent above pre-war prices, and in some cases 1,000 per cent above them.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Has the Senator submitted any figures

Mr. WADSWORTH. Has the Senator submitted any lightes to show the profits?
Mr. KING. Of what?
Mr. WADSWORTH. In the dye-making business.
Mr. KING. Mr. President, there was only one man who was willing, before the Finance Committee, to state his profits. He offered to submit a full statement, but the other dye producers either declined or made no offer to do so. The single exception profits and was willing the profits and was willing the sold that he made energous profits and was willing referred to said that he made enormous profits and was willing to submit his figures.

Mr. POMERENE. It may be of interest to say that some Mr. POMERENE. It may be of interest to say that some years ago, in the early days of the war, a question arose as to the cost of salvarsan. Mr. Metz, whose name was mentioned by the Senator from New York, appeared before the Committee on Patents. The evidence showed that at that time they were charging $4 a dose for it, and it was costing them to manufacture, according to his own statement, 33 cents, to which he added, perhaps, one-third, or 50 per cent, because there was a good deal of breakers. good deal of breakage

Mr. WADSWORTH. Does the Senator know what is charged for it to-day?

Mr. POMERENE. I do not.

Mr. WADSWORTH. I can not give the figures, but I know it is reduced, and I have been told it is cheaper now in the United States than it was before the war.

Mr. POMERENE. At that particular time it developed that a claim was made that they had brought the secret process over here out of regard for the people of America, but I was never quite able myself to see that they were able to show very much altruism when they charged such enormous prices as they

Mr. KING. Let me say that some of the patents have expired, so that many products are cheaper now than in the past.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Has the patent on salvarsan expired? Mr. KING. I am not sure about that. Mr. WADSWORTH. That is what I was talking about. I wish the junior Senator from California [Mr. Shortridge] were here, because the information I have upon the matter was from him, and I got the very clear impression from him that one re-sult of the releasing to the American Chemical Industry, under license, of the patents on salvarsan and the resulting competition of a fierce character between the concerns in the manufacture of it was that the price of it to-day is lower than it was before the war, when it was sold by the Germans alone.

Mr. KING. I have no doubt that commodity prices generally throughout the world are falling. The Senator would infer, I would imagine from his statement, that he would expect no reduction in prices

Mr. WADSWORTH. Not at all. That is an unfair infer-

Mr. KING. Through the development of new industries, new processes, and so on.

Mr. WADSWORTH. The observation has been made here that this immense increase took place in the price of salvarsan, but I notice that the figure given was of a long-past date.

Mr. KING. I made no statement as to salvarsan.
Mr. WADSWORTH. The Senator from Ohio did.
Mr. KING. I will put into the Record the price of salvarsan. before the war, during the war, and now. I thought I had the data here; I have it in my office. My recollection is that the Senator is substantially correct in saying that there has been a reduction in the price of salvarsan.

Mr. WADSWORTH. Which would indicate that there is not monopoly holding up prices.

Mr. KING. I do not agree with the Senator at all.

Mr. WADSWORTH. If there were a monopoly able to do

Mr. WADSWORTH. It there were a monopoly and to do it, why do they not hold them up?

Mr. KING. There might be a monopoly and the prices charged, though lower than during the war, might be those fixed by a monopoly or producers having monopolistic power.

Mr. WADSWORTH. The facts in connection with it do not bear out the existence of a monopoly. Why have a monopoly

Mr. KING. The Senator knows that public opinion sometimes may scourge a thief into restitution of property and will control even the conscience of a monopolist, so that he may be forced to reduce prices. The Steel Trust was a monopoly for years and is a monopoly now, and yet, responding to the demand of outraged American people, it has been compelled to reduce some of its prices. I could mention others, but that would be a digression. Let me add, however, the price of salvarsan is now much too high and yields enormous profits to the producers.

Mr. NICHOLSON. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. KING. Yes; but I would like to hurry along. Mr. NICHOLSON. I desire to interrupt the Senator to secure some information. The patents which have been issued, I suppose, belong to the Chemical Foundation. Who are the real people back of the Chemical Foundation? Are they the Who are the dye people, who are asking for this embargo? Mr. KING. Yes. Mr. NICHOLSON. They are one and the se

They are one and the same party?

Mr. KING. That is my contention. Mr. NICHOLSON. That is, they are asking that these patents be turned over to them, and at the same time asking that an embargo be placed upon all importations of dyes?

Mr. KING. I want to be entirely fair—

Mr. NICHOLSON. I want to get the facts.

Mr. KING. I have covered this matter heretofore, but in response to the Senator's inquiries will traverse some of the Treaties negotiated many years ago between the United States and Germany permitted American citizens to acquire and hold property in Germany and German citizens to acquire and hold property in the United States. Treaties also permitted the nationals of these two countries to take out patents in both countries. American citizens obtained many patents in Germany, which they still own and which were not at the countries. in Germany, which they still own and which were not confiscated by Germany during or since the war. These patents have been exceedingly profitable to American citizens and constitute property in the highest sense. German nationals obtained thousands of patents in the United States, American citizens some of which were exceedingly valuable. have the right to use their German patents and are exercising all authority and control over the same, deriving rents and profits and issues therefrom. We, upon the other hand, seized all of the patents taken out in this country by Germans. Among them were 4,800 patents which were selzed by the Alien Property Custodian and sold to the Chemical Foundation, or rather transferred to the Chemical Foundation, for $250,000.

Mr. Garvan, who was Allen Property Custodian, and who had charge of the property of German nationals which was seized, conceived the idea of preventing the return of dye patents, many of which were of great value to their owners, He planned and conspired with others to put these patents into the control of Americans, or under the control of American corporations. It seemed to be the purpose of the Alien Property Custodian's office—and statements made by some of its officials support this view—that it was considered moral and proper to transfer as much of the seized property as possible to Americans and to prevent its restoration to the German owners. These 4,800 patents, many of them dealing with dyes, chemicals, and pharmaceuticals, and which were worth many millions of dollars-some persons stating that they were and are worth $25,000,000-were pretended to be sold to a corporation organized by Mr. Garvan, and with which he was and is connected, for $250,000.

Mr. Du Pont and certain persons interested in the manufacture of dyes and other chemicals advanced the money to ascertain from the Patent Office the number and character of these patents, and also the $250,000 with which to pay the purchase price. These dye producers then became interested in the Chemical Foundation. Ostensibly this foundation holds these patents for Americans who may desire to engage in the dye business. Theoretically the Senator from Colorado, if he desired to engage in the dye business, could obtain a license from the Chemical Foundation to use one or more of these patents.

Mr. NICHOLSON. But the dye monopoly may have access to these patents the same as any citizen of the United States.

Mr. KING. Certainly. The members of the Dyes Institute, who are the dye producers of the United States, manufacture at least 92 per cent of all of the dyes consumed in the United States, and also export millions of pounds annually. These huge corporations engaged in the manufacture of dyes, as well as drugs, medicines, paints, and thousands of other articles, are so powerful industrially and financially and are so strongly intrenched in the production of dyes and the other products manufactured by them that no one would have the courage to enter into the dye business in competition with them.

As I have heretofore shown, two of these, the Du Pont and the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, control the intermediates out of which the dyes are manufactured; and I assert that the producers of dyes, through the Dyes Institute and their agencles and instrumentalities, constitute a monopoly and have maintained prices at from 300 to more than _,000 per cent above the level of prices obtained in the United States prior to the war. These domestic manufacturers of dyes are, as I have stated, so intrenched and have such large plants that they can produce far more than is required in the United States. are a few dyes which require a vast amount of patience and close labor to produce. The quantity production is small but the labor cost great. American dye manufacturers who prefer quantity production do not care to manufacture this class of dyes, and never will willingly produce them.

Mr. NICHOLSON. Is it the Senator's opinion that the patents in question will be largely owned and controlled by the dye monopoly of the United States as it now exists?

Yes, potentially. I repeat that no one under present conditions would care to enter into competition with them. As a matter of fact, the dye concerns actually own the stock of the Chemical Foundation, which gives the dye combine virtual control of the patents. Of course the Senator will understand that these patents cover most of the dyes, if not all produced and consumed in the United States, and if the Senator or any other person should attempt to manufacture dyes under the formula provided by any of these patents the dye manufacturers of the United States who have stock in the Chemical Foundation would bring suit or have the Chemical Foundation bring suit to enjoin the infringement of the patents. In other words, these patents give more or less of a monopoly as to the dyes covered by the patents. If any dyes are now imported into the United States they come in under the selective embargo and are subject to the will of the dye monopoly and under licenses, the terms of which it may dictate.

Mr. STERLING. Mr. President, the Senator from Utah does not question the legal right of the Alien Property Custodian to sell and dispose of these patents?

Mr. KING. I have not questioned the power of the Government and perhaps, strictly speaking, the right of the Government if by this word is meant the naked technical right of confiscation. Undoubtedly, under the Roman law, which was accepted by nations for centuries, the right of a nation to seize and to confiscate the property of an alien enemy was recognized.

Indeed, under ancient law the right to seize an alien enemy and sell him into slavery was recognized as a right, but there came a day when this right was regarded as a wrong and the person of the individual became inviolable.

The struggle by publicists and writers on the law of nations has been to give sacredness, if I may be permitted the expression, to property and to establish an international law or custom that would make private property sacred as against claims and assertions of belligerent nations. I think Chief Justice Marshall, in the Brown case, declared that there was a technical right to confiscate the property of an enemy alien, but he denied its morality and indeed denounced it as impolitic. But even if our Government had the right to selze and dispose of the property of German nationals I deny its right to make a transfer which is fraudulent in equity and an abuse of the trust which was recognized by the Government itself when it passed the trading with the enemy act authorizing sequestra-

Mr. STERLING. The law was pretty broad to begin with.

Mr. KING, I know that—I have not denied that point. Mr. STERLING. And then it was subsequently amended-

Mr. KING. I am familiar with that.

Mr. STERLING. So as to give the Alien Property Custodian the right to dispose of this property as though it were his own. Mr. KING. Mr. President, in my opinion Congress was not fully advised as to the unjust and anachronistic character of the law last referred to by the Senator. The Senator will recall that the provision authorizing sale by the Alien Property Custodian was a rider to an appropriation bill. The Senator from Vermont Mr. DILLINGHAM] called the attention of the Senator from Virginia [Mr. Martin, now deceased] to the matter, but no debate ensued and no explanation was made. Unfortunately in war times there is much legislation enacted that later is found to have been unwise, indeed unjust. In my opinion it was improper for the Government to commit to the Alien Property Custodian the powers that were contained in the legislation mentioned. It was the exercise of a governmental power and authority which was unwarranted and which I regard as violative of accepted principles of international morality which I hope are prevalent in the world to-day.

Mr. STERLING. While it came in, as the Senator says, in an appropriation bill, it came in under an item providing for the expenses of the Alien Property Custodian, authorized by the act entitled "An act to define, regulate, and punish trading with the enemy, and for other purposes." Then, in Then, in view of the appropriation to cover those expenses is the rather long section amending a certain paragraph of the former law, in which there was given to the Alten Property Custodian full power to dispose of the property as he might choose, so far as that is concerned, dispose of it, at least, as though he were the absolute owner of any of it.

Mr. KING. I shall now return to the matter which I was considering when interrupted by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. Nicholson]. I called attention to the fact that Mr. Poucher was the representative of the Du Ponts, and he was also a member of the Dyes Institute; he was the representative of the War Trade Board, and it was the same Mr. Poucher who represented the Treasury Department; and Mr. Poucher also represented the State Department. He appeared before the Dyes Institute, of which he was a member, and reported his efforts to secure an embargo. We find the Du Pont companies, the Dyes Institute, the Chemical Foundation, all of these forces battering at the doors of Congress to get an embargo. Mr. du Pont appeared before the committee charged with the duty of framing a tariff bill. In answer to a question by Senator Penrose, as to "what they wanted" he said, in substance, "We want tariffs just as high as we can get them.

* * In addition to the tariffs we want an embargo. In addition to that, we want immunity from prosecution by the Attorney General in the event that we are held to be a combination in restraint of trade or a monopoly."

Mr. Poucher, representing these whole organizations and as the spokesman for the Du Ponts, made a report to the Dyes Institute, which is an organization of the domestic dye makers.

The American Dyes Institute has a special legislative committee.

Let me say to Senators that the Dyes Institute spent a hundred thousand dollars here in lobbying. A Democratic lawyer got $25,000 for helping to draw the embargo bill, and Mr. Choate, a dollar a year man, received more than $75,000 from these organizations for his lobbying activities and his work in connection with securing the embargo. Mr. Ramsey Huguet, who was another dollar a year man, working with Mr. Garvan, got $50,000 for his activities in working out this scheme.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Mr. President, will the Senator

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Suppose all these things the Senator says about the Chemical Foundation be true

Mr. KING. And the Dyes Institute. Mr. WATSON of Indiana. And the Dyes Institute.

Mr. KING. And the Textile Alliance.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. And the Textile Alliance. Suppose they all be true. I deny none of them. In fact, months ago I investigated the situation and practically reported the same things. What has that to do with the tariff on dyes?

Mr. KING. Let me ask this of the Senator. Suppose the Senator were sitting as a judge to determine whether a given transaction was fair or whether a conspiracy had been entered into to perpetrate a fraud. Is it not clear that it would be the duty of the court to receive evidence tending to show such combination or conspiracy? If the court found a conspiracy to perpetrate a fraud, it would aid materially in passing upon the ultimate facts and the real issue calling for judicial action. Perhaps the supposititious case just suggested is not parallel to the question before us, but it possesses the value that analogies Here we have a number of corporations, associations, and individuals working together for years, spending large sums of money, employing agents, attorneys, and lobbyists for the purpose of securing legislation which will enable a few corporations to enjoy a complete monopoly in the manufacture and sale of dyes and thousands of medicines, drugs, and chemical compounds. I submit it is important to show the nature of this combination, who the persons are, the ties which bind them, the nature of their activities, and the benefits which are to be derived and by whom, when legislation is sought or is projected. Not only Congress but the country are entitled to know who seeks legislation, what interests are behind it, what the motives are, whether there are lobbyists favoring it, and if so who the lobbyists are, and who pays then. We find great corporations such as the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, one of whose subsidiary corporations was declared to be a trust, and the great Du Pont interests, one of whose subsidiary corporations was also declared to be a trust, participating in the organization of the Dyes Institute, largely controlling its activities, putting up money to aid it in its propaganda, nation-wide, in behalf of an embargo, and also connected with the Chemical Foundation and becoming beneficiaries of the activities of this corporation. I say, we find these corporations and other organizations closely combined and confederated with scores of agents, attorneys, and representatives invading Washington and Congress and committees for practically two years in behalf of certain legislation. I repeat, it is important when the legislation which these forces demand is under consideration, and before it is passed, that we know all that we can about the organizations and corporations and forces behind the projected legislation.

I am glad that the Senator practically admits the charges which I have made as to the conspiracy of these associations, corporations, and individuals, and as to their seeking a monopoly. As I understood the Senator, he stated that he had investigated the situation and had practically reported the things which I have charged to be true. But, assuming that all these matters have no influence upon Congress in determining the character of legislation to be enacted, I insist that this information is germane, and not only Congress but the country is entitled to it. However, let me say to the Senator that these conspirators, as I have denominated them, and lobbyists and organizations have been powerful enough to have written into the bill before us provisions dealing with dyes and thousands of drugs and medicines which give to the dye monopoly and the corporations interested a practical monopoly in the domestic market.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Let me interrupt right here. Mr. KING. Speaking for myself, I do not think the embargo provisions have strengthened the bill in the interest of those seeking an embargo. In other words, the rates found in paragraphs 25 and 26, as to most articles and commodities, will be prohibitive

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Is the Senator for those rates?

Mr. KING. No.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Certainly not.

Mr. KING. Because they will create a monopoly. Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Is the Senator for any degree of protection to the American dye industry?

Mr. KING. I have heretofore stated that I would adhere to the policy announced by my party on this question, and I stated before the Shortridge committee that the question of a reasonable rate was not involved. I would not oppose a reasonable tariff duty upon dyes.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. The very brilliant Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Moses], who delighted us this morning with his very caustic references to these various organizations, announced that he is for these rates

Mr. KING, I am not, because they are too high,

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. But that at the same time he is against the embargo for one year. Now, the Senator, reasoning from the same facts and from the same conditions, is not for the rates.

Mr. KING. I said those rates were too high when we were discussing them some time ago.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. But the Senator is not for the rates?

Mr. KING. Not for those rates.
Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Those are the rates about which we are talking. Mr. KING. But that is res adjudicata, so to speak, now; is un fait accompli. We have fixed those rates.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. That is still to be voted on.
Mr. KING. Oh, no; we passed that part of the bill some time ago. I regard that as ended. The Senator has won that great victory, and the dye interests of the United States ought to be entirely satisfied when they have what I think will prove an effectual embargo under the rates he has given them. Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Let me state what I am trying to get at. Here is a certain industry working in the United States, with a very large investment, built up because of the prohibition afforded by the war. I think the Senator agrees to that?

Mr. KING. In part, I agree with what the Senator says Mr. WATSON of Indiana. The question is, How is that to be maintained? I am not going into the proposition of the Chemical Foundation, or any of its activities in the past, or the Textile Alliance or any of its activities. Here is an existing industry. The question is whether or not it can be maintained by a tariff or by an embargo. That seems to me to be the question. We are not going into the past. Of course, these people have been laboring for an embargo, and of course they have been working for these rates. If they do not work for these rates, who on earth will?

The Senator and a great many of his people have been fighting them all the time. As a matter of course they are bound to make a defense unless they simply quit. They have a vast sum of money invested, many men employed, and this great sum of money invested, many men employed, and this great industry now going. They must defend it or abandon the whole thing. Their contention is, as I understand, that they can not successfully operate without an embargo for another year. In fact, they want an embargo for a longer period.

That, Mr. President, is my viewpoint. Mr. KING. I understand the Senator and respect his sincerity and frankness and the manner in which he meets problems presented for consideration. We always know where to find him, and I, of course, can not have any controversy with him because of his views upon any question or his attitude toward public matters, although I may differ from him as I do in regard to the matter now before us.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. I thank the Senator.

Mr. KING. There is a wide difference of opinion between the Senator and myself as to the method of dealing with this question. The Senator believes an embargo is necessary. I do not, and I think the Senator's position is wrong. I think an embargo is un-American and is violative of those sound printered. ciples which should guide in enacting either revenue or tariff or fiscal legislation. Embargoes smack too much of despotic governments and of the abuse of executive or legislative au-They spell monopoly. They are intended to create monopolies and to give to those who enjoy the monopoly advantages over the consumers. I insist that embargoes are fundamentally at variance with the accepted Republican view of protection. The ablest exponents of protection deny that they want to prohibit importations and to erect barriers which constitute embargoes. They justify protective tariffs upon the theory of establishing infant industries, or of enabling the domestic producer to compete with foreign producers. They insist that the wages paid in the United States are higher than those paid abroad and that a tariff must be levied to compensate for such differences in wages.

But I am also opposed to the embargo provisions of this bill, because they will prove to be practically superfluous for the reason that the rates fixed in paragraphs 25 and 26 are so high as to enable the domestic manufacturers of dyes, drugs, and medicines to not only compete with foreign manufacturers but to rob and exploit the American consumers.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Mr. President, will the Senator permit a further interruption?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Edge in the chair). Does the Senator from Utah yield further to the Senator from Indiana'

States—I think, perhaps, 92 per cent—
Mr. KING. Yes; 92 per cent.
Mr. WATSON of Indiana. The other 8 per cent, the vat dyes or anthracene colors, we do not make. The question is,
Can we, without an embargo, make those dyes? Can we impose a tariff rate high enough to protect our people in the manufacture of those dyes under the theory of protection?
Mr. KING. So strongly fortified is the dye industry of the

Mr. KING. So strongly fortified is the dye industry of the United States that it produces 92 per cent or more of all the dyes consumed in the United States and manufactures millions of pounds annually for export. Moreover, it is potentially able to supply practically the entire demands of the world. As I have indicated, there are a few dyes, requiring a vast amount of patient labor, that are not produced in the United States, and perhaps never will be produced in the United States. In nearly every commodity line, no matter how great the production may be in the United States, there are a few articles that we import, because the quantity consumed is small and the cost of production is great—the cost largely resulting from arduous,

The American manufacturers in nearly all industries like large production; and many articles, upon which the labor cost is very great, they decline to manufacture and infinitely prefer to import. That is the situation in dyes.

As Senators know, there are hundreds of dyes and there are some colors, where the consumption in the United States is relatively small, that the American dye producers will never produce.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from Utah a question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator from North Carolina?

Mr. KING. I yield.

Mr. SIMMONS. The Senator has studied the question much more closely than I have. Does the dye embargo proposition contained in the bill confine itself to vat dyes or does it include all dyes?

Mr. KING. It is omnium gatherum.
Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Mr. President, I did not hear the question of the Senator from North Carolina.
Mr. SIMMONS. I asked the Senator from Utah if the embargo proposition contained in the bill applies only to vat dyes or if it applies to all dyes?

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. It applies to all dyes. Mr. SIMMONS. That is what I assumed. Now, why is it necessary to apply the embargo to all dyes when it is admitted that we make over 90 per cent of the other dyes that we consume in the country? It is said that it is necessary to have an embargo to protect the 8 per cent of the vat dyes. Why should we impose an embargo proposition that includes the whole dye production industry instead of confining it to the 8 per cent which it is said we can not produce in this country and in regard to which it is necessary to have an embargo be-cause we can not reach that situation with a tariff. I am asking for information, Mr. President. I do not wish to engage in any controversy about the matter.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. The theory, is that the synthetic chemical industry is so complex and so involved and so entirely technical in the manufacture of dyes that unless the whole of the dye industry is protected by an embargo the Germans on the other side, having the finest skilled chemists in the world, with the greatest knowledge of chemistry and the composition of those dyes, can, simply by altering certain dyes or the processes by which certain dyes are made, introduce them into the United States in substitution even for the 90 per cent we are making. That will continue to be the case until the dye industry of the country is finally and firmly established beyond all doubt. That is their theory. The Senator recalls all the testimony. He sat as a member of the sub-committee, with the Senator from Kansas (Mr. Curtis) and myself, and heard the testimony, and I think at that time the Senator rather favored the embargo himself during the war. not that true?

Mr. SIMMONS. Certainly.
Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Did not the Senator on the floor make a speech in favor of the embargo?

Mr. SIMMONS. I have gone over all that to-day. I always supported the embargo during the war, and I said I would support it until you could frame a permanent tariff bill. That has been my position about it all the time.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. I understand. The Senator was perfectly frank and candid about it all the while; but, nevertheless, he favored the principle of the embargo, because, evidently, he then believed, as we believed, that the embargo was essential to the full protection of the industry in the United States until such time as we could compete with the world in the manufacture of those dyes, which could be done only by building up the synthetic chemical industry in the United States and developing skilled chemists equal at least to those in Germany. It is not the work of a day, I will say to my very good and able friend from Utah; it is the work of many, many years of the hardest and most laborious study to which the minds of men can be put.

Mr. STERLING. Mr. President, if I may be permitted an interruption-

I yield. Mr. KING.

Mr. STERLING. The impression, I think, goes out, from what is stated here time and time again, that this is an abso-

Mr. KING. Oh, well, it amounts to that.
Mr. STERLING. The provision in section 321 of the pending bill simply reenacts the present law, and that makes certain exceptions. It is what might be termed, I suppose, a selective embargo, or selective imports.

Mr. KING. Let me say to the Senator that that was discussed very fully by the able Senator from New Hampshire [Mr.

Mr. STERLING. May I just read the section of the emergency tariff not referring to dyes and chemicals?

Certainly.

Mr. STERLING. It is as follows:

SEC. 501. (a) That on and after the day following the enactment of this act, for the period of three months, no sodium nitrite, no dyes or dyestuffs, including crudes and intermediates, no product or products derived directly or indirectly from coal tar (including crudes intermediates, inished or partly fluished products, and mixtures and compounds of such coal-far products), and no synthetic organic drugs or synthetic organic chemicals, shall be admitted to entry or delivered from customs custody in the United States or in any of its possessions unless the Secretary determines that such article or a satisfactory substitute therefor is not obtainable in the United States or in any of its possessions in sufficient quantities and on reasonable terms as to quality, price and delivery, and that such article in the quantity to be admitted is required for consumption by an actual consumer in the United States or in any of its possessions within six months after receipt of the merchandise.

So that permits to come into the country anything that we can not produce in the country.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, that proposition was critically examined and ably discussed by the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Moses]. His position was that the selective embargo provision just read has been so construed as to be a practical embargo whenever desired. The obstacles and im-pediments imposed by the departments and by the representatives of the dye industry who have practically controlled the executive officials, have made the importation of the few dyes not produced in the United States practically impossible, or at any rate impossible, except where assented to by the domestic dye producers.

The construction placed upon this act by the Treasury officials and other persons having to do with the granting of licenses has put it into the power of the domestic manufac-turer to determine when and under what circumstances im-ports might be had. The act has been so construed that great discretion is given to these officials and their advisers who have usually been representatives of the dye manufacturers to determine whether similar or suitable dyes could be found in the United States. Their decision has been final and their delays in deciding have not only frequently caused damage to the textile interests of the United States but have resulted in bringing about a recision of the application for an importers'

Mr. President, I do not agree with the position of the Senator from Indiana that an embarge should be placed upon all dyes because 8 per cent or less of the dyes consumed in the United States are imported. As stated, the imported dyes could be produced if the domestic manufacturers cared to do It is not so much a question of technical skill, as the Senator stated, that leads the American producer to omit their manufacture. The dyes are so varied and the quantity of each dye is so small that the American manufacturer does not care to engage in their production. In other words, there would be no profit in these few dyes. A textile mill would perhaps purchase during the year but a few hundred or a few thousand pounds at the most; whereas, the same textile manufacturing plant would consume hundreds of thousands and perhaps mil-lions of pounds of other dyes. Nor do I agree with the Senator that Germany's chemical industry is more highly developed than ours, or that the German chemists are superior to those of the United States. I think in all branches of chemistry the American chemists equal, and in many instances surpass, the chemists in any other country in the world.

The facilities in the United States for the production of chemicals are superior to those in any other country and it is, I think, somewhat of an aspersion upon the chemical industry and those engaged in the same, as well as the chemists of the United States, to attribute to Germany the superiority which so many are doing. Nor do I assent to the inferences that flow from the Senator's statement that the chemical industry is not firmly established in the United States. We have a synthetic chemical industry which is equal to and indeed superior to that of Germany. As I have repeatedly stated, this industry is strongly intrenched. It has hundreds of mil-lions of dollars at its command and has the most efficient and perhaps the most extensive chemical plants in the world. I have shown that one company, the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation, has assets of a greater value than those of the combined dye manufacturing plants of Germany.

As I have shown, Germany has but 12 dye manufacturing companies—we have scores and our production of intermediates and our facilities for the production of intermediates are greater than those of Germany and all other countries combined. The domestic industry is so powerful that it has competed, and can now compete, in the world markets, with Germany or any other country, in those dyes which fall within the class of which the United States produces 92 per cent of the domestic consumption. There are those that would have us believe that synthetic chemistry, as the Senator calls it, is something new and mysterious and not studied by American Mr. President, synthetic compounds, whether organic or otherwise, whether produced from coal-tar products or their derivatives, have been known to the United States and to our chemists for years, and we can march abreast, if not in front, of any other nation in the production of all synthetic chemicals, whether dyes, medicines, drugs, or any other chemical,

The remarks of the Senator from Indiana compel me to refer to other products than dyes embraced within the embargo. The embargo covers, as I have heretofore stated, not alone dyes but thousands of medicines and drugs and other chemical products. I examined, a few days ago, the United States Dispensatory, containing four or five thousand pages, and I also examined the United States Pharmacopoeia and the National Formulary books, containing hundreds of pages in the aggre-With my limited knowledge of chemistry and drugs and medicines, I discovered that there are literally hundreds of chemicals, drugs, and elixirs that are contained within the Under the guise of giving a monopoly to the domestic producers of dyes, it is proposed to give a monopoly to domestic manufacturers of thousands of the most important drugs and medicines

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Mr. President, may I ask the

Mr. WALSON of Indiana. All Products, and Senator a question at this point?
Mr. KING. Certainly.
Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Originally did the manufacture of the drugs to which he refers grow out of the dye industry or are they related to the dye industry?

Mr. KING. Many of these drugs and medicinals were produced in the United States before the coal-tar dye industry was developed or entered upon, but they come within the comprehensive language of the embargo as found in the emergency tariff act which is imported and carried into the pending bill,

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. In other words, what I am trying to get at is this: Do we embargo by the proposed measure any medicines that did not originally grow out of the dye industry?

Mr. KING. Yes.

Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Has the Senator a list of those? Mr. KING. I have here a list of hundreds of drugs and medicines, some of which I am sure are not coal-tar products. The words "synthetic-organic compounds" include, in addition to coal-tar products, all other carbon compounds which are derived or manufactured from products not found naturally This phrase "synthetic-organic compounds coal tar. in coal tar. This pursus synthetic-organic compounds embraces all carbon compounds not found as such in nature. Chemists classify organic compounds into two principal subdivisions, namely, alpha or open-chain compounds and aromatic or closed-chain compounds. The organic compounds embraced in the latter subdivision are coal-tar products. It is therefore evident that the phrase is much broader in its scope and embraces other than coal-tar products. If it is the intention to embargo only coal-tar products, then the phrase "syntheticorganic compounds" is entirely too broad. I have repeatedly said that, in my opinion, it was never intended to lay an embargo upon anything but coal-tar dyes. It was never intended by the overwhelming majority of the Senators and Congressmen to prohibit the importation of drugs, chemicals, and medicines

To illustrate what this embargo does, let me call the Senator's attention to aromatic vinegar. That is a synthetic compound as interpreted by the Treasury Department. is phenolated water. Caffeine sodiosalicylate, which is an important medicine, falls within the phrase "synthetic-organic compounds." Camphor cerate as well as all esters and cerate compounds."

of lead subacetate may not be imported.

This last-named article may be used in painting or for medicinal purposes, but it is under the embargo. Camphorated chloral is embargoed. Iodine collodion, iodoform collodion, compound salicylic collodion, styptic collodion, croton oil collodion, compound elixir of almond—these are all embargoed. The senior Senator from California [Mr. Johnson] will be glad that the latter is within the embargo as we get into the field of almonds That is a synthetic compound and it is emin his State. That is a synthetic compound and it is embargoed. Elizir of anise and their elizirs fall within the pro-Elixir of formates, compound elixir of sodium salihibition. cylate, elixir of terpin hydrate and codelne, compound elixir of vanillin are all embargoed. It is admitted that vanillin is interdicted and that it is used for a multitude of purposes

Camphorated brown plaster; liniment of ammonium iodide; compound liniment of opium; camphorated soap liniment, which is a synthetic compound—compound liniment of mustard—acetic turpentine liniment, another snythetic compound-solution of aluminum acetico-tartrate; liquor alumini acetatis, alkaline antiseptic solution, solution of peptonate of iron, a medicine which is taken by many people as a remedy for an anemic condition, these all are under the embargo.

Solution of ferric salicylate, compound solution of hydrastine; phenolated solution of iodine, antiseptic solution of pepwhich is a synthetic compound-are banned. Coal-tar solution, compound solution of sodium borate, which is used in many products, as the Senator from New York [Mr. Wadsworth] will recognize; compound solution of zinc and aluminum, compound solution of zinc and iron, ammoniated camphor wash, camphorated menthal, astringent mixture, acid camphor mixture, aromatic camphor mixture, compound mixture of chloral and potassium bromide—all medicines of importance—compound mixture of chloroform and morphine; mixture of oil of tar; compound mixture of opium and chloroform-which is used in hospitals for medicinal purposes; compound mixture of opium and rhubarb; aromatic oil spray; compound menthol spray; aromatic castor oil; betanaphthol petroxolin; lodoform petroxolin; methyl salicylate petroxolin; camphorated phenol petroxolin; antiperiodic pills; pills of opium and camphor; compound acetanilid powder; soluble antiseptic powder, compound powder of tale, sodium boro-benzoate, compound spirit of cardamon, compound spirit of vanillin, stitus acidi salicylici dilubilis—which is a very important drug; sirup of garlic; compound sirup of senna; antiperiodic tincture; compound tinc-ture of kino and opium; pectoral tincture; troches of charcoal; troches of phenolphthalein; troches of quinine tannate; troches of santonin; troches of elm; camphor ointment; brown ointment; ointment of lead lodide; these and hundreds of other articles are to be excluded from the United States to satisfy the greedy demands of the dye monopoly and its associated in-

It had been assumed by some Senators and Representatives who were willing to support a measure for an embargo for a limited period that it was distinctively and exclusively a dye embargo imposed to foster what was alleged to be an infant dye industry in this country. The proposition for an embargo, as understood, was associated with the coal-tar dyes and derivatives, and no one contended that there was any reason to extend the embargo beyond dyes produced from coal tars. But the construction placed upon the emergency tariff act, doubt-less the one which was intended by the dye lobbyists, in its administration by the Treasury Department, was very much broader and included, as I have indicated, drugs, medicinals, and natural dyes, and other chemical compounds.

It is worthy of note that the embargo originally provided in the pending bill, and as reported from the House Committee, was to be confined in its operation to the articles specified in paragraphs 25 and 26 of the pending bill—articles which all know are coal-tar products.

In interpreting the emergency tariff act and in construing the words "synthetic organic chemicals" the Treasury Department, in paragraph 8 of decision 38799, promulgated July 21, 1921, held that—

21, 1921, held that—

The wording includes natural dyes and dyestuffs, such as logwood, cochineal, fustic, cutch, sumac, and other dyes of natural origin, derived in no sense from coal tar but of vegetable derivation, and that such natural dyes may only be imported upon license.

It has further been held that the following drugs and medicinal preparations which are not of coal-tar origin and are of wide and necessary use as medicines, disinfectants, satiseptics, and anaesthetics, are embargoed; formaldehyle, chloroform, ether, glycerophosphoric acid, chlorohydrate, idoform, ethochloride, heroin, cocaine, morphine, and urea.

The Treasury has also held under this statute that the following acids which have no relation to coal tar and are of wide use in the arts and industries of the country are embargoed: Formic acid, lactic acid, oxalic acid, pyrogalic acid, acetic acid, valerianic acid, and all of the salts of said acids, as well as acetic anydride, acetone, acetone oil, carbon tetrachioride, turpin hydrate, dionin, cellulose esters, amyl acetate, amyl nitrite, ethyl acetate, ethyl chloride, butyl alcohol, peronin, and calciam cacodylate, none of which, as indicated above, are of coal-tar derivation or origin.

There is no reason why a dye embargo as such should be

There is no reason why a dye embargo as such should be extended either by specification or construction to exclude the importation of essential drugs, medicines, and disinfectants which have no relation to the dye industry, although they may be among the pharmaceutical derivatives of coal tar. Moreover, coal-tar derivatives are but a minor factor in the making of these drugs and medicinal preparations. But the greed of the embargoist knows no limit. He is intent upon extending the embargo into every possible corner of the whole As a result, we find that the law is construed chemical field. to embargo the importation of salvarsan, which is the only specific for the cure of syphilis; of novocain, which is the most important local anesthetic, and is generally used by dentists and surgeons for local and minor operations; of aspirin, a common remedy for colds, grippe, influenza, and other similar distempers; of veronal, which is a sedative drug of wide use; of acetanilit, which is used in the cure of headaches and colds; of salol, an effective urinary antiseptic; of sodium benzoate, which is a widely used preservative of food; of beta naphthol, cresol, and carbolic acid, all important disinfectants of wide general use; and of naphthalene, which is widely used to exclude moths and insects from clothing in wardrobes, and is the sole constituent of common moth balls.

The construction of the existing embargo, as excluding sal-varsan from importation, is particularly reprehensible and unjustifiable. It ought to require no argument to convince Senaters that the medical practitioner who has occasion to use this drug ought to be permitted to command salvarsan of any origin or manufacture which either he or his patient demands. After the outbreak of the World War, but before the United States entered the war, our Government made frantic efforts to arrange for the importation of salvarsan from Germany, and the State Department was able to arrange for several shipments of salvarsan, which, by agreement, were passed through the lines of the British blockade. It is true that salvarsan is now being manufactured in the United States, but it is also true that no person who has any right or cause to ask for an embargo on salvarsan has appeared before any committee of Congress and asked that salvarsan be embargoed.

Indeed, the largest manufacturer of salvarsan in this country does not ask an embargo, but is opposed to an embargo on the importation of this drug. This manufacturer has even applied to the Treasury for a license to import a limited number of ampules of salvarsan to supply the specific requirements of some of his customers who want the German product and are willing to pay any price for what they want. But the Treasury, or rather the chief of the dye and chemical control section, has refused all applications for licenses to bring in salvarsan, and as a consequence not a single ampule of this important drug can be lawfully imported into the United States. And this is the condition we are asked to perpetuate in this ill-advised and ill-considered legislation.

The dye and chemical control section, in applying this law, has also embargoed the importation of lampblack, which is used in the manufacture of paints, and creosote oil, which is used for preserving fence posts, railroad ties, telephone poles. and any wood structures which come in contact with the ground or water.

The dye and chemical control section has also held that the law embargoes the importation of artists' water colors and artists' crayons as being "mixtures," because they contain a small quantity of coal-tar colors.

The dye and chemical control section has specifically held, in section 7 of Treasury Decision 38799, July 1, 1921, that—

When a product has sufficient coal-tar products mixed or combined with it to materially change its identity or character, it shall be considered a "mixture" or "compound of such coal-tar product" within the meaning of the act.

There would seem to be no limit to the extension of the emergency embargo by bringing within its purview articles consisting wholly or in part of coal-tar products or which may be deemed to be mixtures of compounds of coal-tar products. has also been held that-products obtained by fermentation, if such fermentation is carried on under controlled conditions, are considered to be synthetic organic chemicals.

It has also been held that-if the substance is subject to destructive distillation, the products of such destructive distillation are considered to be synthetic organic chemicals or drugs.

Thus the dye and chemical control section has embargoed the importation of butyl and amyl alcohol and, by the same token, methyl or wood alcohol, and ethyl or grain alcohol may be embargoed. There are no facts which would invoke any other rule as to grain alcohol and wood alcohol than the rule which is applied to amyl alcohol and butyl alcohol. Moreover, if artists' crayons may be embargoed because they are merely colored with coal-tar dyes, woolen goods and cotton goods and silk goods, paper, unholstery, carpets, and any dyed products whatsoever may likewise be embargoed because they are colored with coal-tar dyes.

The terms "synthetic organic chemicals" are not defined in the literature of chemical technology, and these terms are not defined by any trade practice or use. It was futile and fatuous to write such words into a statute and then permit some bureaucrat to exercise his ingenuity and imagination without limit as to the extent and scope of these terms. There could not be a more fertile field for controversy and litigation.

When we consider that carbon is a chemical that is characteristic of every substance in the organic world, of every substance of either vegetable or animal origin, of every product of a living organism, of every structure known to the plant and the animal kingdom, and that any alteration by fermentation, or by any chemical process whatsoever, may be deemed to be synthetic, we see that there is no limitation which these embargo propagandists will recognize or that they need recognize in the legal application of the makeshift embargo provided in the emergency tariff act and which it is the persistent endeavor of these propagandists to have perpetuated in the provisions of the pending bill.

I have already adverted to the fact that the embargo prorided in the pending bill, as it was reported by the House committee and as it was voted out of the bill by the House, was restricted to the articles specified in paragraphs 25 and 26. But this embargo, which has been brought in by amendment to the bill by the Finance Committee, not only covers the dyes and intermediates specified in paragraphs 25 and 26 of the chemical schedule but covers, or may be made to cover, acetic acid, acetic hydrate, chloroacetic acid, lactic acid, formic acetic acid, acetic hydrate, chloroacetic acid, lactic acid, rormic acid, gallic acid, oxalic acid, pyrogalic acid in paragraph 1; and acetaldehyde, aldol, acetaldol, aldehyde ammonia, butyraldehyde, crotonaldehyde, paracetaldehyde, ethylene chlorohydrin, ethylene dichloride, ethylene glycol, ethylene oxide, glycol monoacetate, propylene chlorohydrin, propylene glycol of paragraph 2; and acetone, acetone oil, and ethyl methyl ketone of paragraph 3; and amyl alcohol, butyl alcohol, propyl alcohol, methyl alcohol, and ethyl alcohol of paragraph 4; and all the observice calls. chemical elements, salts, and compounds, combinations and mixtures of any of the foregoing as provided in paragraph 5; and caffeine and compounds of caffeine in paragraph 14; and some of the mercurial preparations of paragraph 16; and chloro-form tetrachloroethane, and trichloroethylene of paragraph 17; and some of the chemicals, drugs, and medicines imported in capsules, pills, tablets, lozenges, troches, ampules, jubes as provided in paragraph 21; and some of the chemical elements, compounds, preparations, mixtures, salts, distilled and essential oils, and so forth, included in paragraph 22; and chloralhydrate, turpin hydrate, thymol, urea, glycerophosphoric acid, and salts and compounds of glycerophosphoric acid of paragraph 24; and cellulose esters of paragraph 28; and diethyl sulfate, dimethyl sulfate, ethyl acetate, ethyl chloride, ethyl ether of paragraph 35; and extracts of chestnut, cutch, chlorophyl, divi-divi, fustic, hemlock, logwood, mangrove, myroblan, phyl, divi-divi, fustic, hemiock, logwood, mangrove, myrobian, oak, Persian berry, quebracho, and sumac of paragraph 36; and synthetic fruit flavors, esters, oils, and essences of paragraph 37; and formaldehyde, paraformaldehyde, and hexamethylenetetramene of paragraph 38; and ink and ink powders of paragraph 41; and camphor of paragraph 48; and morphine, morphine sulfate, opium alkaloid salts and esters, cocaine, ecgonine of paragraph 55; and heliotropin, ionone, rhodinol, saftal terminal varilling and other synthetic admirphouse. safrol, terpinol, vanillin, and other synthetic odoriferous or sarrol, terpinol, vanillin, and other synthetic odoriferous or aromatic chemicals, or mixtures or combinations of the same, of paragraph 61; and paints, colors, and pigments of paragraph 62; and lampblack of paragraph 68; and sodium nitrite of paragraph 78; and hydrosulfite and sulfo-oxylate compounds, combinations, and mixtures of paragraph 79. And this for-midable list of chemicals taken from almost every branch of the chemical schedule is to be brought by this legislation within the provisions of the supposed embargo on foreign dyes. There are a number of articles in this list, and which are embargoed by the provisions of the existing law, which are produced by only one company in this country, the effect of the embargo being to give them a practical monopoly of the trade in this article in the United States. Guaiacol carbonate is only manufactured by the Du Pont Co.

Acetphenetidin is a drug which is only manufactured in the United States by the Monsanto Chemical Co. The price of this drug in the United States in August, 1914, at the outbreak of the European war, was 80 cents per pound. In May, 1921, when the emergency tariff act became effective, the Monsanto Chemical Co., to which the embargo gave a monopo on this article, raised the price promptly to $1.65 per pound, and have since raised the price to $1.85 per pound, having no competition whatever in the American market.

Tariff duties on drugs and medicines are vicious enough, but embargoes on drugs and medicines by which the sick and afflicted and the hospitals and the physicians and surgeons are denied the liberty to purchase the drugs and medicines which the world market affords, according to their own prescriptions and necessities, are without warrant in reason or morals and without justification in sound policy and from any view of the welfare of the country or the people of the country.

welfare of the country or the people of the country.

No nation, either in contemporary or historical times, has ever laid an embargo upon the importation of drugs or medicines. This is the very extremity of special and private legislation and has no part in a law enacted to raise revenue, protect industry, or regulate commerce.

Mr. President, I have here two lists containing the names of drugs and medicines which I hastily copied from the United States Dispensatory, twentieth edition, and the National Formulary IV, part 3, section 11, aggregating approximately 1,600 articles. All of these are to be placed under an embargo, notmulary IV withstanding the fact that they are indispensable to the health, indeed the lives, of the people. The sick, rich and poor alike, are to be placed at the mercy of these great corporations who have exploited the people and who propose to continue their oppressive and profiteering course. I ask that these lists may be inserted in the RECORD without reading.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. President, as I understand, the proposition of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. Warson] is that we can not adequately protect the 8 per cent of dyestuffs which are covered by the general classification of vat dyes unless we embargo them and at the same time embargo all of these articles which the Senator from Utah has mentioned?

Mr. KING. Exactly.
Mr. SIMMONS. It is proposed to embargo these dyes that we were making before the war in quantity sufficient to supply the American demand?

Mr. KING. The proposition is to embargo all dyes, not-withstanding Germany can not compete with domestic manufacturers in at least 92 per cent of this product.

Let me show to the Senator what the effect of this embargo is. I have prepared a table comparing the wholesale American selling price of 22 dyes of domestic manufacture, representing 63 per cent of the domestic dyes produced in the United States during 1921, with the wholesale American selling prices of the same dyes of German manufacture, and the prices are those of the past few days, based on the German home market values and the rate of duty in the pending bill of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents a pound specific.

Does are identified by reference to what is known as Schultz's tables. By reference to these tables, having the number the dye bears, the character, nature, coloring effects, and virtue of dye bears, the character, nature, coloring elects, and virtue of the dye may be determined. I call attention to a dye known as benzo purpurine 4B, which will be found in Schultz's tables. There were produced in the United States in 1921, of this par-ticular kind or grade of dye, 152,626 pounds. These figures are taken from the census of coal-tar dyes and chemicals prepared by the Tariff Commission. The German home market value of by the Tariff Commission. The German home market value of this particular dye, with the mark at its present low value was 267 marks per kilo. A kilo, as Senators know, is 2.2 pounds. Mr. WATSON of Indiana. Does the Senator know what it cost to manufacture that dye in the United States? Mr. KING. I know what the German home market price is;

that is the price at which it was sold by the German cartel to German textile manufacturers for domestic consumption. The Senator is aware of the fact that the German dye producers have been supplying German textile mills dyes at as low a price as it was possible to produce and sell them, for the purpose of aiding the German textile manufacturers to produce and supply as much of the home market as possible and to enter and supply as much of the home market as possible and to enter the foreign markets.

This means that the German textile plants obtain their dyes at a lower price than that charged to foreign producers. This particular dye was sold to the German textile trade at 34½ cents per pound, gold. Before the war this same dye was supplied to the German consumers at 16 cents per pound. As stated, the German consumer is now compelled to pay 34½ cents in gold per pound. The prices of German dye products are relatively higher than the prices of other German products because tively higher than the prices of other German products because of the difficulty experienced by Germany in obtaining the raw materials required for the production of dyes. If to this gold price is added 60 per cent ad valorem, the tariff rate carried in this bill, and 3 cents per pound for freight, insurance, and so forth, which have for years been the usual charges, and 20 to 25 per cent as profit for the manufacturer and the broker who buys and the wholesaler who supplies the retailer—and this figure is less than that charged by many, as in some instances the charges have been as high as 50 per cent—that would bring the price to 85½ cents per pound, gold, in the United States. The American manufacturer is now selling this particular dye for 80½ cents. It is apparent, therefore, that if the Americans could purchase German dyes as cheaply as the textile interests of Germany, this dye could not be sold in the United States for less than 85½ cents per pound, gold. Under a tariff of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound specific, as provided in this bill, it seems clear that an embargo has ready been laid upon dyes.

Mr. STERLING. Mr. President—
The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Jones of Washington in Does the Senator from Utah yield to the Senator the chair). from South Dakota?

Mr. KING. I yield.
Mr. STERLING. I should like to ask the Senator if he is not familiar with the contention made over and over again that the German dye manufacturers will sell in this country at a loss in order that they may undermine the American manufacturer?

Mr. KING. I have heard the contention made a hundred times that American manufacturers are selling at a loss in for-eign countries for the purpose of undermining or destroying their competitors, and I have no doubt they have done so. We have sold many of our products in South America, as well as in Europe, as there is evidence before committees to prove, at a loss for the purpose of destroying competition.

Mr. STERLING. I asked the Senator whether he had not heard the contention that the German dye manufacturers do Does the Senator from Utah believe that they would?

Mr. KING. Mr. President, you can hear anything from an interested party. You can hear anything from men who come here to serve selfish and greedy interests and who appear before committees of Congress. If you ask any member of the Finance Committee who has heard the testimony, he will tell you that manufacturers and others seeking high tariffs have demanded rates and have insisted that they would perish if they did not get them, when the committee know that their statements were false.

Mr. STERLING. Mr. President—
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Utah further yield to the Senator from South Dakota? Mr. KING. I do.

Mr. STERLING. I think the Senator's statement as to competition among our own manufacturers demonstrates exactly what Germany might do if she had the chance, if there was no embargo; that is, she would undersell, and sell at a loss, because of this great market which she wants.

Mr. KING. I think, then, that the argument of the Senator from South Dakota stamps him as being the champion embargoist of the world. To be consistent, he must put an embargo upon everything, for fear that some country or some industry in some country is going to undersell us, even if it has to sell at a loss.

The Senator asks me if I believe that Germany will do that. I do not know. I believe that some Americans will sell at a loss to drive their foreign competitors out of foreign markets. I believe that some manufacturers of automobiles in the United States are going to sell at a loss in Europe until they close a number of European establishments engaged in the manufacture of automobiles.

Mr. STERLING. No doubt, Mr. President, in various businesses and industries, and among merchants, there are sales at a loss in the face of sharp competition. Mr. KING. But this bill furnishes all the safeguards that could possibly be devised by the most greedy and selfish monopolist against any possible consummation of the execution of the supposititious plan mentioned by the Senator. The President is given power to increase the rates 50 per cent above those found in the bill. Moreover, drastic provisions appear to prevent dumping of foreign producers and to prevent unfair competition at the hands of foreign producers. This bill provides reprisals and thunderbolts that may be employed against any of the evils or impending dangers visualized by the Senator.

But I invite attention to the fact that Germany is in no position to carry out any such plan. She is, as everybody knows, on the verge of bankruptcy, indeed, she is now bankrupt. To me it seems absurd to contend that this powerful Nation, with its superior resources, with its unparalleled financial power, with its economic and industrial advantages, can be beaten down, or its industries jeopardized by the impoverished nations of Europe.

I have heretofore called attention to the fact that in 1921 our exports of chemical products and commodities to Germany exceeded $94,000,000, and that our imports from Germany covering all chemicals, dyes, medicines, drugs, and so forth, were but $27,000,000. There is no doubt but what in foreign trade, as well as in domestic trade, efforts had been made at various times, by strong combinations, to injure competitors or to expand the domestic and foreign market, either by selling on a very narrow margin, or possibly for a limited time selling some commodities at a loss. But I do not think the United States presents any better record with respect to foreign competition of this character than that of Germany.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. President-

Mr. KING. I yield to the Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. SIMMONS. I will say to the Senator, in response to a statement made by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr.
STERLING], that before the war, and early in the beginning of the war, we heard a great deal about Germany's underselling for the purpose of destroying any attempt to build up the dye industry in other countries, in order that she might obtain what was then said to be a world monopoly. We were told that they had been able to establish this monopoly because of the cooperation of the Government with the industry; was a part of the military machine of Germany, and the Government had subsidized it; that the Government cooperated and aided in every possible way that a government can aid an industry where conditions existed similar to those which we know existed in Germany anterior to the war. It was said that this industry had become so powerful in Germany, backed and supported by the Government of Germany, that it was able to lose large sums of money in order to prevent the estab-lishment of a competing industry in other countries.

Does the Senator think that in the present condition of Germany, with the hard blows that this industry has received as a result of the things that have happened during the last five or six years in Germany and elsewhere, the German dye industry is in any condition now, or that any industry in Germany is in any condition now, to lose money for the purpose of destroying a competing industry in a foreign country? Does the Senator think that the German Government now is in any condition to aid that industry to accomplish that purpose, as it was at the time we first heard these charges of German invasion and German domination and world trust in this industry?

Mr. KING. Mr. President, the able Senator from North Carolina has asked me three questions. I answer each of them negatively. I do not want to be dogmatic, but in my opinion Germany is not in a situation to compete with the United States in dyes and in many other products, and the German Govern-ment is not in a position to subsidize or to aid by contributions from an exhausted and bankrupt treasury any of her industries. Already we know that the subsidies which were granted last year, and have been granted during and since the war, amounting to hundreds of millions, indeed billions of marks, to the railroads have been withdrawn. Subsidies granted to the municipalities have also been withdrawn, and there is a financial crisis as well as an industrial crisis in Germany to-day.

Mr. SIMMONS. And the industry is no longer subsidiary to military establishment.

Mr. KING. Certainly not. They are developing there, under the Ebert government, what we believe to be and hope will be a democratic government; and the close connection between the monarchistic and military government which existed before the war and the people and the industries of the people will not persist under the present Government. It seems to me that the news which we get every day of conditions in Germany is a complete refutation of the contention made by so many of our friends, both on the other side of the Chamber and some on this side, that Germany is going to be a powerful competitor of the United States in the markets of the world.

Apropos of the questions just submitted by the Senator, I ask leave to place in the RECORD without reading an article from the Frankfurter Zeitung, a translation of which appears in the Canadian Chemical Journal, and also an article appearing the magazine called Reconstruction, entitled "The Position of German Industrial Protection." With respect to the latter article, the editors state that they requested a number of prominent personages of German economic life to answer some questions with regard to the above subject, and they state that following are the replies so far received. The date of this article is May 15 of this year. I ask leave that both of these articles may be inserted in the Record without reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the request of the Senator will be granted.

The article is as follows:

SURRENDER OF GERMAN COAL.

SURRENDER OF GERMAN COAL.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, a German newspaper, has the following to say in a recent issue regarding Germany's surrender of her coal areas:
"Germany's pit coal output on the 1st December, 1915, totaled 146,867,563 tons, but she is now to lose her coal fields in Upper Silesia, while the Saar and Alx-la-Chapelle regions will remain outside her sphere of control. On the 1st December, 1915, the production in Upper Silesia was 38,106,787 tons, in the Saar ragion 10,336,417 tons, and in the Aix-la-Chapelle coal field 2,251,260, or a total of 50,703,464

Let me call attention to another dye known as orange II. In 1921 the American dye manufacturers produced 922,826 pounds. The pre-war price of this dye was 181 cents in the United States. In Germany the present price to the consumer that is, the German manufacturer of textiles-is 261 cents per pound gold.

With respect to the relative cost of the production of dyes in the United States and Germany to-day, it is apparent that with a 60 per cent ad valorem duty and a 7 cents per pound specific duty, Germany would be unable to manufacture and sell dyes in the American market in competition with our domestic manufacturers.

Another important dye is agalma black 10B. During 1921 there were produced in the United States 1,426,194 pounds of this dye. In Germany this dye is now sold to the German textile interests for 51 cents gold per pound. Under the tariff rates fixed in this bill of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound and allowing the usual amount for transportation, insurance, brokers' charges, and so forth, it would cost $1.13 per pound to deliver this side in the United States. It is now sold by the dye manufacturers in the United States for 80 cents per pound. German importers would lose 33 cents a pound if they brought this article for sale in the United States.

Mr. President, without reading this table I ask that it be inserted as a part of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Germany's remaining coal output may, therefore, reasonably be placed at not more than 50,000,000 tons. The total export in 1911 was 181,148,076 tens out of a total output of 188,717,500 tens. Thus with an output only one-third as large, she is to export 120 per cent. more. This does not complete the chapter of her difficulties, for .74 per cent of her pit coal production is to be delivered at prices fixed exclusively by the victors. Three-fourths of her coal output instead of helping to rescue her from her exconomic distress will thus be excluded from contributing to her profits. In order for importers to bring dyes from Germany (without profit or regard for selling expenses) he must buy these dyes in Germany at 40 cents per pound (5 cents below present German home market value). Then the import cost of dyes would equal American selling prices of same dyes of domestic manufacture.

Mr. KING. I ask that the following table be inserted in the RECORD without reading. It contains a comparison of the wholesale American selling prices of 22 dyes of domestic manufacture, representing 63 per cent of the domestic dye manufacture dur-ing 1921, with wholesale American selling prices of the same dyes of German manufacture. The rates are based on German export prices and also upon the tariff rates of 60 per cent ad valorem and 7 cents per pound found in this bill. Computation has been made as of June 1, this year, and the mark figured at one-third of a cent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There being no objection, the table will be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. KING. Mr. President, I have gone far afield from the discussion of the Dyes Institute and Mr. Poucher, in which I was engaged some time ago, and their efforts to procure an embargo. I now return to that branch of my remarks. The American Dyes Institute has a special legislative committee, of which Mr. Morris R. Poucher, of the Du Pont corporation, is the chairman. The embargo scheme did not originate with Congress, but with Mr. du Pont and Mr. Poucher and others interested in aiding a dye monopoly, and with Mr. Choate and other attorneys who have received enormous fees from the proponents of the scheme.

It was this committee which arranged for the introduction of the first embargo bill in Congress. At the meeting of the institute held in New York on June 6, 1919, Mr. Poucher made a special report upon the legislative situation in Washington, which, without reading, I ask may be placed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the request will be granted.

Mr. KING. The following is from the minutes of the institute:

Mr. KING. The following is from the minutes of the institute:

The chairman then called upon Mr. M. R. Poucher to explain to the members the situation at Washington in connection with the proposed licensing bill. This Mr. Poucher did, his statement being practically the same as that which he had made to the executive committee, and which was to the effect that he had understood that a licensing bill was prepared to be introduced in Congress in a few days, and that he had been informed that it was the intention of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives to hold a hearing on that bill probably in the week beginning June 23.

Mr. Poucher announced that a special committee had been appointed by the executive committee consisting of Messrs. Wigglesworth, Jeffcott, and himself as chairman, to 1. p. sent the institute at Washington and to do everything within its power to further the interests of the dye manufacturers of this country.

At the request of the chairman, the Secretary told about the agent of the War Trade Board, a Mr. Ralph B. Miller, who had been appointed to the advisory board created by the War Trade Board for the purpose of obtaining information concerning the dye industry, colors manufactured, intermediates made in this country, and such other information as would be necessary to guide the advisory board in reaching conclusions on any questions which might be referred to it by the War Trade Board concerning applications for licenses for the importation of dyes, chemicals, etc., pertaining to the dye industry.

Mr. Poucher amplified a bit upon the work of the advisory committee, knowledge of which was already possessed by the members through a statement issued by the War Trade Board in its licensing plan was, he said, to issue licenses only to those desiring to import those dyes into the United States which were not made in this country, or were not made in sufficient quantities to meet requirements, or where there was no apparent effort being made to manufacture those dyes in the

Mr. KING. The record of the legislative expenditures of the American Dyes Institute shows the payment of $50,000 to Joseph H. Choate, jr., and J. Harry Covington, Esq., as legislative fees for services in connection with this embargo legislation. These payments were made about two years ago. How much has been paid since I do not know. They are euphoneously called payments for "legislative services," which is merely a camouflage for what ought to be called plain lobby-Ing and legislative embracery. This matter was before the Finance Committee on August 6, 1921, and Mr. Choate was interrogated as to the services he and Mr. Covington had rendered before these inordinate fees were paid. Without taking the time to read the testimony, I ask that excerpts may be inserted in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The request will be granted if there is no objection.

The excerpts are as follows:

The excerpts are as follows:

Senator SMOOT. Included in this here is your compensation of $25,000; is that correct?

The CHAIRMAN. What do you mean by "legislative campaign"?

Mr. CHOATE. I mean in advising them in regard to their rights, their position, and what they ought to do and what they ought to ask for, from the time when the first application was made to Congress for protection in the early part of 1919.

Senator Moses. Is that all that you did for them, Mr. Choate?

Mr. CHOATE. Was that all that I did for them?

Senator Moses. Yes.

Mr. CHOATE. That was not all that I did for them. I made a trip to France for them.

Senator Moses. No. I mean during that period in connection with the legislative campaign.

Mr. CHOATE. I came down here during all of the hearings, during many weeks when I was kept waiting for hearings that strung along on other matters after our matter had been called. I made innumerable memoranda for them in regard to every possible suggestion that was made for changes in various bills. You will recall three bills have been reported by three committees, and that there had, up to that time, been two bills reported by two committees, each of which had been changed in—I was going to say—numberless particulars at various times, any one of which might have been important.

Senator La Follette. What time did you visit Paris for the foun-

Senator LA FOLLETTE. What time did you visit Labe to dation?

Mr. CHOATE. Not for the foundation, but for the Dyes Institute. The foundation had nothing whatever to do with it. I sailed on the 20th of October, 1920, and I got back here, I think, on the 23d of December, 1920.

Senator LA FOLLETTE. Were you over there on business for the Allen Custodian?

Mr. CHOATE. By no means. This was 1920; I was there purely for the American Dyes Institute and nobody else.

Senator Moses. How many weeks were you absent?

Mr. CHOATE. I sailed October 20 and I came back on December 23, 1920.

Mr. Choats. I salled October 20 and I came back on December 23, 1920.

Senator Moses. Six weeks?
Mr. Choats. No; nine weeks.
Senator Moses. Your traveling expenses were $1,505.01?
Mr. Choats. I think that is an error; I think they were $1.400 and something. I may state that the amount of the staterooms there and back was $700 and more.

Senator Moses. I note a payment on account of Paris trip. $3.499.
Mr. Choats. Yes; there was an agreed fee there of $25,000, which came about in this way—I think I should state it: The legislative committee of the Dyes Institute came to me in October, 1920, and stated to me that they were very much troubled over the effect which was apparently being produced upon the German dye industry by the operations of the Reparations Commission under the treaty. The difficulty was this: Under annex 8 of Article Vi of the treaty the Allies were entitled to 25 per cent of the daily production, but the Reparation Commission was authorized to require the delivery, in case in their opinion the actual daily production was less than normal, of 25 per cent of the normal production.

Accordingly, I was asked to go over there and find out what they were doing, see if I could persuade the Reparation Commission to enforce normal production so as to insure the supplies of those essential dyes and prevent the full like forcing which would follow their lack.

Mr. KING. The records show that in the course of a little more than a year, Mr. Choate received from the American Dyes Institute fees in the sum of $50,000 and that he has received from the Chemical Foundation fees in the sum of $20,000 which, together with expense moneys which had been allowed him, have made the payments of these two eleemosynary institutions for Mr. Choate's services, amount to $75,000. Mr. Covington's fee was $25,000. His principal service was the drafting of the embargo bill. These attorneys of the dye combination have received $100,000 for advising Congress and the Reparation Commission as to what should be their policy with respect to the dye industry.

When Mr. Choate's mission as minister plenipotentiary and ambassador extraordinary from the American Dyes Institute to the Reparations Commission is viewed in its proper light it is disclosed to be a bold attempt to assume and arrogate to the dye combination governmental and diplomatic functions in dealing with foreign Governments. For the Reparations Commission is an agency of the allied powers, and no person except one with proper diplomatic credentials would have any right to attempt to deal with the commission on a matter involving the enforcement or the amendment of the treaty of Versailles. the American dye combine, not satisfied with the control of the dye business in the United States, reached out to control the product of the German dye plants, and had the affrontery to propose to the Reparations Commission to use its powers under the treaty to force and compel the German dye plants to deliver to the Reparations Commission the kind of dyes the American dye combine desired to have delivered and to permit the Textile Alliance or the dyes advisory committee of the Textile Alliance, which is a mere creature and tool of the American Dyes Insti-tute, to import these dyes through reparation channels and thus obtain a complete monopoly on the importation of German dyes into the United States. The Germans are compelled under the treaty of Versailles to deliver to the Reparations Commission, or upon their requisition, up to one-fourth of the current production of each kind of dye produced.

That ought to be considered in determining Germany's situation in dealing with the dye industry of the world. She is compelled to surrender one-fourth of her production to the Allies, practically at cost. Senators know that an export tax has to be paid, I think, of 26 per cent, on products which leave Germany.

This option on the part of the commission gives the commission the power to require the German plants to deliver onefourth of the quantity of each dye which they produce. The deliveries are to be made in kind, and the new scheme was to have the Reparations Commission use pressure upon the Germans to compel them in place of one-fourth of the quantity of each dye produced to deliver one-fourth of the total values of the dyes produced upon such specifications as to the kind of dyes to be delivered as the commission might prescribed from time to time.

This required an amendment of the protocol covering dyes in the treaty. These dye men seem to assume that they would have the right to sign, execute, and ratify such an amendment to the treaty of Versailles on the part of the Government of the United States. The Germans were forced to some modification of the protocol calling for the delivery of dyestuffs, but as our Government has not signed such amendment, the Germans have properly refused to deliver dyes to the Reparation Commission for the Textile Alliance under the new arrangement, and the scheme seems to become aborted.

I have referred to the fact that the Textile Alliance has committed all questions relating to the importation of dyes to a special committee, and that this committee is dominated by the same dye manufacturers who dominate the American Dyes Institute. The members of this committee who control the purchase and importation of reparation dyes to this country are Morris R. Poucher, of the Du Pont Co.; Robert T. Baldwin, of the Allied Dye & Chemical Co.; August Merz, of Heller & Merz; and Charles H. Herty, president of the Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association. These four men who dominate the Textile Alliance and, in fact, have been using the Textile Alliance or the name of the Textile Alliance to engage in the traffic in reparation dyes are also the dominating members of the executive committee of the American Dyes In-stitute. These are the men who have assumed the sovereign prerogative of the Government, of carrying on diplomatic relations with the Reparation Commission, both in the name of the American Dyes Institute and of the Textile Alliance. And to this day the Textile Alliance, or this committee of dye makers which dominate its present activity, are carrying on the pose and camouflage that they are the official agency of the Govern ment of the United States for the purchase, importation, and sale of reparation dyes. Mr. Roland W. Boyden, the so-called unofficial representative of the United States to the Reparation Commission, has been acting in concert with Mr. Edward S. Chapin, representative of the Textile Alliance or this committee of dye manufacturers which is masquerading under the name of the Textile Alliance, in dealing with the Reparation Commission and in keeping up the appearance that the Textile Alliance is an exclusive importation agency of the Government of the United States for the importation of reparation dye

My Boyden has, as I say, been acting in collusion with the representative of the Textile Alliance to keep up this pretense and has been unwilling to represent to the Reparation Com-mission the lack of authority of the Textile Alliance to act for the Government of the United States in this matter. must be said that the Reparation Commission has been so anxious to believe that it was in diplomatic correspondence with the State Department and with the Government of the United States that it has only been too willing to blind itself to the real status of the Textile Alliance and to affect to believe that the Textile Alliance was an official agency of the Government of the United States, and that by dealing with the alliance the commission was in fact dealing with the United States and having official communication with the Government of the It is about time that the Government should cut off the official head of the Textile Alliance and decisively do away with this pretense that it is an official agency of the Government of the United States to buy dyes from the Reparation Commission for sale in the American market,

It is now nearly four years since the armistice which closed the war, and yet we have to this day a Dye and Chemical Control Section in the Treasury which issues exclusive licenses to the Textile Alliance to import reparation dyes, and we have the further spectacle of the Government, by its lassitude and indifference, permitting a mere private corporation or a mere ring of dye manufacturers which are using the name of the Textile Alliance, to pretend that they have exclusive rights from the Government of the United States to buy and import reparation dyes and thus exercise monopolistic rights with respect to the importation of German dyes.

The Textile Alliance is holding on to these monopolistic rights not for the service of the textile trades of the country, but in the interests of a few individuals who draw large sal-aries from this dye committee and who desire to retain their lucrative positions and from the general desire of the dye committee to continue a very profitable business free from the obligations and taxes which the law imposes upon mercantile and business corporations.

There has been introduced into the Senate a resolution which is based upon the assumption that the United States is entitled to certain dyes and drugs under section 1 of Artelle II of the treaty between the United States and Germany proclaimed November 14, 1922, and it is reported that upon the assumption that this resolution will pass the Senate, the Reparation Commission will continue to deal with the Textile Alliance as an exclusive governmental agency to buy and import reparation dyes for sale in the American market. And so the dye combine intends to continue not only the control of the American production but also the control of importations through the dye committee which uses the name of the Textile Alliance for this purpose.

The Textile Alliance has always been willing to enter into a deal with the German cartel or trust called the Interessen Gemeinschaft, if only the alliance could have charge of the business of selling German dyes in this country. This affectation of horror at the terrible German dye trust on the part of the dye combine is just a pose and a pretense. The dye combine would enter into exclusive business relations with the German trust to-day if it could, and it would not hesitate to enter into a combine with any foreign trust to control the dye trade of the world, just as the Du Pont Co. entered into a contract with Levinstein's (Ltd.) of England to divide the dye trade of all the civilized countries between themselves, and to refrain from trading in the territory allocated to the other party to the conspiracy.

On July 1 I offered a resolution which deals with the machinations of the dye combine, using the name of the Textile Alliance to pose as an official agency of the Government of the United States in carrying on a traffic in reparation dyes; and as this resolution deals in a succinct way with the pre tenses and propaganda carried on in the name of the Textile Alliance, I ask that it be inserted in the Record as a part of my remarks

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it will be so ordered.

The resolution is as follows:

Senate Resolution 317.

Whereas the Textile Alliance (Inc.), a membership corporation organized in the State of New York, has carried on a propaganda remislead Congress into the belief that the Government of the United States has valuable interests and rights in and to the dyestuffs and drugs which are currently received by the Reparation Commission from Germany on account of reparations due the allied European powers;

Germany on account of reparations due the aimed European powers, and

Whereas the Government of the United States has no interest in said reparation dyestuffs and drugs, and no rights with respect to the proceeds of the saie of such dyestuffs and drugs, and has no credits against Germany for reparations or otherwise for the satisfaction of which said dyestuffs or drugs or any part thereof may be applied, and has no interest in the purchase of such dyes and drugs for sale in the American market; and

Whereas said Textile Alliance (Inc.) is a mere membership corporation, having no shares or capital stock, and is not legally authorized to engage in business of any kind, or to employ capital for profit or otherwise, and is exempt from the obligations to pay the taxes and charges imposed by law upon business and mercantile corporations; and to engage in business of any kind, or to employ capital for profit or otherwise, and is exempt from the obligations to pay the taxes and charges imposed by law upon business and mercantile corporations; and.

Whereas said Textile Alliance (Inc.), in violation of its charter and acting outside of its legal powers, has carried on a traffic in that part of the reparation dyes which the Reparation Commission has been willing to sell for export to the United States, by which ultra vires traffic said Textile Alliance (Inc.), although incorporated as a non-profit corporation, has realized up to January 1, 1922, profits in excess of 41,500,000, which profits are believed at this time to amount to nearly $2,000,000; and whereas said Textile Alliance (Inc.) has without authority assumed the status of an official agency of the United States Government to deal in said reparation dyes for sale in the American market; and Whereas said Textile Alliance (Inc.) has without authority assumed the status of an official status, agency, or relation with or for the Government of the United States of reparation dyes or drugs or otherwise, and that the Government of the United States had no interest in the importation into the United States of reparation dyes or drugs, and that such reparation dyes and drugs as were for sale by the Reparation Commission might be procured for the American market through regular commercial channels, and that the Government of the United States was not concerned with the purchase or marketing of said dyes or drugs; and

Whereas the Textile Alliance (Inc.) has delegated all power with respect to the traffic in dyes and drugs to a so-called advisory committee which is controlled by the corporations engaged in the manufacture of dyes in the United States; which are merely using the name of the alliance to carry on said ultra vires traffic in dyes and drugs and to exercise monopolistic control of the importation of dyes and drugs for importation into the United States; and

Whereas it is reported that Mr. Rol

Reparation Commission on behalf of the Government of the United States concerning the purchase and importation of reparation dyes for sale in the United States.

Mr. KING. The Textile Alliance is a membership corporation and was organized under the laws of the State of New York under date of February 24, 1919. The object of the alliance and the whole of the powers to be exercised by it under its constitution are contained in this article:

The protection of mill owners and operators from, and the prevention and reform of, abuses, unjust and unlawful exactions, deceptions and frauds in the manufacture and sale of mill supplies, and the prevention and prosecution of unlawful, illegal, and improper actions, misdemeanors, and crimes in connection therewith.

The Textile Alliance has no right under the law to engage in business of any kind. It has no shares of capital stock. It is a nonprofit, nontrading corporation. The main purposes of the organization, as set forth in the constitution from which I have just quoted, have to do with the eradication of certain abuses and evils to which the textile trades were then subjected. These objects, as I have been informed, have long since been accomplished, and the alliance itself is practically defunct except as the dye combination is using the name of the alliance to carry on this ultra vires traffic in reparation dyes.

I am not concerned with the activities of the alliance during the war. That matter is all in the past. The war has been over for nearly four years but the dye committee that is now using the alliance for its own private purposes is constantly referring to functions that the alliance performed during the war as an argument that these functions should be continued now that the war is over for nearly four years. The alliance itself, as I have stated, has become practically defunct and the use of the name of the alliance has been assumed by persons representing the dye manufacturers who have utterly no relation to the purposes and objects of the alliance as set forth in the articles of incorporation, and which are the limit of its legal powers.

The attorney for the Textile Alliance, who is employed by the dye advisory committee which is carrying on the only activity presently pursued in the name of the alliance, in an assumed air of innocence appeared before a committee of the Senate and said that he knew nothing about an embargo, and was not concerned about an embargo or a monopoly. He had no knowledge whatever upon such questions, but was only concerned with the protection of these valuable American rights under the treaty of Versailles. What a pretense this all is when we consider that Morris R. Poucher, dominating member of the dyes advisory committee of the Textile Alliance, is the chairman of the legislative or lobbying committee of the American Dyes Institute which arranged to bring in the embargo bill which is now in substance, at least, pending as a part of the tariff bill now before the Senate.

The embargo on dyes, providing as it does for the licensing and importation of dyes and the scheme for an exclusive right upon the part of the Textile Alliance to import the licensed dyes, are but parts of the same scheme and conspiracy for the private control of the dye trade in the markets of this country. Embargoes, licenses, and a monopoly of imports by the Textile Alliance are all schemes of the dye combination to control the domestic dye trade. And they are inseparably bound up with domestic dye trade. And they are inseparably bound up with the conspiracy and the propaganda for this purpose.

If the Dyes Institute becomes defunct, if the Chemical Foundation goes into liquidation, if the Textile Alliance gets out of this ultra vires business of trafficking in reparation dyes, we will still have with us the Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, which is the presumptive residuary legatee of all the nefarious interests, activities, and functions of the Dyes Institute, the Chemical Foundation, and the dyes advisory committee of the Textile Alliance. The board of governors of this new association consists of the following persons:

Morris R. Poucher, controlled by the Du Pont Co.
C. H. Herty, controlled by the Du Pont Co.
R. C. Jeffcott, controlled by the Du Pont Co.
R. C. Jeffcott, controlled by Heller & Merz.
R. P. Summers, controlled by Heller & Merz.
R. P. Summers, controlled by the National Chemical & Color Works.
S. W. Wilder, controlled by the Merrimac Chemical Co.
C. N. Turner, controlled by the Newport Chemical Works.
Herman Seydel, controlled by Reyedel Manufacturing Co.
P. Schlussner, controlled by Roessler & Hassiacher Chemical Co.
B. T. Bush, controlled by Antoine Chiris Co.
R. S. Burdick, controlled by Abbott Laboratory.

The secretary of the Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association is Mr. H. E. Danner, who was the secretary of the open-price section of the American Dyes Institute.

At the first meeting of the board of governors of the Synthetic-Catchen 200

At the first meeting of the board of governors of the Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association, on October 29, 1921, a committee of three, consisting of D. P. Bush, Herman Seydel, and Charles H. Herty was appointed to confer with Joseph H. Choate, jr., and J. Harry Covington, attorneys for the dye combine, for the purpose of having prepared a code of bylaws for the Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association.

The Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association has taken over the work of embargo propaganda and has cir-cularized Congress with pamphlets containing excerpts from testimony before the subcommittee of the Committee on the Ju-diciary investigating dye monopoly and propaganda. These pamphlets undertake to state completely the arguments in favor. of the dye propaganda. The points made are so childish and tenuous as to not require any effort at explanation or refuta-The main contention is that the different kinds of dyes are so numerous as to require a great number of special rates for their protection and that it is impossible to contrive the great number of rates required for this purpose. The answer to this contention is that all dyes imported into the United States are converted into the common denomination of dollars; that the high-priced dyes and the low-priced dyes, the dyes of high cost of production and the dyes of low cost of production, are all merged in the form of dollars, and the duty of 60 per cent ad valorem is applied uniformly to this valuation, so that every dye imported comes under a duty which is proportionate to its cost, under which arrangement the low-priced dyes will pay relatively low duty per pound and the high-priced dyes a proportionately high duty per pound. The ad valorem duty thus operates with uniformity and equality upon the cost of production of any and all dyes which may be imported and which may compete in the American market with domestic dyes. There is utterly no point in the contention that a multitude of duties must be separately provided for each of the multitude of dyes. The one duty of 60 per cent ad valorem covers the case completely and operates equally and rationally and protectively upon all dyes imported. And, I dare say, this will more than cover the differential between the regular prices of identical dyes abroad and in the home market. Of course, the specific duty of 7 cents per pound applies to all imported dyes

The only other point for the embargo advanced by the Synthetic-Organic Chemical Manufacturers' Association is the claim advanced by Mr. Garvan that if the importation of dyes is permitted the Germans "will dump our markets full of their dyes and will spend $30,000,000 in destroying our domestic dye industry." This is the same false cry that enormous quantities of German dyes were being accumulated to "dump on the American market" which induced Congress to enact the embargo provisions of the emergency tariff act. It has been proven that this claim was merely a myth, and the foundations of Mr. Garvan's statements are equally mythical. His premise is fictitious, and his opinion and conclusions are equally fictious. They are unworthy of the credence or consideration of the Senate.

The men who are clamoring for dye embargoes are not the men who established the dye industry in this country. They are the tyros, the newcomers, the adventurers, and the "get-rich-quick" artists who have supplanted the men who established and developed the business, and having gotten control of the leading plants at inflated prices they are reaching out to establish and maintain a monopoly in this courtry, and are really more concerned with embargoes and prohibitions than they are with the legitimate business of making and marketing

The fact that these dye interests are still clamoring for an embargo merely signifies that they are not satisfied with the demands which they made upon Congress in 1919, and which have been effectually granted, but that they are in fact insatiate, that their greed grows upon that which it feeds on, and that the more of embargoes they have the more of embargoes they want, and that the voracity they have developed craves embargoes and then more embargoes and more embargoes ad infinitum. How much of embargoes does it take to satisfy the avarice of these interests? They have been feeding and growing upon embargoes de facto and de jure for eight years, since the outbreak of the German war in 1914. The business has been so profitable that the men who worked and established the American dye industry have been induced by financiers who desire to exploit the industry to sell their plants at enormous prices and the industry, or at least that part of the industry-which is clamoring for embargo, is now dominated by men whose primary purpose is not the making of dyes but the grabbing of dollars, and who have become so overgrown with profits that they shrink at the very thought of meeting any fair competition in the business. They appeal to Congress for protection, for protection of profits, for protection of their special privileges.

We had just as well put an end to these insatiate demands at this time because the embargo has already operated for a longer period of time than was contemplated by Congress and as long as the proponents of the embargo had either right or reason to expect it to operate.

It is time, I assert, when the trade in dyes and colors and textiles should be left free to men whom the law recognizes as traders, and who will obey the laws of trade and pay the taxes of trade for the support of the Government. It is time that we should take summary measures to cut away this last vestige of of bureaucratic control of business which hangs over as an aftermath of the war and permit the dye trade to adjust itself as a trade relieved, as are the other trades, from the blight and hindrance of bureaucratic direction and dominance.

I submit in all candor that it is time for the Senate to say to these concerns with such a plethora of money that they can spend a million dollars in chemical education and embargo propaganda, that we are not convinced that an embargo is necessary, or that an embargo is either prudent or politic from any consideration of the welfare of the country, and that we will not be hoodwinked or deceived even by the representations of men who have been paid an hundred thousand dollars to en-lighten us, and who have rendered the dye combination legislative instruction and advice which the dye combine may regard as value received for the money it has paid out upon the assurance that this embargo legislation would be forthcoming.

This embargo legislation is not necessary for the development of the American industry. If new dyes be discovered or new processes be invented, our patent laws will afford ample protection and our patent conventions with foreign countries will give the American patentees not only a domestic monopoly but a world monopoly for their new discoveries.

For the last five years we have had a clear balance of dye exports over imports. In other words, in these years the American industry has enjoyed a wider market than the American market, so that the importation of a few foreign colors means nothing, as it has been greatly overbalanced by exports of dyes to foreign countries. Moreover, I submit that imports up to the amount of 10 per cent of the domestic conimports up to the amount of 10 per cent of the sumption of any article are salutary and desirable from the standpoint of the economy of the country, for the purpose of stabilizing prices, coordinating our markets with the world market, and the maintaining of temperate and rational condi-tions in the trade. Without a reasonable quantity of imports the quality of our own productions will decline and prices in our own markets will be subject to inflation and disturbance. The tariff itself will cause the maintenance of American prices at such price levels above the world market as may be regarded as necessary for the protection of our industries. There is neither reason or need for imposing an embargo against the importation of wholesome and desirable articles of commerce.

There are those who affect to believe that the embargo is a great national policy, and somebody, entertaining these views, has apparently prevailed upon a majority of the majority members of the Finance Committee to bring in the amendment to the pending bill which in section 531 provides "that the dye and chemical control act of 1921, approved May 27, 1921, as amended, shall continue in force for one year after date of passage of this act." This scheme is a continuation of the bureaucratic control of business which grew out of the war. There are those who claim that this was one of the main factors which caused the change in the administration of the Government which was voted by the country in the 1920 elections.

The country is weary of bueaucratic control of business. The country expects that the promises of the administration to get the Government out of business shall be kept. And what does this embargo policy mean in the final analysis? Or, rather, what has this policy meant? And, what is it in its actual application, as it exists to-day in regard to the importation of dyes? A true picture of the thing that some call a great national policy, or the will of Congress, shows that a so-called assistant chief of the Customs Division of the Treasury, who was formerly a bank clerk, having had no connection with, or knowledge of, the textile industry, or the production or marketing of dyes, is undertaking by himself to say to the woolen mills and the cotton and the silk mills and the knitting mills of the country what dyes they may or may not have to color the fabrics which they prepare for the American market. The great textile industry of this country has come to a sorry pass when one little man has the power to tell them what they may and may not use in the way of dyestuffs.

It is one of the absurdities of Bolshevism that the Government or the dictatorship of the proletariat is to dictate to the people what we may or may not eat, what we may or may not wear, what we may or may not do, thus destroying that liberty of the will which is the right of free men everywhere and by which we indulge our tastes as to what we want and what we will have, not only in the food we eat, but in the colors of our headwear and neckwear and underwear, of our shirts and coats and trousers and shoes, and of the dresses and hoslery and paraphernalia of the women of our country. Any power which assumes to arbitrarily determine what may or may not be produced in a country is an intolerable despotism.

There is nothing known to mankind that is as subtle and inexplicable as the tastes of men and women, particularly as manifested in the colors of clothing and in the flavors of the food and confections which the public demands. And there is no more difficult and intricate task than the business of catering to all these various and multifarious tastes and desires of the public. It is an intolerable despotism that the law or the Government, much less one little bureaucrat upon his stool in a Government office, should be invested with the legal power and should assume to say to those enterprises and businessmen who cater to the taste of the public what colors they may use in their clothes, what flavors they may have in their foods and confections, and what shall be the source of the medicines they may demand in case of sickness.

Since the bureaucratic control of imports was established during the war I am informed that the bureau of imports of the War Trade Board, which has now become the chief of the dye and chemical control section of the Treasury, has issued 216,372 separate licenses for the import of commodities into the United States; and although the war has been over since 1918, we find that this license system continues as to the importation of dyes and chemicals, and that in the three years since July 1, 1919, 29,889 applications for permission to import chemicals and dyes have been acted upon by the dye and chemical control section, and that since May 28, 1921, when the so-called Knox embargo amendment to the emergency tariff act was adopted, the applications to import chemicals and dyes which have been granted by the dye and chemical control section amount to 7,175 in number. And no information is at hand as to the number of applications which have been and are cur-rently being made. These figures indicate, however, that applications granted amount to at least 7,000 a year, which indicates the great number of special arrangements which must be made by persons engaged in the textile, hat, paper, leather, printing, and other trades in order to get the necessary dyes and colors of their business. When it is considered that many of these or their business. When it is considered that many or these applications call for special lots of select dyes in quantities of 5, 10, 20, 50, 75, and 100 pounds, the whole scheme is revealed as an intolerable nuisance. Of this there has been ample testimony produced before the committees of Congress, a proper consideration of which should constrain Congress to make an end to this iniquitous and exasperating scheme. only must the user of dyes file a formal application for the dye he desires to import, representing that the dye is not produced in this country, and then wait to have the question as to whether this dye or a substitute therefor is produced in the country passed upon by a bureaucrat who is himself without technical experience or qualifications and who is without the assistance of qualified technical and professional advice, but after a license is issued the same must be placed in the hands of an importer, who must place an order for the dye in Switzerland or Germany or England, and often months elapse before the required color comes to hand.

However, it should be stated that the entire quantity of dyes imported is very small. While the number of licenses granted seems considerable, many of them relate to but a very few pounds of dyes or a very small quantity of medicines or drugs

It is a favorite practice of both the embargo propagandists and others in the want of sound reasons to support their propaand others in the want of sound reasons to support their propaganda, to tell us what is done in this country and that country abroad. One of the distinctions of our political history has been that we have always been in favor of an American policy for America. We have considered our own problem in the light of our best experience and judgment and sought to apply the remedy which the case calls for without regard to the practice or policy of other countries. At least this was the practice of the founders of the Government and their immediate successors. The most vicious things in the modern legislation of this country, and from which the country to-day is suffering, may be traced to the endeavor to imitate continental legislation or to apply continental legislation in this country. And the noxious brands of propaganda which are now infecting the country, vitiating public opinion and beclouding the minds of the people, have their origin in the fetid and unwholesome agitations. tions of the European politics.

The Senator from Ohio [Mr. POMERENE] earlier in my remarks brought my attention to the claim that other countries had an embargo.

The dye embargoist does glibly tell us that England has an embargo, that France has an embargo, that Italy has an embargo, and even that Japan has an embargo as affording conclusive reasons why we should have an embargo in the United This is their consummate argument or lack of argu-States. States. This is their consumant against drawn from American conditions and requirements, but merely say that Europe has an embargo and therefore we should have an embargo. But let us examine these so-called embargoes abroad and differentiate them from the embargo proposed in the pending bill.

In England there are no duties on the importation of dye-stuffs—that is to say, dyes and dyestuffs where their import is permitted are free—and there is no form of protection by way of tariff duties afforded the British manufacturer of dyes. In order to contrast the British act with the provisions of the pending bill, I present to the Senate at this time the text of the British law:

pending bill, I present to the Senate at this time the text of the British law:

CHAPTER 77.

An act to regulate the importation of dyestuffs (23d December, 1920).
Be 4t enacted by the Kiny's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the adithority of the same, as follows:

1. (1) With a view to the safeguarding of the dye-making industry, the importation into the United Kingdom of the following goods—that is to may, all synthetic organic dyestuffs, colors and coloring matters, and all organic intermediate products used in the manufacture of any such dyestuffs, colors, or coloring matters shall be prohibited.

(2) Goods prohibited to be imported by virtue of this act shall be deemed to be included among the goods enumerated and described in the table of prohibiteds and restrictions inward contained in section 42 of the customs consolidation act, 1876, and the provisions of that act and of any act amending or extending that act shall spiply accordingly.

2. (1) The board of trade have power by license to authorize, either generally or in any particular case, the importation of any of the goods, or any class or description of the goods, prohibited to be imported by virtue of this act.

(2) A license granted under this section shall not be transferable.

(3) For the purpose of advising them with respect to the granting of licenses, the board shall constitute a committee consisting of five persons concerned in the trades in which goods of the class prohibited to be imported by this act are used, three persons ont directly concerned as aforessid.

Such one of the three last-mentioned persons as the board shall appoint shall be chairman of the committee are satisfied that the goods to which this application relates are satisfied that the goods to which this application relates are satisfied that the goods to which this application on the ground that he is prejudiced, owing to the fact that such member or m transshipment.

4. Anything authorized under this act to be done by the board of trade may be done by the president or a secretary or assistant secretary of the board or by any person authorized in that behalf by the president of the board.

5. (1) The provisions of this act shall continue in force for a period of 10 years from the commencement thereof and no longer.

(2) This act may be cited as the dyestuffs (import regulation) act, 1920.

(3) This act shall come into operation on the 15th day of January, 1921.

An examination of the text of the British act discloses that the prohibition of imports is restricted to "synthetic organic dyestuffs, colors, and coloring matters, and all organic intermediate products used in the manufacture of any such dyestuffs." In other words, the prohibition of imports does not extend to any chemicals, drugs, pharmaceuticals, or other materials of synthetic or organic derivation from coal tar or other origin, but applies only to dyestuffs, colors, and coloring matters of synthetic organic derivation.

The British act is distinctively and exclusively a prohibition on the importation of coal-tar dyestuffs. The prohibition, however, is subject to the power vested in the board of trade to license importation, but the board is required to license the importation of any article that is produced in the British dominions, and has discretion to grant licenses for the importation of dyes from other countries. Moreover, this discretion is not controlled by any statutory prescriptions. The board of trade has plenary and unqualified discretion in such matters. There is an advisory committee to consult with the board with relation to the issuance of licenses and the act requires that this committee shall consist of persons who are concerned in the trade of the dye maker and dye user and of other persons who are not concerned in such trades. But the powers of this committee are entirely advisory. The board is authorized to charge a fee not exceeding £5 for licenses to import dyes. Moreover, any applicant for a license may object to any member or memhers of the committee dealing with his application if such member or members is or are trade competitors, and if the objection is sustained by the committee such members must withdraw from consideration of the application and shall not have access to any information or documents concerning it.

The matter of licenses is not controlled by any inside ring in the trade, and no member of the committee is permitted to deal with his competitor's application. Moreover, the board of trade has power to permit the importation of dyestuffs without limit as to quantity or as to kinds, which thus permits the providing of adequate stocks of dyes to supply the current demands of the trade. And this is the way the law is administered for the benefit of the British textile trade, although London is ouly a day from the Germon dye markets in Hamburg and Frankfurt. But in the United States we are so dumb in yielding to the importunities of propagandists that we have a dye embargo here which leaves the Government no discretion to permit the importation of stocks of dyes to be held to supply the current demands of trade, although it actually takes weeks, if not months, to get dyes from Germany or Switzerland on small orders, and in the meantime valuable business is lost and the mills are put to the exasperation of delays and of dealing with persons who act arbitrarily, and seem to be more concerned with holding up the course of trade than with facilitating the commerce of the country.

There were peculiar reasons which impelled the British Parliament to pass the act to regulate the importation of dyestuffs on the 23d of December, 1920; reasons which I would like to further observe have no application to conditions in this country. The British Government is in the dye-making business. When the British Dyestuff Corporation (Ltd.) was formed in March, 1915, the British Government subscribed £1,700,000 of the share capital. To promote the flotation of this company the British Government undertook to advance £1 for every pound of share capital subscribed by the public up to £1,000,000, and thereafter a further £1 for every £4 of additional share capital subscribed up to a maximum of £500,990. The amount actually invested by the Government, as indicated above, is £1,700,000, which amounted to three-fifths of the entire capital of the company, thus giving the British Government the dominating investment in the business.

The result of these transactions was that the British Dyes (Ltd.) and Levinstein's (Ltd.) occupied practically the entire British dye field. Levinstein (Ltd.) afterwards sold the recipe for making synthetic indigo to the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for $1,250,000. Plans were later perfected for the amalgamation of British Dyes (Ltd.) and Levinstein (Ltd.) into a new corporation denominated British Dyestuffs Corporation. This scheme was the direct promotion of the British Board of Trade. The plan called for great augmentation in the capital and the floating of the necessary securities in the public investment market. The prospectus issued by the board of trade guaranteed to purchasers of the new shares a 10-year embargo against the import of foreign dyes. Public subscriptions of the new securities amounted to $25,000,000. The amalgamation of the British Dyes (Ltd.) and Levinstein (Ltd.)

into the new British Dyestuffs Corporation was actually effected in July, 1919. Before this plan was effected the president of the board of trade stated in the House of Commons on the 15th of May, 1918, thatin order to safeguard this particular industry, * * * the importa-tion of all dyestuffs shall be controlled by a system of licenses for a period of not less than 10 years after the war.

Accordingly the bill for the act to regulate the Importation of dyestum's was brought into Parliament by the board of trade with the support of the Government. The bill provoked opposition, but the Government was constrained to pass the same because of the pledges which had been made to subscribers of the shares of the British Dyestuffs Corporation that an embargo would be granted.

Lord Moulton, in the debate on the passage of this bill in the House of Lords on December 21, 1920, said:

Remember that you can not shut your eyes to the fact that irregular or not, the Government pledged this protection to the industry and allowed millions to be subscribed on the face of that pledge. It was put in the prospectus with the direct consent and approbation of the Government itself. You can not abut your eyes to this, that if you are going to say that the Government is not bound under the circumstances to give if that protection, you have given a blow to the trust of the English people in the good faith, not only of the Government but of the nation, from which they will never recover.

When the bill was in the House of Commons on the 15th of November, 1920, Mr. David Lloyd-George, Prime Minister, re-garded the pledges in the prospectus of the British Dyestuffs Corporation as a Government obligation and explained the position of the Government thus:

As to the second part, the Government is prepared to give an undertaking that the first measure to be dealt with in the coming session will include the Government's proposal for carrying out their pledges in this matter, and their obligations as contained in the prospectus of the British Dyestuffs Corporation.

And on December 17, two days later, Sir R. Horne, then president of the board of trade, made the following statement in the House of Commons:

in the House of Commons:

We are now in the year 1920, and I submit with complete confidence to the House that when there was issued, with the acquiescence, knowledge, and consent of the Government, a prospectus which asks for money from the public with no suggestion of imitation of profit, it would be nothing short of a gross breach of faith if to-day you sought to impose such a restriction. Further, all public confidence in respect of companies formed for the assistance of our country would be destroyed if we once began to deal in that way with what after all are matters of public faith. It is further true that more woncy will be required in the future for the support of this dye industry and you chances of getting any from the public, which you have once chested and deceived, will be very slight indeed.

Objections were avered against the bill that no limitation of Objections were urged against the bill that no limitation of profits was prescribed and that no provision was made that any of the funds of the corporation be employed for research. But the Government regarded these points and the amendments offered to make provision for them as material variations from the prospectus given to the public and the amendments were not accepted. The controlling reason ascribed for the enactment of the act to regulate the importation of dyestuffs was the redemption of the promises of the Government to the persons who had subscribed part of the share capital to supplement the already heavy investments of the Government in the dye industry. But during the debate a great many points were made against the policy of the measure which were not controverted by the majority, which, as indicated above, put the whole burden of their action upon the public pledges that had been given. It was urged against the bill that a licensing system can not prevent unfairness, breeds corruption, and creates bureaucrats whose vanity and inexperience are easily preyed upon by interested parties.

I pause to observe that this was a point well taken. The vanity and inexperience, not to say the arrogance and ignorance, that we encounter in the bureaucracy that infests the executive offices in this city is intolerable, and the humiliation to which men of enterprise and affairs are subjected by being compelled to submit questions affecting the conduct of their private affairs to vain, inexperienced, and often ignorant and arrogant bureaucrats is a condition which calls for remedy and relief. We ought to go over the statutes creating these bureaus with a blue pencil and excise from the law of the land every provision that savors of burehucracy or authorizes, directly or by inference, bureaucratic control of the affairs of the people. It was objected in the House of Commons that the dye control act would jeopardize the foreign textile trade of Great Britain, which is regarded as the backbone of British foreign trade, and that the bill would put the British textile trades at a disadvantage when competing in foreign markets with countries which have unrestricted access to the German colors. It was shown that the large majority of textile manufacturers were opposed to the bill, and furthermore it was shown that the German dye industry was not built up by protection and subsi-dies but by patient application and diligent research, and that a self-sustaining and permanent dye industry could not be built up in Great Britain by any other means.

Bureaucracy can not be cured of its inevitable evils by merely changing the personnel of the bureaucrats. And it, moreover, can not be cured by the reform or good intentions of the bureaucrats. The thing is inherently wrong and is not susceptible of radical improvement. Bureaucratic control of business is especially reprehensible. No man is qualified to have the management of any business unless he assumes responsibility for the revenues of the business. He must know that he has to earn before he can spend or rather that every dollar laid out in expenditures must be so laid out that it will return with a profit in the revenues of the business. The bureaucrats who run government enterprises have no such responsibility. They spend money freely enough, but have no responsibility for raising money, and the inevitable result is deficits and bankruptcy. We have had ample demonstration of this fact in the Government administration of the railroads and in the Government building and operation of ships. The whole thing is a colossal blunder and a failure which ought to have been foreseen and forestalled.

The embarkation of the British Government into a monopolistic enterprise for the making of dyes in England has worked the inevitable results of bureaucracy.

The British Dyestuffs Corporation for the fiscal year ending October 1 last had a deficit of £1,066,660. Dr. Herbert Levinstein has resigned as a member of the board of directors of the corporation. Doctor Levinstein is one of the most experienced men in England in the dyestuff manufacture, and his resignamen in England in the dyestum manufacture, and his resigna-tion is due to the fact that he realizes the hopelessness of bureaucratic control and is unwilling to assume further re-sponsibility for the blunders and mistakes of the political control that is exercised over the affairs of the corporation. When the question was recently asked in the House of Com-mons as to whether the Government members on the board of the company were equipped with expert knowledge and practical experience the president of the board of trade replied that the Government representatives had much experience in the direction of large commercial and industrial undertakings.

I do not regard dethiled technical knowledge-Said he-as necessary in the case of government directors.

I presume that the only qualification for Government or political directors in business is that the persons shall have had such connection with financial affairs as to be able to quickly expend vast sums of money. This, I must say in all candor, seems to have been the principal qualification of the men who have had the management of the corporations which Congress has authorized it disupplied with Government funds almost without limit. It is also have spent and spent and spent without care or forekr. It degrees as to whether the money they were laying out so lavishly would possibly come back in the returns or revenues of the business. They come to Congress with huge deficits and we vote great supply bills to take care of the blundering course of these bureaucrats. And this system will continue as long as we permit Government moneys to be used. continue as long as we permit Government moneys to be used in the field which properly belongs to private enterprise and industry.

But to recur to the subject of the consequences of bureau-cratic control of dye production and importation of dyestuffs in England. A dispatch from London, dated May 26, ultimo, to the Daily News Record, of New York; reports the chairman of the British Cotton and Wool Dyers' Association as having said at a general meeting of the corporation at Manchester that many orders for dyed yarns and cloth and printed calicoes are finding their way into the hands of continental dyers and calico printers, with a loss to thousands of British workers, as practically all these goods are subsequently shipped direct from continental ports to India and other markets. This situation has been acute for months, and is reflected in articles which appeared in the Manchester Dally Dispatch on February 17 and 18, last, which I ask may be inserted in the Record without reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so

[Reprint from the Manchester Daily Dispatch, February 17, 1922.]

WHAT THE EMBARGO SYSTEM IS DOING FOR THE BRITISH TEXTILE IN-DUSTRY—BLOW TO OUR DYSING—LANCASHIES TRADE IN HANDS OF DUTCH AND GERMANS.

"The British dyeing industry is being killed as the result of the limitation and delays caused by the licensing committee. Foreign manufacturers, who suffer no restrictions as to the dyes they shall use, are capturing all our export trade.

"The British dyer is compelled to use British dyes, no matter how inferfor may be their quality and how useless for his purposes. The trouble is that the work of the licensing committee is drifting into the hands of officials who have no knowledge of the trade beyond what they learned under war conditions."

In these terms a leading member of the Lancashire dyeing trade described to a Dally Dispatch representative the grave position with which the industry is faced.

The most serious feature is the fact that the dyeing industry is moving to the Continent. The following is the course of this latest development:

moving to the Continent. The following is the course of this latest development:

1. German establishments are now engaged, almost exclusively in some cases, in printing and dyeing Lancashire piece goods.

2. English goods are going to Holland to be finished and packed at a little more than half the British charges.

The last-named development takes effect in the following way:
Material dyed and printed in Holland.
Folding and packing done in Holland.
Bales and cases made by Dutch workmen.

Transport carried out by Dutch workers.

Finished product shipped to the Far East in Dutch vessels.

"Many of the firms whose businesses are being strangled by the obstructionist methods of the committee," said car informant, "have invested large as in the British dyestuffs industry and therefore would be gla supply the home product if it could be made to give satisfaction. Luck there is no doubt that in the vast majority of cases the British dye is not comparable in price, strength, and quality to the German article, and dyers absolutely decline to use it.

REAMS OF CORRESPONDENCE.

"Firms all over the country are striving to recapture their export trade from foreign competitors. The latter, with full access to German dyes, can make prompt delivery of fully satisfactory material at half the price the home manufacturer can quote.

"If the British maker is lucky enough to obtain a contract he has to set about the protracted business of securing a license to import German dyes. This may generally be calculated to occupy three or four months.

"The committee is perfectly willing to go on writing letters as long as the applicant will write to them. Very often he gets wearled, and has to manage with a British dye which is not only costly but quite unsuited to his purposes, in which case British reputation suffers and subsequently orders go to the foreigner.

"The licensing committee can only reiterate in answer to every appeal that it regrets it is unable to grant the license to import German dyes because it understands there is a suitable British product available. The statement is made in letters written mouth after month to firms who, after years of experience, know that only German dyes will meet their requirements, and who demonstrate to the committee the utter uselessness of the British dyes.

"There is an establishment in Germany at the present moment that is exclusively engaged in printing and dyeing Lancashire cotton goods.

"Shippers are sending thousands of yards of material to be similarly treated in Holland, for the Dutch dyer's charge, including transport, is little more than half what the British dyer can afford to quote. "Our ahipping, expentry, transport, and dyeing trades all have vast numbers of unemployed for whom work could be found if the irritating restrictions of the dyestuffs act were removed.

"We could bring about a trade revival with a speed that most people would think incredible if we were given freedom of action. If the regime of the licensing committee is not terminated one can only see extinction abead."

would think incredible if we were given freedom of action. If the regime of the licensing committee is not terminated one can only see extinction ahead."

Our informant produced numerous files of correspondence in relation to applications for import licenses. A firm of ink, stain, and polish manufacturers withdrew their application after debating the question with the committee for seven months last year. The firm stated that only a particular ferman dye would suit their needs, as perfect solubility was required. The committee, in several letters, referred them to a British product which they understood to be suitable, though the firm repeatedly pointed out that they had been acquainted with the dye indicated for years and that they were unable to use it on account of its insolubilit.

A Lancashire dyer, who after a long period of business depression obtained a contract to supply many thousand yards of a dyed drill per week, is unable to deliver the order to specification and is threatend with penalties for breach of contract in consequence of an import license being denied him. The contract was obtained in the face of heavy competition from Belgium and Holland.

OPPICIAL PATUITY.

The first application was made months ago, and the committee referred him to a British dye. A sample was tested by an expert, who found it was not a match in shade, strength, or properties. It was a mixture of at least three colors, whereas a uniform dye, consisting of only one ingredient, was required. If the all sorts of objections a license for 120 pounds, a week's supply, was granted three months later.

As continuity of supply was the dyer's first requirement, he wrote to the licensing committee pointing out that the case had been debated over a period of more than three months and presumably was settled. Quite recently the committee replied that they were unable to grant further licenses for this color, as the British dye makers had brought out a matching stade. This is the same as the one which was proved at the outset to be useless.

The dyer has the gray yara in his store, his men are walking the streets of a Lancashire town, and his looms are idle.

"We want to support the British dye industry wherever possible," said our informant, but where it is proved that British dye is hopelessly outclassed, ought we to be compelled to use it to the ruin of our own trade and the injury of general industry?

"If British dyestuff makers had concentrated on a few lines which they could make satisfactorily instead of trying to compete with all the German range, the industry might have been developed successfully. Instead of that they have tried to compete with the most highly capitalized and highly organized industry in the world, the Interessen Gemeinschaft of Germany, and have made a mess of almost everything.

"To make dyes you have got to make a multitude of other things.

highly capitalised and highly organized industry in the world, the Interessen Gemeinschaft of Germany, and have made a mess of almost everything.

"To make dyes you have got to make a multitude of other things, and it is on the completeness of your arrangements for the disposal of your by-products that the price at which you can sell depends. One department of the German combination is said to obtain such a price for its by-products that it could afford to give its dyes away. Another has discovered a way for making photographer's 'hypo' from the effluent of sulphur dye for cotton blacks, and this, of course, has a material effect on the price at which the dye can be marketed." WHAT THE EMBARGO SYSTEM IS DOING FOR THE BRITISH TEXTILE INDUSTRY—CUT THE DYSS CORDON—TRADS BARY THAT IS KILLING PARENT INDUSTRY—REPEAL HINT—GERMANY'S BRIES TO BET BUT

Business men throughout the country welcomed the Daily Dispatch's article yesterday, exposing the injury inflicted on the country's trade by the dilatory methods of the dyestuffs licensing committee. With one accord Lancashire dyers and members of the country's textile trade express approval of the article. "We have needed someone to voice our case for a long time," said a leading figure in Lancashire industry to the Daily Dispatch yesterday.

"You have revealed all the anomalies and official stupidities which have been strangling trade ever since the dyestuffs act came into operation. Your wording was not a bit too strong, and business men in London and the far north have been in communication with me to-day and have said how cordially they support your attitude."

The information comes from an official source that the dyestuffs act will not exist much longer, but no one cares to state exactly when a period will be put to its operation.

It is interesting to note that the licensing committee, which ast in Manchester yesterday, granted a license to a Lancashire manufacturer who had suffered inconvenience and loss for a long time through the withholding of permission to import German dyes. This is the manufacturer who, as we stated yesterday, was under contract to supply 25,000 yards of material a week, whose men have been idle and he himself threatened with heavy penalties for breach of undertaking.

GOODS RETECTED

The manufacturer was assured by the committee yesterday that there would be no further difficulty placed in the way of his obtaining supplies. His need is so urgent that he immediately cabled to Germany for supplies to be dispatched by passenger train.

In the meantime he has had thomsands of yards of a material dyed with the substitute British product thrown back on his hands, the laferior finish making it useless to the prospective purchaser.

A perli perhaps even greater from its disastrous potentialities than the present migration of our trade to the Continent is the inducement which foreign nations are holding out to our expert workmen to so abroad and teach them the business. Holland, Germany, Belgium, South America, and even Japan, are learning how to make those goods on the supply of which this country, and Lancashire in particular, formerly thrived.

Germany knows how to make dyes, but admits that her workmen can not be compared to the expert Lancashire operatives in the application of them. Other competing countries suffer similarly.

But they are commercially shrewd, and while their dyeing works and kindred establishments are working at full capacity, supply the orders which the shilly-shallying methods and short-sightedness of the licensing committee are losing to British trade, they are tempting the unemployed but clever British workmen to make them expert, too. The menace to the future of British commerce needs no further demonstration.

FREEDOM FIRST.

"The Government are trying to bolster up a concern with a capital of over nine millions, and they are hampering British industry graily to the tune of hundreds of millions a year," said a prominent Lancashire business man yesterday.

"Our extremity is so great that we feel if the Government insist on this policy (continuing the safeguarding of industries and dyestuffs acts) it would pay the Lancashire and Vorkshire textile manufacturers collectively to guarantee the dividend on the capital of the British dye industry in order to be assured of freedom to buy supplies where they like. The tax per hundred thousand yards of cloth would be infinitesimal, and in any case manufacturers would be willing to incur considerable liability in order to be released from the licensing committee's stranglehold.

"It is fatuous to declare that the dyestuffs is a key industry at all nuless you can imagine Britain again being reduced to the state of isolation in which she found herself during the war.

"Yet it is a fact that if the whole of the dyestuffs plant available were turned onto the manufacturer of T. N. T. it could only make a very low percentage—a single-figure one—of the nation's requirements, based on the quantities in the Great War.

"Business men are compelled to put to themselves the question: 'Is the country's whole commercial prestige to be shattered in order to provide for a problematical contingency, and one not likely to occur in our lifetime!"

"It would be less costly to pay a subsidy to maintain the plant even for these problematical war purposes. We want to see the British dve industry prosperous but we will not allow the whole cabite in our lifetime?"

"It would be less costly to pay a subsidy to maintain the plant even for these problematical war purposes. We want to see the British dye industry prosperous, but we will not allow the whole fabric of our trade to be destroyed on account of it. If it is an advantage for the country to be in a state of preparedness for war, the burden of maintenance should be borne by the whole community and not by struggling trade." LURE TO WORKERS, struggling trade."

LURE TO WORKERS.

Mr. J. Hinchley, the secretary of the Foremen's Guild of the Dyeing and Calico Printing Trade, outlines the tempting inducements which are being held out by foreign manufacturers to British workmen:

"Every worker in the cotton trade should seriously consider yeater-day's article in the Daily Dispatch." he says.

"We are all concerned in the future of trade, and to-day I think we are losing, through the folly of the act, our foreign business. We have 2,000 foremen in our guild, and they embrace some of the cleverest men in the trade, men who are skilled in calico printing and dyeing. The foreigner knows this and also knows how we are fixed for our dye supplies.

"So huge offers are made to our men to go out. Some foremen have gone, and others are considering proposals that have been made to them. If is a great temptation to young fellows who have seen some of the world to go abroad where they are free from the harassing conditions we have to stand here.

"To-day manufacturers and dyers and printers are working to perhaps not more than 50 to 60 per cent of the normal, and I fancy the Germans are quietly chuckling over our difficulties. We can not get dyes to match, the quantity of cloth rejected grows, and the operatives are at their wits' end to deal with the problem. The German price is about one-third of ours, and the dyes give a better result.

"So acute is the position that one firm of which I know has sent 20,000" lumps' to Germany to be dyed during the last few months.

"Helgium has got her famous copper rolls, buried during the war, into operation again, and her factories are working about 16 hours perday. A firm in Brussels is asking for a good English foreman to take Mr. Hinchley added that a Japanese firm had offered a fabulous figure for a foreman, and Indian firms were also prepared to pay heavily.

Mr. KING. It was inevitable that the question of the repeal

Mr. KING. It was inevitable that the question of the repeal of the act to regulate the importation of dyestuffs should be brought up in Parliament, nothwithstanding that the act is a policy of the present Government and there are political impediments to its repeal. On March 15 last in the House of Commons Mr. Remer, of Macclesfield, asked leave to bring in a bill to repeal the dyestuffs embargo act. In support of his proposal he said, as reported in the issue of the Manchester Guardian of March 16—may this be inserted without reading? The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it will be

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it will be so ordered.

It may be that some honorable members who cheer think that I have changed my opinion. [Opposition cheers.] I am still in favor of protection of efficient industries, but I will not allow this act to be loisted upon me as an example of protectionist legislation. [Opposition cheers.] I am not in favor of any form of protection which has for its object mere profiteering purposes, but only for the purpose of preventing efficient industries from being driven abroad to foreign countries. This act is mere prohibition. Importation being by license, it does not provide real protection. I submit that the dyes industry, which was introduced into this country during the war, has by this act been proved beyond any manner of doubt to be a thoroughly inefficient industry.

British Dyes (Ltd.) have charged monstrous prices for very inefficient material lopposition cheers], and in spite of that fact have been unable to make any profits. [Opposition cheers.] Some years go an act of Parliament was passed, known as the patents act, introduced by the present Prime Minister, then president of the board of trade, and one of the industries which was established in this country as the result of that act was a factory to make what is known as synthetic indigo. That factory is now owned by British Dyes (Ltd.). They charge 2s. per pound for this synthetic indigo, whereas the same material can be purchased from abroad at 8d. per pound. If protection be necessary for the dye industry, why is it not also necessary for the dye industry, why is it not also necessary for the dye industry, why is it not also necessary for the dye industry, why is it not also necessary for the dye industry why is it not also necessary for the dye industry why is it not also necessary for the dye industry why is it not also necessary for the dye industry of a permit to buy 1 ton of lythol red B. M. powder from Germany at 9s. per pound. This was refused, and they were told to use an Engish substitute of dwee makes by tous of dry lake color, and the difference at £3s per ton is £708.

The letter goes on to say:

"What those people do not realize and refuse to see is that the consequences were (1) our customer bought abroad and we lost the business altogether; (2) our work people would have had a full three weeks work, and we have been on short time since October; (3) to people like ourselves aniline dyes of the high class are our raw material as much as coal; and (4) they have absolutely killed our foreign business which took 40 years to establish." [Opposition cheers.]

Yet in spite of that fact the goods which they are manufacturing are allowed to come in free and there is no protection whatsoever. There is a still more important reason why I am asking to introduce this bill. The administration of the act has been deplorably bad. [Opposition cheers.] Licenses have not been given to substantial people in the trade, but to men of straw, who have made enormous profits by illiet importation. I say, further, that the administration of the act gives an unfair advantage to trade competitors who are on the licensing committee and who get information as to their competitors' business committee and who get information as to their competitors' business of dyes. If has produced dear dyes and bad dyes. [Opposition cheers.]

Furthermore, I say that British Dyes (Ltd.) has been very badly managed. The people who have been put on the directorate by tha Government have been the wrong people. Whatever other methods may be adopted to protect the day industry, this is the wrong method. Therefore, for these reasons, I ask leave to introduce this bill.

Mr. KING. Mr. Remer is one of the members of the House of

Mr. KING. Mr. Remer is one of the members of the House of Commons who yoted for the passage of the dye embargo act in December, 1920. His position now indicates that he has changed his mind on the question of the feasibility and policy of an embargo against the importation of dyes. It must be remembered that the dye embargo act is a policy of the Government or the present parliamentary majority. But in the division on the bill, to repeal the dye embargo act, many coalition Liberals who nominally support the present Government voted for the bill, or rather, to be more precise, voted to permit the introduction of the bill to repeal the dye embargo act, which is the form the question took in the House of Commons. A number of minis-ters, including Mr. Short, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Munro, and Sir William Sutherland, decided not to vote at all, and, as reported in the British press, "sat out the division on the treasury bench." The fair inference is that these ministers were really in favor of the repeal of the embargo act, but because of the commitments of the Government they were not at liberty to vote in favor of the repeal bill.

The division showed 115 votes for the repeal bill and 197 against leave for its introduction. This vote demonstrates that there is a strong and militant minority definitely determined to repeal the dye embargo act. It is also certain that the real majority opinion in the House of Commons is against the continuation of the embargo and that its repeal is inevitable. embargo has caused the sending of great quantities of British textiles to be dyed and finished in Holland, with consequent tendency toward stagnation in both the British textile and dye industries. The reaction is distinctly against the embargo. The embargo, moreover, has proven to be ineffective, as far as assuring profits on the share capital of the British Dyestuffs. Corporation. I have already stated that the British Dyestuffs Corporation made a large deficit last year, and consequently no dividends were paid or are being paid to the shareholders of the corporation. The embargo has proven to be detrimental to both the teixile and dye trade, and as it is now being realized that it is both futile and fatuous as a means of producing or protecting the profits of the British Dyestuffs Corporataion, the proponents of the embargo will themselves be constrained to abandon the same and it is certain that the Government itself will take measures for its repeal within the near future.

REPARATION DYES THEE

It is claimed by the proponents of the dye embargo in this country that France has an embargo and that therefore the United States should have an embargo. In any consideration of the situation in France we must understand that the French are supersensitive on the question of national defense as against Germany and it is only fair to say that if there is a nation anywhere which will be impelled by a defense policy to foster the dye industry for the purpose of national defense that nation will be France. But the outstanding fact is that the French embargo is primarily an economic policy and is not dictated out of any consideration of national defense.

The French Government has embargoed many other German products besides dyes. Moreover, the French embargo on dyes, chemicals, and drugs applies only to Germany, and great quan titles of these materials are imported from Switzerland free of any embargo restrictions and subject only to the regular imposts. It must also be borne in mind that France is receiving her regular quota of reparation dyes, which amounts to 15 per cent of the amount delivered currently to the Reparations Commission. These dyes are admitted into France free of duty. No licenses are required for the import of dyes from Switzerland, and the Swiss are situated very favorably for delivery of dyes to France. There are also sentimental reasons which cause the French to prefer to buy from the Swiss than from the German. In the calendar year 1914 only one-fifth of the dyes imported into France came from Germany and about 78 per cent, or nearly four-fifths, of the French imports of dyes came from Switzerland. The French dye makers produce three-fourths of the domestic requirements. The fact is that France is receiving to-day from the Reparations Commission more German dyes and these are admitted free of duty-than France received from Germany before the war. This means that France is patronizing the German dye industry to a greater extent than before the war, and that the French policy is wholly one of economics and has no relation to chemical warfare or military defense. France, in other words, is getting all the German dyes she wants or can use from the Reparations Commission, and for these dye imports Germany is given credit against reparations due France, and France procures the dyes on account of the German repara-tions and indemnities and does not have to pay out current funds for the same. These German imports are really a source of revenue to the Government. The French policy in regard to German dyes has no relation to the military defense of France, and is, of course, in no wise a precedent of persuasive value in connection with the action we should take upon the pending bill. The latest information is that the French have made a deal with the German dye interests whereby the Germans furnish the formulæ and chemists for the French dye plants, and the French divide profits with the Germans as to dves made under the agreement.

Dye propagandists in this country in their zeal to impress us with the desirability of an embargo tell us that Italy has an embargo. It is true that the Italian Government on February 3, 1921, a little more than a year ago, promulgated an act pro-hibiting the importation of coal-tar dyes and intermediates.

The language of the Italian act is:

Until otherwise provided the importation of organic synthetic dys-tuffs and of organic intermediate products for the manufacture thereof re prohibited.

The embargo became effective on June 23, 1921. The minister of finance has the power to issue permits for the import of dyestuffs and intermediates.

The act has been in force just a year, and there doubtless have been relatively large imports of foreign dyes under the license of the minister of finance. Italy has neither coal nor the other primary chemicals required for the making of synthetic dyes. The total Italian production of coal-tar dyes for 1919 was 2,000 tons. These consisted almost wholly of sulphur dyes, which are the easiest dyes to manufacture. Sulphur black, for example, is not produced from coal-tar intermediates, but is derived from the chemical treatment of sawdust. Imports of coal-tar dyes in Italy in 1918 were 1,500 tons. At the present time Italy imports about one-half of her dye requirement from foreign countries. The Italian share of the reparation dyes is about equal to the Italian requirements for imported dyes. It is not believed that it will be possible for Italy to establish a synthetic dye industry, and it is certain that the so-called "embargo law" will not be effective for this purpose. As it is to-day, Italy is receiving her necessary quota of foreign dyes from reparation sources, and when deliveries of reparation dyes by the German factories terminate on January 1, 1925, the Italians will have to repeal the embargo or license the importation of the synthetic dyes that are required in that country.

The American attaché in Rome in a letter dated November 12,

Some mushroom dye plants sprang up in Italy during the war, but Italian dyes are makeshifts at the best. They lack the raw material here for the fabrication of aniline dyes even if they possessed the proper scientific technique. Caustic soda must be purchased heavily from abroad.

The Department of Commerce, in a memorandum referring to the Italian dye industry, says:

The Italian artificial-dye industry has made little progress, and even if it is afforded a strong measure of tariff protection there is little reason to expect rapid development in this line. Italy will continue to derive the bulk of its supplies from abroad, as before the war.

The Italian consumption of dyes is so small as compared to the consumption in the United States, and the conditions and facilities for production are so different as between the two countries, that there is no basis for comparison, and no conclusions or inferences can be made from the condition and prospects of the synthetic-dye industry in Italy or from the policy of the Italian Government with respect thereto which have any validity or application to the policy which should be pursued in the United States or to the provisions of the pending bill.

Dye-embargo propagandists have been flippant enough to assert that Japan has an embargo against the importation of foreign dyes. There is no truth in this statement. Japan has no embargo against the importation of foreign dyes. Synthetic dyes are freely imported into Japan, subject only to the payment of the duty of 35 per cent ad valorem. There are no specific duties imposed upon the importation of dyes by Japanese

Japan had a dye embargo, but this was an embargo against the export of dyes from Japan, and the embargo was against the export of either domestic or imported dyes; so that Japanese embargo, the only one ever enforced in Japan, was, as it affected foreign dyes, an embargo against the reexport of such dyes. This was a temporary war measure and has since then been abandoned.

In March, 1915, a commission of the Japanese Government, after a study of the dye industry, present and prospective, of Japan, made an official report recommending that the industry Japan, made an official report recommending that the industry be subsidized. This subsidy was to take the form of Treasury loans at no interest, transport of materials at a discount, and a bounty on production. A bill was drawn accordingly and enacted by the Japanese Diet. Bountles are granted for a term of 10 years to any company producing synthetic dyes the capital to which is subscribed by Japanese subjects.

The bounty amounts to a guaranty of 8 per cent profits per annum on the capital investment in the business. The bounty and investment in the date the company begins available for 10 years from the date the company begins is available for 10 years from the date the company begins business, and there is otherwise no limit on the operation of the law; that is, new companies may enjoy the bounty without regard to the date of organization.

Under these arrangements there has been a great expansion in the Japanese dye industry. In 1920 there were 97 dye plants in Japan, and this number represents quite a reduction in the number of former independent concerns brought about by amalgamation and concentration in the industry.

In 1918 the exports of American dyes to Japan exceeded the pre-war German exports of American dyes to Japan exceeded the pre-war German export of dyes to Japan. In this year Japanese imports of American aniline dyes were 1,392,384 kin, as against importations from Germany of 349 603 kin and from Switzerland of 125,309 kin. Imports from all other countries amounted to about 50,000 kin. A Japanese kin is the equivalent of 11 pounds.

There has been a great slump in the textile trade in Japan and China. The depression was already severe at the beginning of 1920, and this condition, as was inevitable, has reflected itself in a great diminution in the demand for dyes by the Japanese and the Chinese markets. Market conditions, moreover, have been aggravated by the fact that the Japanese and Chinese dye markets are practically the only large open dye markets in the world, open in the sense that they are free from the restrictions of embargo legislation. The embargoes in England, in France, in Italy, in the United States have had the direct effect of forcing great volumes of foreign dyes into the Japanese market at the very time of depression in the textile trade and in commerce generally in that country. American indigo, for example, has gone to Japan to compete with indigo from Germany, England, and France. For the first 10 months of 1921, which are the latest figures available, imports of German in-digo amounted to a little over half of the total indigo imports. The condition in the Japanese dye market is reflected by a statement appearing in the commercial supplement of the Japanese Weekly Chronicle of March 16, 1922:

anese Weekly Chronicle of March 16, 1922:

The dye market in Japan, as noted, has been severely hit by the congested cargoes imported from Germany, America, Switzerland, and France which are sold at a very low figure owing to the keen competition. Accordingly the dealers are now avoiding heavy stocks and comming their transactions to acting as brokers between the direct importers and the actual consumers. The buyers, moreover, are only buying for the actual demands, and the terms of settlement, which used to be 60 days' sight, is now extended to 90 days' sight.

The competitive sale of artificial indigo imported from Germany, Switzerland, America, and France has not been so keen, owing to the low price of German Indigo, which was bought up at the end of last year, and the shortage of the artificial indigo in the market. Since then importing from these countries has been increasing and at the end of February it reached such amounts, in addition to the present stocks, as 400 casks of the French, and the ched of February it reached such amounts, in addition to the present stocks, as 400 casks of the French, and the again finding a difficulty in effecting sales on the market. In spite of its being now the senson for demand of this material in Japan, the market is forced to quote at such low figures as 380 yen for the American and 395 yen for the Swiss, a decline of 50 yen per cask, approximately. Keen competition in this market is naturally expected.

I desire again to say that the conditions in the Japanese and oriental dye markets, particularly as affecting American exports to those markets, are aggravated by embargoes in England, France, and Italy, and the embargo legislation in our own A fair consideration of this situation will preclude we are, of course, primarily concerned with the welfare of our own country, of the dye industry, and of our other industries, and if we must differentiate between them we should differentiate in the order of their economic importance.

In 1920 the production of American dyestuffs reached the high-water mark of 88,000,000 pounds. In 1921 the American dyestuffs sold in the home market, for home consumption, amounted to 45,000,000 pounds. It is an obvious fact that from a poundage standpoint at least the capacity of American dye plants is now double the dye-consuming capacity of the American textile industry. One-half of the poundage of dyes consumed in this country, and in fact in the world, is made up of sulphur black, direct black, or indigo dyes. Our dye plants have specialized in quantity production, particularly of the dyes mentioned and of other dyes of which there is a large quantity consumption.

In the production of sulphur black, direct black, and indigo not only is the capacity of American dye plants equal to double the requirements for domestic consumption but our capacity for the production of these primary dyes is adequate to supply the consumption of the whole world. If our dye industry is to continue in its present proportions, it is inexorable that foreign markets be found for American dyes. If every country in the world, following our example, heeds the cry of its patriotic profiteers and gas-defense fanatics and embargoes dyes, what becomes of the foreign market for American dyes? We are in no position to provoke retaliation or even emulation in dealing with embargo legislation.

Important as the dye industry is, the textile industry of America is many times more important. The value of our dye production for 1917 was $67,000,000 and our average production for the two years of 1920 and 1921 is likewise $67,000,000. Against this the products of the American textile industry in textile and fabric materials for the year 1919 was $5,482,000,000. The value of our normal production of dyes is only 11 per cent of the value of our annual production of textiles and fabric materials. In other words, the annual products of our textile industry have about eighty-two times the value of the annual product of our dye industry. Our textile trades demand relief from the exactions, interferences, and general nulsance of bureaucratic embargo arrangements, and the dye trade itself demands relief from the bureaucratic and arbitrary and illegal interference with the trade upon the part of such organizations of the so-called Textile Alliance, which is assuming to exercise the prerogative of the Government without warrant of law and in illegal extension of its corporate powers. The only reason there is for the consideration of this embargo legislation is that the American Dyes Institute, including the domestic dye manufacturers and many corporations engaged in producing medicinals, drugs, pharmaceuticals, and chemical products, the Chemical Foundation, and the Textile Alliance want and have entered into a conspiracy to obtain it. Our answer to their importunities should be that we will liberate the industries of the United States-the textile trades and the dye trade-from the United States—the textile trades and the dye trade—that bureaucratic direction and domination, and that we will put an end to the war legislation out of which these abnormal condi-tions have arisen and which these propagandists demand shall be perpetuated for their own aggrandizement and without regard to the wealth of the country or the welfare of the people. We may then expect the textile industry and the dye industry to pursue a normal course and reach an adjustment and stability which has already been too long interdicted by the continuation of the abnormal restraints and interferences of the war.

SPEECH

HON. GUY U. HARDY. OF COLORADO.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Wednesday, June 28, 1922.

Mr. HARDY of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, the greatest business institution in all the world is the United States of America. Its one hundred and ten millions of people are its stockholders. They enjoy great liberty and freedom under its laws. and protection from the enemies of liberty within and without the borders of our land. For this we pay the bills. The bills are presented and collected in the shape of various forms of taxes

The Congress may be said to represent the board of directors of this great business institution. The President heads the executive branch of the business In 1918 the people who are stockholders became dissatisfied with the management of their affairs and they changed the board of directors—electing a Republican Congress.

In 1920 the entire executive branch of the Government was changed by the election of a Republican President and another Republican Congress. Only since March 4, 1921, has the entire management of business affairs of the country been in the hands of Republicans. It is quite proper that the stockholders should begin to look into the conduct of their affairs under this new management. They should not expect too much in this short time, but they are entitled to know how things are running.

Representing as I do some 250,000 of these stockholders I am proud, indeed, to make some accounting to them of the trust they and the country have reposed in me and you, my fellow Members.

You can not take a run-down business enterprise anywhere which has been wrecked by wasteful and extravagant management and correct all its faults and put it back on a big-paying basis in a day or year. It requires time for a new management to correct evils, change policies, train new forces of employees and retrain old ones, eliminate wasteful practices, and reorganize the enterprise generally.

This new administration has not done everything that may have been proposed by idealists for it to do.

But it has done in one short year more than any business man would a year ago have seriously predicted it could do.

It has done more toward getting the country back on a solid business basis than any serious-minded campaign orator ever promised the people it would do.

This Republican Copgress and Republican administration

Cut the Nation's debt $1,000,000,000 in one short year. Cut appropriations for expenditures of the Government below what they were for the year ending June 30, 1921, by over $1,000,000,000.

Cut actual expenditures for fiscal year ending June 80, 1922, more than $3,000,000,000 below what they were for year 1920. Cut taxation for this year more than $818,000,000.

Cut the pay roll of the Government, including Army, Navy, and civilians, down from 1,186,052 persons, which it was in 1920, to about 777,000 for this fiscal year.

Adopted a budget system which has been largely responsible for great saving in expenses.

Brought the selling value of your Liberty bonds up to above per, adding about $3,000,000,000 to the value of these issues. Given you the emergency tariff which greatly aided agriculture and stock raising and saved many from bankruptcy.

Revived the War Finance Corporation which has loaned over $350,000,000 and has proved to be of immense value to agricultural sections of the land.

Initiated and led in the great limitation of armament con-ference which is the greatest step yet taken toward world-in personnels of the Army, Navy, and civil lists. These re-

Surely a wonderful record of business achievement. A record of good business management probably never equaled in any

DEMOCRATIC EXTRAVAGANCE AND REPUBLICAN ECONOMY. Let us go back a little ways in looking into the affairs of this big business enterprise.

The Republican Congress that was elected in 1918 was called in special session in May, 1919, to pass the regular appropria-tion bills which the Senate had failed to pass in the outgoing

The eight principal appropriation bills had passed the Democratic House, but got hung up in the Senate. As passed by the Democratic House they amounted to $3,767,975,974. The new Congress took these same bills and cut them down to $2,828,-283,432, saving the country the modest sum of $939,692,541 on its 1920 expenditures.

Before the Budget system was adopted the President con-ferred with heads of departments and sent in a book of estimates, which set forth the amounts these heads of the Government enterprises claimed was necessary for running the Government.

The estimates sent in by President Wilson for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1921 and 1922, were scrutinized closely by Congress and the magnificent sum of $2,950,000,000 was cut out of the estimates. This means that the Congress decides what the Government can or can not spend, and the Republican Congress decided that the Government must be run on a sum $2,950,000,000 less than the President and his department heads said they needed.

So, for these three years the Republican Congress by its economical tendencies saved the country $3,890,000,000—nearly $4,000,000,000—and yet the old country wagged along pretty well under the program adopted by its economical board of

Then the Budget system was adopted by Congress. passed first by a Republican Congress and vetoed by President Wilson. It was reenacted by the present Congress and ap-proved by President Harding. We have been working under the Budget a little over a year. The appropriations for this fiscal year, ending June 30, 1923, were the first passed under the Budget system.

Under President Harding and Budget Director Dawes the estimates got more serious consideration than ever before in the country's history. Everybody worked together to cut down the running expenses of the Government.

The Budget estimates for this fiscal year totaled $3,919,-558,429. The economical Congress cut these down $172,523,046, appropriating for this year the sum of $3,747,035,282.

This is more than a billion dollars less than it cost to run the Government only two years ago. Some saving, I would say.
Glance over this table of expenditures and note how the Republican Congress is paring down the running expenses of the Government from year to year:

THE NATION'S DEST.

The national debt of the country was reduced more than a billion dollars last year, which is a larger sum than the total national debt amounted to before the war.

This is a statement of the national debt:

On June 30, 1921, it was $23, 977, 450, 552, 54 On June 30, 1922, it was 22, 963, 381, 708, 31 1, 014, 062, 844, 23 Reduction THE GOVERNMENT PAY ROLL.

About the hardest thing to do in this world, I have observed, is to get a person off the pay roll of the Government once he or she has enjoyed the luxury of a Government salary. Everybody in the Government and many outside conspire together, it seems, to get folks on the pay roll and to keep them there. But you can not cut expenses without reducing the pay roll.

The war of course was responsible for the creation of many positions and the filling up of all departments with much help. The war was over in 1918. In 1920 the pay roll was still very large. This table shows about what it was July 31, 1920:

YOUR TAXES REDUCED.

This Congress passed laws greatly reducing your Federal taxes. The reduction this year to the taxpayers will amount

The greatest part of this vast saving will come to people of moderate circumstances and will be felt and appreciated in every home in the land.

The "nuisance taxes," those little items you used to have to pay on soda water, ice cream, candy, perfumery, cosmetics, tooth paste, millinery, umbrellas, parasols, stockings, shoes, wearing apparel, and a hundred other necessaries of every-day life have been abolished. You do not pay them any more. You are saved the bother, and you also save about $72,000,000.

The tax on musical instruments has been reduced. The tax on some admission fees has been abolished, and the tax on sporting goods—the tax the kiddles used to pay on footballs, baseballs, fishing tackle, and so forth—was removed, saving you and them the tidy sum of $36,000,000 a year.

you and them the tidy sum of $36,000,000 a year.

The biggest saving of all comes in the tax removed from freight, express, and parcel-post bills. This amounts to about $365,000,000 a year. This tax was unquestionably paid by the ultimate consumer, and its removal certainly reduces the cost of living to the full amount. Another hig item is the $91,000,000 the people paid on their passenger and Pullman fares which they do not never any more.

which they do not pay any more.

Taxes on premiums for life, accident, health, fire, and other insurances amounting to $20,000,000 are removed.

Stockholders in building and loan associations have the first $300 profit each year exempt from income tax, which, of course, is chiefly of benefit to the working and salary people.

The income tax is made more favorable for folks of moderate incomes. The head of a family with an income of $5,000 a year or less gets an additional exemption of $500, and the exemption for dependents is increased from $200 to $400 for each child or dependent. This item alone saves to those of moderate incomes approximately $100,000,000 a year. Over 90 per cent of those making income-tax returns have an income of $5,000 or less, so this item in the tax-reduction program reaches many

Without the economies spoken of before, the cutting down of the pay rolls, the deep slashing of the appropriations bills, and the business-like administration of Government affairs, these tax reductions would have been impossible. Herein is where the stockholders are reaping the practical benefit of better business management.

UNDER THE BUDGET SYSTEM.

L want to assure you that the Congress is the economical branch of our National Government.

The departments are ambitious to serve and to build up their respective establishments. They are constantly seeking, with commendable zeal perhaps, development and new avenues for service with the necessary increases of personnel and appropria-

The Army and Navy people oppose every suggested reduction . in their establishments

The people everywhere urge appropriations for all manner of Government enterprises and local benefits, and the home Congressman usually backs the local demand.

A large class of people—a very large classthat if the Government does it or builds it or buys it or pays for it that it costs no man anything. They seem to think that Government money grows on bushes, to be gathered at will, or is provided by the good Lord in the shape of manna from

But it does not and it is not. Every dollar the Government spends must be collected from you and the people of the country by direct taxation.

While many departments and many people urge greater Government activities and greater appropriations, they are at the same time urgin₄ retrenchment, economy, and lower taxes.

You can not increase appropriations and reduce taxes. They go together-up or down.

So the Congress must stand between—must save the people from themselves—must use rare discrimination between demands, but must curtail expenditures if taxes are to be reduced and the public debt paid.

Along this line the Republican Congress for the last four years has directed its first attention. The Appropriations Committee is hard-boiled. It plays no favorites. It must be shown, It scrutinizes the Budget estimates closely; calls in those interested in specific appropriations and hears what they have to say; considers the needs of the department and of the country; rarely increases a Budget estimate for any enterprise, but very often reduces them.

Before the Budget system was adopted appropriations were reported out throught eight different committees in the House of Representatives. This gave many Members a chance to help frame appropriation bills. But with the adoption of the Budget system the House patriotically and unselfishly gave all ower of reporting appropriation bills over to the one big Committee on Appropriations. This took from the individual members of the several appropriating committees some power and influence. It will make it harder for individual Members to get through special appropriations for local benefits. It sends all bills appropriating money to the one big committee which considers the Nation's needs for its many departments and enterprises all in a bunch—it weighs the national budget as a Handling the appropriations through the Budget system in the House has its disadvantages as well as its advantages. disadvantages will be felt locally-by Congressmen who find it harder to get through appropriations for local benefits back home. The advantages will be felt nationally and will un-doubtedly be reflected in reduced appropriations and lower

The adoption of the Budget system for which the people hava been clamoring for 40 years is one of the biggest achievements of this Congress.

OF INTEREST TO PARMERS.

I think no Congress in the history of the land ever paid so much aftention to the agricultural interests of this country nor ever did so much for them as has this Congress now in session.

The emergency tariff gave protection to the farmer and stock grower and saved them from the threatening flood of imports from foreign lands. Agricultural products protected, and others along with them, have unquestionably materially responded to the effects of the tariff, and those engaged in their production have been greatly benefited. The emergency tariff gave protection to products in which Colorado growers are interested as follows: Wheat, wheat flour, corn, beans, potatoes, onlons, cattle, sheep, fresh or frozen beef, mutton and pork, wool, beet sugar, butter, cheese, milk, apples, and cherries.

The War Finance Corporation was revived in the interest of the producers and dealers in agricultural products. More than $350,000,000 has been loaned to those interested in the production, sale, and exportation of these products, and the loans came at a critical time when the help saved many from financial ruin. About $11,000,000 of this fund was placed in Colorado and its beneficial effect was felt throughout the State.

The Federal reserve act was amended so as to require the appointment of a farmer on the Federal Reserve Board.

The packers' act, an act to regulate the meat-packing and allied and associated industries, was strongly indorsed and advocated by the agricultural interests. This act was passed by this Congress.

The antigambling in grain futures act was passed but declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. The House of Representatives has passed another act along this line in the belief that it will fare better before the courts and yet accomplish most of the desired purposes.

A cooperating marketing act was passed which gives producers of agricultural products liberal powers to organize and engage in interstate and foreign commerce. This act will encourage the development of cooperative marketing among farmers

A bill was passed providing for a Treasury deposit of $25,000,000 with the Farm Loan Board which greatly facilitated the working of that board and provided additional working capital that is taking care of the needs of the farm banks.

A law was enacted increasing the rate of interest on farm loan bank bonds to 5½ per cent. This has made the bonds more easily salable and has not increased the cost of interest on loans to the farm borrower.

GENERAL LEGISLATION.

The Veterans' Bureau was created. This was a consolidation under one head of all the agencies dealing with the veterans of the Great War. Something like $425,000,000 will pass through this bureau this year for the benefit of the veterans and their

When this Congress began to adjust the affairs of the Nation it found that certain foreign countries owed us something like $11,000,000,000 in war-time loans without our having very much in the way of signed contracts for payment to show for it. act has been passed by this Congress creating a debt commission to look into these vast loans and to arrange for their refunding or payment. I want to say that I think the Congress has no idea of canceling this debt but will endeavor to see that it is put in businesslike shape.

The country has heard much of the frauds and grafts growing out of war contracts. The Congress has appropriated the sum of $500,000 to enable the Attorney General to prosecute guilty of frauds and to enable him to collect as far as possible from those who still have their ill-gotten gains.

Already a number of prominent individuals have been indicted and suits are being prepared and filed for the recovery of large sums of money.

The Federal highways have been taken care of in the Post Office appropriation bill by the appropriation of $50,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, $65,000,000 for 1924, and $75,000,000 for 1925. Six million five hundred thousand dollars was also authorized for roads through the national forests for each of the fiscal years of 1924 and 1925. This item is of especial interest to Colorado.

The maternity and infancy act of interest to women everywhere was passed and the organization of this great work is way. The act provides an appropriation of about $1,500,000 for this year, which may be increased $1,000,000 each year for five years. The States benefited in the work must join in about equal expenditures of money.

Immigration has been greatly limited by a restrictive measure passed by this Congress,

The naval scrapping act was made possible by the success of the conference on limitation of armament. The act authorizes the President to scrap a portion of the ships under construction and will save the country a great sum of money.

A bill was passed providing for the monthly payment of pensions to pensioners of all wars. This will be greatly appreciated by these old veterans who get none too much and need the money for their living expenses monthly.

The Volstead antibeer act is just another nall in the coffin of old John Barleycorn. It is designed to aid in the better enforcement of the prohibition amendment and laws.

Now these are not all the acts passed by this Congress by any means. But they are the ones of chief interest to the West. Surely this is a notable record for any Congress and one that every Member of the Sixty-seventh Congress may well feel

Speaking of the work of this Congress, Hon. Frank W. Mondell, majority leader, said in the House the other day:
"What I really rose to say, Mr. Speaker, was that no Congress ever sat under this Dome that was more faithful, diligent, painstaking, earnest, more intelligent or sounder in its judg-ments and decisions that the present Congress. Never in the same length of time has so much important legislation been considered in committee and in the Halls of the two branches of the National Legislature. Never in the history of this House has there been so close a study and painstaking an application to the work of the people in the matter of legislation and appropriations. Never has a Congress maintained a finer record for economy in expenditures than has this Congress, and gentlemen may go home to their constituents assured that their record and the record of the Congress of which they are Members will be approved by the overwhelming majority of the American people."

And I believe that every stockholder in this gigantic business enterprise—the United States of America—who is not overinfluenced by party considerations and political motives will agree with him.

It must be apparent to all fair-minded stockholders-the voters, in fact-that this has been a businesslike management of their concern, the Government of the United States.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. W. FRANK JAMES. OF MICHIGAN,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Thursday, August 24, 1922

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Speaker, as has been well said:

Chaos reigns in the coal industry. The coal operators are the authors of this chaos. The coal operators revel in this chaos and have no thought of ending it.

The coal profiters are running amuck. For many years their course has been marked by a want of humanity, of decency, and of good common sense.

We all know that the coal industry is deathly sick with a dangerous disease.

The disease comes from the fact of the lack of heart and the lack of head that has always marked the gross mismanagement of the coal industry by the coal operators.

The first step to cure the disease is the creation of a permanent Government fact-finding agency in the coal industry, endowed with full power to get all the facts and to publish all the facts

After Congress gets all the facts then we can-and must-do

ESCH-CUMMINS BILL.

I am glad to say that I was one of the small minority of Republicans in the House that voted against the Esch bill when it passed the House in November, 1919, and the Esch-Cummins bill when it came back to the House in February, 1920.

I am also glad to say that I voted for the so-called Anderson antistrike amendment.

If the bill can not be repealed—and it looks as if it can notthen I am in favor of very substantial amendments to the act, because it violates many fundamental principles of proper legis-

Under the provisions of the act:

Congress is directed to group the railroads into particular groups and promulgate such rates as to enable the railroads in the group to pay a fair return on the fair value of their property; that is, the object of the act is to insure the railroads a fixed percentage on their value as a return, whether the shipper or the traveler has any return or not.

Under the bill the basis of rates is the financial necessities of the railroads-that is, safety to railroad investment,

Prior to the passage of the Esch-Cummins Act the basis of railroad rates was justice between the shipper and the carrier. Under the old way excessive rates could not be collected from some in order that cheaper rates might be furnished to

The exaction and maintenance of rates substantially and unreasonably in excess of what is compensatory is conficatory, even though it has been approved by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Under the old law no State rate which was just alike to the shipper and to the railroad could be interfered with. At the present time the State may fix a rate which may be just alike to the shipper and to the railroad, but the Interstate Commerce Commission may set this rate aside and "impose a rate substantially and unreasonably in excess of what is compensatory in order to provide a fixed percentage of income for carriers who perform no part of this particular service."

Under the Esch-Cummins Act the shipping public and the traveling public are deprived of their property without just compensation to sustain the value of railroad securities of railroads which in some cases ought never to have been built.

Although agricultural products now bring only about 40 per cent of what they brought when this law was enacted, no substantial reductions have been made in railroad rates.

Unless a farmer happens to be located near a large market he is unable to operate at a profit.

As has been well said:

Farms are being sold at mortgage foreclosure sale, while the Interstate Commerce Commission, who arbitrarily raised rates 40 per cent on a flat percentage basis after they had been raised 5 per cent, 15 per cent, and 25 per cent, is conspicuous principally by furnishing data for propaganda used by the security holders and railroad executives.

Railroads have sought to curtail expenses and increase their net earnings by setting back engineers to firemen, conductors to brakemen, laying off men, closing stations, discharging station agents and employing caretakers, seeking to abandon branch roads which of themselves do not pay (notwithstand-ing the income and operating expenses of these branch lines entered into the computation when the general scale was fixed); by closing machine shops and subletting car repair and machine shop work to private contractors, subletting bridge-main-tenance work, and otherwise seeking to hold the benefits of the alleged wage increases by way of increased rates, and avoiding the rate agreements by reason of which the increased rates were granted.

This bill is the first piece of national legislation founded on injustice to the individual. It is the first attempt to authorize common carriers to charge rates substantially and unreasonably in excess of what is compensatory for the service that they

It is the first hill that I know of that declares that unreasonable rates are fair, and that injustice is equity.

ADJUSTED COMPENSATION.

I am glad to say that every member of the Michigan delegation in Congress voted for the adjusted compensation bill two years ago and every member voted for it this time. I hope that the Senate will pass the bill and that the President will sign it. If the President should veto it I am sure that every member of the Michigan delegation will vote to override the

Many of us voted against the repeal of the excess-profits tax—amounting to about $400,000,000—because we thought that this money should be used for paying the adjusted compensa-

SALES TAX.

An effort was made to pay for the bonus with the sales tax. I am against the sales tax because it is levied on what a man must pay in order to clothe and feed his family instead of being levied on what he earns.

The following explains the stand that some of us took at the time that the matter was proposed:

JAMES FOR BONUS BUT AGAINST TAX-TWELFTH DISTRICT CONGRESS-MAN ONE OF 23 OPPOSED TO LETY ON SALES.

MAN ONE OF 23 OPPOSED TO LEVY ON SALES.

Congressman W. Frank James is one of the 23 Congressmen who have signed a letter addressed to their colleagues declaring themselves in favor of the soldier bonus bill but opposed to any manufacturers' or other sales tax to raise tunds for the obligation. Under their signatures the 23 Congressmen have issued the following statement to their tures the 23 Congressmen have Issued the following statement to the collegues:

"We, the undersigned, who favor the soldiers' bonus bill, urge you not to consent to any manufacturers' or other sales tax as means of raising revenues for meeting this obligation. We believe the economies effected by this Congress in the ardinary governmental expenses, together with the very substantial reductions to be made in the appropriations for the Army and Nawy as a result of the disarmament conference, will very nearly provide the money with which to meet the cash payments as contemplated under the provisions of H. R. 1. It is estimated that something more than $100,000,000 in addition to the above savings will be needed annually for the next two years to meet the bonus, after which the revenues will be made to meet all demands.

FAVOS CERTIFICATE PLAN.

"This $100,000,000 annually, or $200,000,000 if need be, can easily

"This $100,000,000 annually, or $200,000,000 if need be, can easily and readily be raised by the issuance of short-term certificates. You will recall that the Treasury Department, a short time ago, placed upon the market short-term certificates in the amount of $400,000,000, and the records disclose the subscriptions for this issue were approximately $1,260,000,000, or three times the amount of $400,000,000, and the records disclose the subscriptions for this issue were approximately $1,260,000,000, or three times the amount of the issue. Neither during the time these certificates were sold nor since has there been the slightest indication of an adverse effect upon the money market, but instead it is since then the country has witnessed the greatest strides toward the return of normakey. The report of the Comptroller of the Currency indicates a constantly increasing improvement in our financial affairs. Consequently we believe there is undue alearn as to the possible effects of an issue of short-term certificates in srder to meet the demands of the bonus.

"The President believes the ex-solder should be paid the cash bonus aff at once and that it should not be spread over a number of payments. This would require an expenditure of $1,500,000,000 within the next two years. He suggests a general sales tax as a means of raising this sum. Clearly, if this amount of money is to be raised by this means in one year or two, the tax must be applied to everything, including the actual necessities of Me.

CITE CANADIAN TAX.

CITE CANADIAN TAX.

"Just how this tax works out in fact is best exemplified by the Canadian sales tax as applied to sugar. In Canada sugar is produced under almost exactly the same conditions as in the United States. They produce best sugar in large quantities, and cane sugar is imported from the Tropics and refined. The expense of these operations is on a standard with similar operations here. In January sugar was retailing at 10 cents per pound in Canada and 6 cents in the United States. The tax there is a send 1½ per cent turnover. The manufacturer a importer is taxed 1½ per cent and the Jobber 1½ per cent; in all, 3 per cent. Three per cent on 6 cents, the price of sugar where the sales tax does not apply, is 1.8 mils 1.0018, and if the amount of the tax sales was collected from the consumer, the Canadian would be paying 0.0618 per pound for his sugar instead of 10 cents. When the merchant sells 100 pounds of sugar and collects the tax thereon, he collects 16 cents for the treasury and $8.52 for himself, the Jobber, and the wholesaler, or more than twenty-one times the amount of the tax. And yet certain people proclaim this a pailess 'tax.

WOULD BE CALAMITY.

WOULD BE CALAMITY.

"Ninety millions of our people whose income is below the incometax level will pay 85 per cent of the revenue derived from a sales tax in addition to the billions which will go to the manufacturers, jobbers, and retailers as a result of such tax. Millions are out of employment and the farmers of the country are in dire straits. To add to their burdens would be a calamity.

"Wall Street is openly in favor of a sales tax, according to an afternoon paper. It is known that back of the propaganda with which the country has been flooded during the past two years are the strong manufacturers' organisations. If this tax was to be absorbed by the members of these organizations, would they be advocating it? We think not. We believe they recognise fully that a sales tax is an ideal method of further increasing profits.

"We wish also to-call your attention to the fact that if a sales tax." We wish also to-call your attention to the purpose of raising funds for the bonus it is going to be but two years until the revenues raised in this manner can be no longer used for this purpose. The bonus will then have been paid. We believe that when this time comes it will be most difficult to repeal such a law, for the reason that every special and favored interest in the country will demand its retention, and also insist that the tax on wealth is further reduced. When this is accomplished the process of the shifting of the burden of taxation will be complete.

plished the process of the shifting of the burden of taxation will be complete.

"We believe the sales tax to be fundamentally wrong, and that it will never be countenanced by the American people.

"If the Ways and Means Committee should report out a bill carrying this tax feature, and a special rule which in any way shrogates the right of any Member to offer amendments to the tax provision should be presented to the House, we earnestly ask that you vote against such a rule. If there is to be a tax provision in the bill, it is extremely important that there should be a full and free discussion as to what this provision shall do."

WAR-CONTRACT FRAUDS.

Congressman Woodburr, of Michigan, tried for months to get action by the Department of Justice to recover the hundreds of action by the Department of Justice to recover the Munices of millions of dollars stolen from the people.

He was blocked in his attempts to have the matter investigated by Congress. I voted with him. My experience on the Muscle Sheals matter, as a member of the Military Affairs Committee, had convinced me that the United States had been robbed of hundreds of millions of dollars, and that we ought to compel the gougers to disgorge, and also see that they were sent to

In commenting on this and other matters, Labor, in its special

Michigan edition, said in part as follows:

Fortunately there were two men who dared to maintain the good old-time credit of the State. Their names are W. Frank James and Roy C. Woodhuff. They should be renominated and reelected. Tweitth district, Congressman W. Frank James. It is hard to beat James's record. He is right on every issue.

THE LA FOLLETTE SEAMEN'S LAW.

I am against any bill that will cripple this very good law. WINSLOW REFUNDING BILL.

If I had been present I would have voted against the bill the same as I did the Esch-Cummins bill, as I consider them in the same class, but was called away on account of the serious illness and death of my father, and did not vote on this bill or the farmers' relief bill that I favored and wished to vote for.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

It was thought that the Democratic candidate for President after his defeat by 7,000,000 would be rather sick of the League of Nations. I note, however, that he has given the people in Europe to understand that he is still for it and that he hopes that we will join.

I was one of the first men in Congress to come out against article 10 and the League of Nations. After I spent three months in Germany, France, Italy, Greece, and Serbia and other places I was more strongly convinced than ever that it was no place for us.

If we had been a member of the league we would have had to send hundreds of thousands of our boys to help Poland in her fight with Russia.

If we had been a member of the league to-day I, as a member If we had been a member of the league to-day I, as a member of the Military Affairs Committee, would be busy on legislation to send boys over to Constantinople. As a Member of Congress I would have nothing to say whether or not we should declare war or enter a war—that would be decided for us by other nations. After they had decided that we should go and how many men we should send, then we would have only to decide whether we should try and raise by draft or by volunteers.

I am against anything that will take away from Congress the right to do what it considers best for the American people.

PORBIGN DEBTS.

I am not only against foreign entanglements, but I am in I am not only against foreign entanglements, but I am in favor of the countries over there paying us what they owe us. I am not in favor of giving any commission the right to say on what terms they shall pay us. I think we are going far enough when we give them the right to negotiate. The President can negotiate treaties, but they have to be confirmed by the Senate. Any terms made by any debt-refunding commission should be submitted to Congress for its approval before the prestreet is closed. matter is closed.

BUDGET LAW.

One of the earliest measures enacted by the present Congress was the Budget law, which went into effect July 1, 1921. The progress already achieved will cause this law to stand out as one of the most important pieces of legislation that has passed Congress in the last 25 years. It definitely puts an end to "pork-barrel" legislation and is a successful barrier against wasteful expenditures.

SPEECH .

HON. JOHN PHILIP HILL, OF MARYLAND,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Thursday, December 22, 1921.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the President's message.

Mr. MONDELL. Will the gentleman from Tennessee allow me to yield to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HILL]? I yield to the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. HILL].

Mr. HILL. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the committee, before I address the House I ask unanimous consent to revise net and extend my remarks on the adjusted compensation for veterans of the World War.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Maryland asks unanimous consent to extend his remarks in the Record on adjusted compensation for veterans of the World War. Is there objection?

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, is the gentleman going to insert as part of his remarks an argument in favor of a tax on light wines and beer in order to raise money for the soldiers?

Mr. HILL. I am. Mr. WINGO. Is the gentleman also going to advocate a sales tax? I do not know about that yet. Mr. HILL.

Mr. BARKLEY. The gentleman's views on the subject will be his own?

Mr. HILL. Be my own entirely.
Mr. BARKLEY. No objection, Mr. Chairman.
The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. HILL. How much more time have I? The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has two and a half minutes

Mr. HILL. I hold in my hand an original set of the general orders of the American Expeditionary Forces. Some people are used to taking orders from the Anti-Saloon League, but I do not do so, and I prefer to refer to the orders of the American Expeditionary Forces rather than those of the Anti-Saloon

While the former were fighting in France the latter was attempting to take away from them their privilege of cheering the gloom of the French trenches by a little light wine and beer.

True temperance was exercised in the American Expeditionary Forces, and I desire to call attention to General Orders, No. 77, and Bulletin No. 10, allowing the use of light wine and beer, to show that the veterans of the World War will not oppose my proposal to pay their adjusted compensation from a tax on light wine and beer:

INTEMPERANCE.

11. Commanding officers at all places where our troops may be located will confer with the local French authorities and use every endeavor to limit the lowest possible number of places where intoxicants are sold. It is desired that these authorities be assisted in locating nonlicensed resorts, which should be reported immediately to the proper authority for the necessary action.

12. Soldiers are forbidden either to buy or accept as gifts from inhabitants whisky, brandy, champagne, liquors, or other alcoholic beverages, other than light wines or beer. The gift or retail sale of these by inhabitants in the sone of the Army is forbidden by French law. Commanding officers will see that all drinking places where alcoholic liquors named above are sold are designated as "off limits" and the necessary means adopted to prevent soldiers visiting them.

By command of General Pershing:

James G. Harbord,

JAMES G. HARBORD, Brigadier General, Chief of Staff.

Official:
ROBBET C. DAVIS,
Adjutant General.

(General Orders, No. 213.) GENERAL HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, France, November 22, 1918.

1. Alcoholism is at present receiving the earnest attention of the French Government. All efforts toward its suppression will be given full cooperation by American commanding officers. A recent circular of instructions issued by the French Minister of War states:

"The consumption of alcohol and alcoholic drink has now become a danger throughout the country which the Government must remedy by energetic measures because of its consequences to military discipline as well as to the public health. The necessity of taking stern measures to fight alcoholism has become an imperative duty."

2. French law provides many means of restricting and controlling the sale of alcoholic liquor. The active assistance of all commanding officers will be lent to the French authorities in the enforcement of these laws in so far as they relate to the American Expeditionary Forces. All places, whether regular drinking places or not, and all persons found to be furnishing prohibited drinks to American officers or soldiers, or serving them with drinks outside of the permitted hours, will be promptly reported to the nearest French military or civil authority, as may be most expedient. All cases of intoxication of members of the American Expeditionary Forces will be investigated immediately upon discovery with a view to ascertaining the place or person responsible for supplying the intoxicant, and prompt report thereof will be made to the French authorities.

3. French regulations formally prohibit the retailing of alcoholic or be made to the French authorities.

3. French regulations formally prohibit the retailing of alcoholic or spirituous beverages to military persons of all ranks and to civilian employees of the Army. They permit only the sale of wine, beer, cider, pear cider, and hydromel. The French authorities likewise limit the time during which cafés, restaurants, and drinking places are open to military persons to certain hours. Observance of these rules will be strictly enforced as to all members of the American Expeditionary Forces and all persons under its jurisdiction.

4. Commanding officers will consult the local French military or civil authority upon the best means of cooperation in the suppression of this evil. Special effort will be made in the coastal region, where the French law permits more vigorous repressive action than elsewhere. By command of General Persing:

JAMES W. McAndrew, Chief of Staff.

lal: ROBERT C. DAVIS, Adjutant General.

The above orders permitting the use of light wines and beer drove out brandy and whisky from the American Expeditionary Forces and won the war. Of course, the best way to pay the bonus is a tax on these beverages, and it means temperance. [Applause.]

Economy in the Administration of the Government-Discontinuance of Certain Land Offices.

SPEECH

HON. JOHN PHILIP HILL.

OF MARYLAND.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Wednesday, June 28, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (8. 3425) to continue certain land offices, and for other purposes.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Chairman, the matter of Federal economy in the Government service is one which has engaged a large part of the time of this Congress. We have saved enormous sums. The Committee on Appropriations, after mature consideration, made cuts in the expenses of the Interior Department in the Interior Department bill amounting to $128,000 with reference to these land offices which are now proposed to be restored.

Mr. WILLIAMSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HILL. I am sorry, but I must decline to yield because I have not the time. If this bill is passed it will largely restore those items. I am therefore against this expenditure. I have followed this debate very carefully and I know the efforts of the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Mr. Madden, on behalf of a very good motto, which expresses my theory and which I have adopted as a "battle cry," More liberty, less

As the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MADDEN] remarked just

If this was a matter of good fellowship only it would be easy for us to agree, but this is a matter affecting the Treasury of the United States, and we have, after careful consideration and consultation with the men whose districts were affected in the House, decided that the economy included in the appropriation for the Interior Department was not only essential but necessary.

I agree with him and I am for this saving of $128,000 a year. [Applause.]

War Risk Insurance Act-A Nurse for the Disabled Ex-Service Person.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. JOHN PHILIP HILL. OF MARYLAND,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, Tuesday, June 27, 1922.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, this is not a partisan matter. I am surprised to hear even one partisan matter interjected into it. The whole spirit of it is to take care of the disabled veterans irrespective of cost, and I feel sure that this very meritorious bill providing adequate care for disabled veterans in the matter of nurse attendance will

We discussed this matter in the House when the Sweet bill was passed and this particular item failed to pass. I voted for it, and I hope it will go through to-day. To read the bill is enough.

Be it enacted, etc., That subdivision (5) of section 302 of the war risk insurance act is hereby amended to read as follows:
"(5) If the disabled person is so helpless as to be in constant need of a nurse or attendant, such additional sum shall be paid, but not exceeding $50 per month, as the director may deem reasonable."

If a disabled ex-soldier or sailor needs a permanent nurse he ought to have it, and I agree with the gentleman from New York, Colonel Fish, who introduced the bill.

I also agree with the gentleman from Massachusetts, Colonel Winslow, chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, who recommends the passage of the bill. What he quotes from the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau should ring clear to the hearts of us all:

Bureau should ring clear to the hearts of us all:

This bill differs from the original act only in respect of changing the sum of $20 for nurse or attendant to the sum of $50.

Col. C. R. Forbes, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, in a letter written by him as of the 3d of May, 1922, wrote as follows:

"At the present time there are 195 exservice beneficiaries bilind in both eyes, 94 who have lost both legs, and 8 who have lost both arms. There are 336 beneficiaries requiring the attendance of a nurse who are given the $20 monthly allowance allowed under the law for this purpose. In addition to the cases as listed above, there are three ex-service men receiving benefits because of double total permanent disability. In each instance both arms have been amputated and in addition the claimants are totally billnd. In addition to this, two of the claimants are suffering with defective hearing. It is interesting to note that all three of these men received their disability from the premature explosion of a hand grenade.

"As I understand, your proposed bill changes the present law only so far as the monthly allowance for a nurse is concerned, making the maximum allowance of $50 per month instead of $20. Under the proposed bill if all beneficiaries requiring the attendance of a nurse are given the maximum allowance of $50 per month."

In a previous communication Col. C. R. Forbes, Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, stated his attitude on this bill thus:

"From a humanitarian standpoint and also in view of the fact that the sum of $20 is entirely inadequate to pay for the services of a constant attendant, I am of the opinion that this measure is advisable and desirable."

I know we are all for this bill and that it will pass. [Ap-

Further Indorsement of the Goldsborough Bill for Stabilization.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. T. ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH. OF MARYLAND,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Saturday, September 16, 1922.

Mr. GOLDSBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, as stated by me to this House on August 16, since May 23 last, when I addressed the the House on the subject of stabilizing the purchasing power of money, farm organizations, labor organizations, and the highest financial authorities have written me indorsing the effort and emphasizing the necessity for such legislation. On August 16 I inserted as a part of my remarks a letter from former Vice President of the United States Thomas R. Marshall; a letter from the Hon. CLAUDE KITCHIN, for years a great national figure, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives during the Wilson administration, now the minority leader of this House, highly esteemed and much loved, as he is, by Democrats and Republicans alike; also indorsements from Roger W. Babson, president of Babson's Statistical Organization, Wellesley Hills, Mass., whose statistical work in the field of economics and whose analyses of business cycles are so well known and so important as to be found in most of the great business houses, banks, trust companies, and financial organizations throughout the country, and also in the smaller ones which can afford it; a letter from the American Chamber of Commerce in Berlin, Germany; and a letter from William T. Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, together with his carefully worked-out views on the subject. Of course, it is not necessary to emphasize the fact that this legislation has no partisan complexion, and I believe this House will be interested in an editorial appearing in Wallace's Farmer. a paper owned by the Hon, Henry C. Wallace, United States a paper owned by the Hon. Henry C. Wallace, United States Secretary of Agriculture, and his brother, on August 25, 1922; a letter from Mr. Byron W. Holt, manager of Goodbody & Co., one of the leading members of the New York Stock Exchange; and a letter from Dr. John R. Commons, professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin, approving the effort to secure stabilization and to achieve stabilization, and I am therefore inserting these various documents as a part of my remarks:

[Editorial in Wallace's Farmer, a paper ewned by Hon. Henry C. Wallace, United States Secretary of Agriculture, and his brother.]

STABLE MONEY BILL.

It must be fully apparent now to everyone how terrific are the evils which follow in the train of alternating periods of inflation and deflation. Fully 90 per cent of the class warfare which is striking so directly at the foundation of our civilization is the result of inflation or defla-at the foundation of our civilization is the result of inflation or denation.

Our readers will remember that on several occasions we have expressed a favorable opinion concerning the Fisher stabilized dollar as a method of preventing the periods of inflation and deflation which alternately harm the farmer and the laboring man. They will be interested, therefore, in knowing that Congressman Goldsboodouser, of Maryland, has introduced a bill providing for the inauguration of the Fisher stabilized dollar. While it is too much to expect that the bill will pass at this session of Congress, it is to be hoped that the hearings will educate, many Congressmen as to the fundamental truth that it is the alternating periods of inflation and deflation which cause so many troubles concerning which they legislate so futilely.

While the gold standard is unquestionably the best standard of currency the world has ever had, it must certainly give way eventually to a more scientific method of measuring values. The Fisher stabilized dollar is a step in the right direction, and we trust our readers will write their Congressmen directing their attention to the Goldsborough bill on stabilizing the dollar.

their Congressmen dir stabilizing the dollar.

[Goodbody & Co., formerly Robert Goodbody & Co., members New York Stock Exchange, 115 Broadway.] NEW YORK, August 12, 1922.

Hon. T. Alan Goldsborough,

House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Hon. T. Alan Goldshorden,

House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: I wish to thank you for a copy of your speech in Congress entitled "Stabilizing the purchasing power of money." I have read it with interest, and not only agree with nearly all that you say but strongly approve of what you say in regard to the necessity for stabilizing the purchasing power of money. If it is possible to stabilize money—and I think that it is—there is, with perhaps one or two exceptions, no more important subject for legislation than this one.

I agree with you that millions of people in this world are bleeding and starving to-day because of unstable monetary units. Civilization is decaying and may go down and out in Europe if the important nations there continue to print flat money and do not soon adopt new and relatively stable money and currency systems. Unstable money is the curse of the world to-day. It encourages speculation and dishonesty and discourages honest effort. It is the great breeder of discontent and anarchy.

Inclosed is copy of Goodbody & Co.'s market letter of this week, which discusses the farmer problem and the danger of further deflation. However, unless Professor Fisher's or some other method of stabilization of the dollar its adopted, it seems to me reasonably certain that our price level will continue to decline for 5 or 10 years more.

Very truly yours,

BYBON W. HOLT,

THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN, DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMICS,
Madison, August 28, 1922.

Hon. T. Alan Goldsborough,
House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: I recently received a copy of the bill introduced by you and your speech on the subject of stabilizing the dollar. I should like to write to you my very strongest indorsement of this measure, at least in principle, though I presume the details may be changed in working out the legislation.

I consider the matter of stabilizing the dollar the most important of our economic problems, especially in the matter of the relation of capital and labor. I believe it is safe to say that two-thirds of the strikes and labor unrest of the past hundred years in this country have been due to rising prices and falling prices. Could the dollar be stabilized so as to bring about a steady level of prices, I believe it would do more for preventing strikes and labor unrest than any other measure.

I should be glad indeed if your bill receives serious attention from the Congress. Sincerely yours, JOHN B. COMMONS.

Grain Futures Bill.

SPEECH

HON. JOHN PHILIP HILL. OF MARYLAND,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Monday, June 26, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 11843) for the prevention of obstructions and burdens upon interstate commerce in grain, by regulating transactions on grain future exchanges, and for other purposes.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Page 15, lines 19 and 20, strike out the words "or carelessly,"

Mr. HILL. This bill (H. R. 11843) for the "prevention and removal of obstructions and burdens upon interstate commerce in grain" is a subtle extension of the already too extensive interference of the Government in business. I am for the

My farmer forefathers fought at Bunker Hill and elsewhere to establish the Constitution under which this legislation 's supposed to be authorized, but if they knew to-day the encroachment this bill makes on the rights of their States they would come back and fight it to-day.

My constituents to-day are not farmers, but they depend on farmers, and this bill is not for the best interests of the farmers. I am for all possible aid to the agricultural interests, but this kind of legislation has already once been declared uncon-stitutional. This bill does two things. By the portions of the bill that have been read extraordinary powers are granted to the Secretary of Agriculture. By section 9 there is added to the Penal Code of the United States a new offense. It is a misdemeanor, punishable by not more than one year and by a fine of not more than $10,000, or both. I hold in my hand the Penal Code of the United States, and I invite your attention to section 215, but first I will again read to you section 9 of the pending bill:

read to you section by of the pending bill:

Suc 9. That any person who shall violate the provisions of section 4 of this act, or who shall fall to evidence any contract mentioned in said section by a memorandum in writing as therein required, or who shall knowingly or carclessiy deliver for transmission through the mails or in interstate commerce by telegraph, telephone, wheleas, or other means of communication false, misleading, or inaccurate reports concerning crop or market information or conditions that affect or tend to affect the price of grain in interstate commerce, shall be deemed gully of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both, together with the costs of prosecution.
Section 215 of the present code will accomplish all that to Section 215 of the present code will accomplish all that is desired by section 9, and do it constitutionally. For five years as United States attorney for Maryland I studied and enforced section 215. The maximum penalty in section 215 is $1,000 and the maximum is five years. I have gone carefully through all this Penal Code, and I am more or less familiar with the penal laws of the United States. We have too many unen-forcible laws already. I ask the gentleman in charge of the bill, What does the word "carelessly" mean in the Criminal Code?

Mr. TINCHER. In the first place, the crime is made a misdemeanor, so that it might not be necessary to prove criminal intent to convict a man of a misdemeanor to the same extent that it would be to convict a man of a felony. I do not think there is any merit in the gentleman's argument, and I do not think a man should be permitted to do this thing and then claim that he did it carelessly and thus avoid the penalty. If it were a crime that involved moral turpitude and felonious intent that would be different, but here is a misdemeanor defined, and I do not think it ought to be necessary, in order to obtain conviction, to prove the animo furandi.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman want to go on record that he does not consider that a violation of this act involves any moral turpitude?

Mr. TINCHER. I said a violation of this act does not involve a felonious intent, because the punishment in it is already defined as a misdemeanor.

Mr. HILL. Will the gentleman tell the House what is the difference between a felony and a misdemeanor? Mr. TINCHER. Oh, yes.

the Volstead Act every day, perhaps, in Baltimore, are guilty only of a misdemeanor.

Mr. HILL. Oh, no; of a felony or of high treason, according to the gentleman and his friends.

Mr. TINCHER. No; not felony. If they were guilty of felony, then my friend from Baltimore would be prosecuted as an accessory before and after the fact. To commit any crime that would send you to a penal institution is a felony, where they can work you, and a misdemeanor is different. This is not a felony.

Mr. HILL. I am glad to hear the gentleman admit even that Under the Federal law a felony is snything that is punishable by confinement for over one year. Less than that is a "misdemeanor."

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Maryland has expired.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for five minutes more.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection?
Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I want to know if we are going to conduct a night school here on law practice.

Mr. KNUTSON. We need some instruction, I think, Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. I object.

Protect the Elk of the Olympic National Forest-Slaughter of Elk for Teeth and Antlers Must Stop.

SPEECH

HON. ALBERT JOHNSON.

OF WASHINGTON,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Monday, March 13, 1922.

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union had under consideration the bill (H. R. 19739) making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, and for other purposes.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I desire to take a few moments to call the attention of the Members to the situation in connection with the Olympic elk in the great Olympic Forest Reserve.

The older Members will remember that during the first term of Theodore Roosevelt a great area covering the entire heart of the Olympic peninsula was set aside as a Federal monument for the protection of the elks there, and that brand of elk be-came known as Cervus rooseveltis. That monument had no care whatever. It was within the great forest reservation. These elks were left to care for themselves. At that time the herds were supposed to number from 12,000 to 14,000 animals. Two or three years ago, with the assistance of the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYDEN], Congress caused the monument to disappear and its area to be actually included in the area of the Olympic Forest Reserve.

About that time it was noticed that the elks had exhausted the feeding grounds high in the Olympic Mountains and were coming down toward civilization, where they were being killed by poachers, principally for the purpose of obtaining their teeth, to be sold as emblems for the great order of Elks. I make this address in the hope that I may reach each and every lodge of Elks in the United States, to urge them to take further steps for the cancellation of the use of elk teeth if they desire to keep alive in the United States a single specimen of that noble animal, the American elk. *

I should like to have Members come down and look at these pictures which I am displaying on the bulletin board. I have here a little circular entitled "The crime of killing elks for their teeth." I ask Members to come down and look at the pictheir teeth." I ask Members to come down and look at the pic-ture of this beautiful animal with his jaws pried open, his lips cut off, and his teeth knocked out, a five-point buck with his magnificent antiers in the velvet, and left to rot in the woods. Look at this other one—from 800 to 1.000 pounds of good meal left to rot in that forest reserve. Three years ago, at the time of a great snow, when the elks could not live in the high mountains, we had something like a count of the herd, and in my opinion within that time the herd has been reduced from 8,000 Mr. HILL. What is it?

Mr. TINCHER. One is punishable by servitude and the other is simply a misdemeanor. For instance, the violators of great publicity, to cut down the demand for elk teeth. Our

State of Washington has severe laws against the killing of elks illegally, but in that great forest reserve, consisting of over a million square acres of territory, the United States Government has but four rangers, four men to take care of a territory as blg as a small New England State, to protect the elks, to protect the forest from fires, and to do the necessary work. The approthe forest from fires, and to do the necessary work. priations of Congress in the last several years for the general upkeep of that great forest reserve have averaged $14,000 a year, in addition to the statutory salaried positions, bringing the total appropriation up to about $30,000. If there is one forest reserve in the United States that brings a handsome return to the Federal Government it is the Olympic Forest Reserve, which contains the largest amount of standing timber in one compact body in the United States.

Mr. MONDELL. Will the gentleman yield? Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. I yield to the gentleman from Wyoming.

Mr. MONDELL. The gentleman is calling attention to the slaughter of elks in the forest reserve in his State.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Yes. Mr. MONDELL. Of course, the control over game is entirely in the hands of the State.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. Yes.

Mr. MONDELL. The State has full and complete authority over game on the public lands as well as on private land. The Federal Government has no authority whatever except as the State may cede authority to the Federal Government.

Mr. JOHNSON of Washington. I am just coming to that point, and in connection with it I want to emphasize the fact that the citizens of western Washington, residing in the valleys adjacent to the Olympic National Forest, are doing all they can to put a stop to the vicious practice of slaughtering the noble Olympic elk. The pictures I am displaying here are furnished me by patriotic citizens of the city of Hoquiam, Wash., who are alive to the situation and are anxious that the Federal Government cooperate to the fullest extent with the State authorities to the end that such viciousness may be prevented. I have been in consultation with representatives of the Forest Service. who assure me that in so far as their authority exists they will continue to cooperate. But the vital thing, and that to which I desire to call the attention of this House, is that all Americans, and particularly the members of the great fraternal society, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, must realize that the protection of the Olympic elk herds is a matter of importance to all the people. The elk must not be permitted to go the way of the bison and the passenger pigeon. Future generations will not be sparing in criticism of us if we fall to do all that lies in our power to preserve the wild life that still remains in our forests. I want to commend the officials of the United States Forest Service, who are alive to the situaation and who are doing what they can. I hope their recom-mendations for protective legislation will have the favorable attention of Congress.

HON. ROYAL C. JOHNSON, OF SOUTH DAKOTA,

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Monday, October 2, 1922.

Mr. JOHNSON of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in accordance with permission granted by unanimous consent of the House to extend my remarks in the Record and print the so-called "slacker lists," I desire to call attention to a letter from The Adjutant General's office dated September 25, 1922. It is my intention to insert these lists on the 5th day of each month until all of the names are printed. No good soldier will be injured by the publication of his name in these lists; but, on the contrary, if his military record is one to be proud of, the publication will only serve to call attention to that record. If by mistake the names of good soldiers have not been eliminated from the record, it will be my pleasure and duty to insert in the Record the facts in each individual case and to see that the facts are brought to the attention of the Secretary of War, who is as anxious as any soldier of the late war with Germany to have the records correct. Mistakes ought to be corrected while the men are living and while there is evidence to substantiate any valid claim as to service.

The letter is as follows:
